ROOSEVELT BEGS FOR PARTY UNITY IN JACKSON TALK

Warns Against Peril of 1940 Defeat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight threw aside the mask of indifference with which he has concealed his dismay over the rout his administration suffered at the November election and begged for peace in the Democratic party.

"If we Democrats lay for each other now," he said, "we can be sure that 1940 is the corner where the American people will be laying for us."

The President spoke before 1,000 Democratic leaders on the day set for paying homage to the memory of a party saint, Andrew Jackson—soldier, pioneer and president. Those at the banquet paid $100 each for the meal and the oratory.

Plea Comes as Surprise.

The spectacle of a fighting President pleading for harmony four days after he had defied dictators of the world in opening the 76th congress surprised both his supporters and opponents alike.

"The way to avoid fighting among ourselves," said Roosevelt, "is to fight against the enemies of the American people—inertia, greed, ignorance, short-sightedness, vanity, opportunism—all the evils that turn man against man.

"If we do that, by the eternal [Jackson's favorite oath], we shall never have to strike our colors."

Peace Is Main Subject.

The President challenged the position of conservative Democrats early in his speech, but this was given but passing emphasis in comparison with his plea for peace.

He threw a jibe at a number of his fellow Democrats who cherish dreams of the White House in 1940 without giving any hint whether he intends to try for a third term.

"In the old days," he said, "the ideal candidate was, as some one has described a former President, a man with 'a protective reputation, an obvious but unalert integrity, a complete absence of plan or even of thought.'

"It might be well for both parties, in considering their candidates for President and Vice President, to apply that formula to the dozens who, like Barkis, seem even at this moment to be very, very willing."

Reports Imaginary Interview.

Jackson, said Mr. Roosevelt in reporting an imaginary interview with the long dead President, scoffed at present day Democrats because they "have been feeding too well and they scare easily." He reported that Jackson snorted because the Democrats "let the other fellows tell you you've lost an election just because you don't have majorities so big you can go to sleep without sentries."

Pitching into an attack on the G. O. P., the President said: "The first effect of the gains made by the Republican party in the recent elections should be to restore to it the open allegiance of those who entered our primaries and party councils with deliberate intent to destroy our party's unity and effectiveness.

"The second effect should be to bring us real Democrats together and to line up with us those from other parties who also preach the liberal gospel."

Garner Refuses to Speak.

The President sat between Vice President Garner and Speaker William B. Bankhead [D., Ala.] during the dinner and engaged in constant discussion with the Vice President. After Roosevelt's speech Bankhead addressed the banquet, predicting that the Democrats would win in 1940. Vice President Garner was scheduled to speak after Bankhead, but when called upon he merely waved good night. Persistent cries "Speech!" brought from Garner the declaration that he "had been asked to make a speech but wouldn't."

The dinner was one of some forty-nine held in every state and the capital for the double purpose of restoring party harmony and raising funds to meet campaign debts.

The principal speakers at the dinners throughout the country were cabinet officers, governors, members of congress, and other party leaders. All heard the President's address by radio.

TAKE GANGSTER SECRETLY FROM ALCATRAZ CELL

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Alphonse Capone, most powerful of the gang chiefs of the bootleg era, no longer is in Alcatraz prison.

Warden James A. Johnston today announced that he had been transferred to the federal correctional jail at Terminal Island, San Pedro, Cal. This is a jail where federal convicts are sent to serve their misdemeanor sentences.

All that is known of his transfer trip is that he was moved by train from San Francisco. San Pedro is near Los Angeles and about 400 miles from Alcatraz, the gray penitentiary on "the rock" which houses the most dangerous of the government's prisoners.

"It was our job to get him there," said the warden, "and he was removed secretly."

Reported Violent at Times.

Capone is suffering with paresis and is said at times to be violent. His term in the federal prison, with good behavior allowances, would expire on Jan. 19, but he still has a year in jail to serve. It is expected that the government will use this added period in an attempt to cure him. If the maximum time off is allowed him at Terminal Island, he will be free by Nov. 19.

Found guilty of income tax evasion during the years of his great prosperity, Capone was sentenced to ten years in federal prison, an added year in jail and was fined $50,000. He began serving his prison sentence on May 4, 1932. His first stop was at the Atlanta prison the next day. He was moved to the grim confinement of Alcatraz in August of 1934.

Life Gloomy at Alcatraz.

Life there was gloomy for him, if stories told by released convicts were true. He was unpopular with other inmates and several attempts on his life were made. When it was learned he suffered from paresis—the outgrowth of a syphilitic ailment acquired early in his career—his family and friends made vigorous efforts to have him sent to some other prison.

These were unsuccessful. The government maintained that facilities for treatment were as good on "the rock" as elsewhere. His attorneys then put their hopes on the assumption that he would be sent to Chicago to serve the added year in the Cook county jail.

U. S. in Position to Bargain.

The department of justice, however, vetoed this. Recently it was announced that he would serve the last period of his punishment in some federal institution, provided his relatives agreed. The government was in a favorable position to bargain, as the good behavior allowance is a favor granted and not a right. Capone could have been, if the attorney general so willed, held for the full ten years at Alcatraz.

The way for the transfer to San Pedro was cleared Wednesday, when his representatives paid $30,000 toward the fine and $7,692 of court costs assessed against him.

Money Raised By Relatives.

It was understood that the money was contributed by the gang chief's mother, his wife and his three brothers, Ralph, Albert, and John.

A news release from the department of justice in Washington stated today that Capone would remain at Terminal Island "for the remainder of his term." It was added that he would be released on Nov. 19 if "he pays the remainder of his fines on the misdemeanor count in his indictment, earns his good behavior time and there is no change in his physical condition."

SPONGES DYING IN BAHAMAS; BIG LOSSES FEARED

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 7.—The mysterious death of sponges in various sections of the Bahamas within the last few weeks threatens to develop into a major disaster. It may destroy completely the greatest peasant industry in the Bahamas, affecting directly or indirectly about one-sixth of the population of this British colony.

The malady now has spread from the artificially cultivated areas to the natural beds.

Today it's the husband who wants the wife to make good resolutions.

All good Americans think the United States should be strong enough in its naval, military, and air preparedness to be independent of outside help in case of emergency.

Today we are sorry it seems necessary to magnify the possibilities of war in Europe in order to secure appropriations for self-sufficiency in our defensive program.

Penn Official Is Indicted for Election Graft

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—David L. Lawrence, secretary of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and Democratic state chairman, was indicted today on charges of blackmail, fraud, and violation of the election laws. The indictment was returned by a Dauphin county grand jury which Gov. George H. Earle and his Democratic henchmen had tried for eight months to forestall.

Investigation of graft charges against Earle will be continued Tuesday when the grand jury resumes its deliberations. The jury, which is composed of eleven Democrats and eleven Republicans, made its report to Judge Paul N Schaeffer.

Two months ago a hand-picked legislative committee exonerated Lawrence, Earle, and twelve others of charges of fraud and corruption in the conduct of state affairs.

Earle Out Jan. 17.

Earle will retire from office Jan. 17 when Judge Arthur H. James, a Republican, becomes governor. Earle won the Democratic nomination for United States senator and was defeated last November when Pennsylvania returned the Republican party to power.

Charges against Lawrence, Earle, and the others grew out of the primary election campaign. S. Davis Wilson, mayor of Philadelphia, who opposed Earle for the Democratic nomination, first made the charges. He was supported by Charles J. Margiotti, then attorney general of Pennsylvania, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. Earle fired Margiotti and started his fight to balk a grand jury investigation that Margiotti demanded.

Indictment Surprise Move.

Return of the indictments against Lawrence was a surprise move on the part of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley, who obtained Judge Schaeffer's

WPA PICKETS MARCH BEFORE WRONG HOME; BRUCE BARTON MOVES

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Some 400 WPA workers decided today that Representative Bruce Barton [R., N. But the plodding of the pickets was a trifle bewildering to residents of the house—a family named Holloway. Barton moved from the location several weeks ago.

Martin Fires Reds; Hints at Pact with Ford

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—In two surprise moves, Homer Martin, international president of the C. I. O. affiliated United Automobile Workers of America, tonight ousted all officers of Plymouth local, No. 51, U. A. W. Then he predicted that the Ford Motor company soon would recognize the U. A. W. as sole collective bargaining agent for its employés.

The ouster of local 51's officers apparently was predicated on charges that the local was under the domination of communists. In announcing his action, Martin declared:

"This is just the beginning. It is a challenge to all those who aim to do anything except conduct a labor union in the interests of the working man. I am doing this at the urgent request of rank and file members. I am giving out a challenge to the disrupters of organized labor that we've just begun to fight."

Names Co-administrators.

Among those ousted was Leo Lamotte, who recently won the local's presidency from Pat McCartney. Not long ago McCartney testified before the Dies committee. Martin's action followed a meeting sponsored by a group which charged communist domination of the local. After ousting the officers, Martin appointed Fred Durrance and Carl Spickler co-administrators to run the union's affairs pending an election in ten days.

On orders of Martin, the records of local 51 were transferred from Schiller hall, known as "Moscow square," to the old union headquarters in Slovak hall. Ousted officers who had been guarding the records were forcibly ejected from the offices.

Sees Ford Deal with Union.

Martin's prediction about Ford succumbing to the U. A. W. came during another talk. "Don't be surprised," he said, "if the Ford workers have the benefits of collective bargaining very soon. I could tell you some things about the Ford situation. Don't be surprised if, when we come to the convention this year, there is a large representation of Ford workers."

A high U. A. W. official said Martin would soon reach a "personal agreement" with Harry Bennett, personnel director for Ford, under which Martin would act as sole bargaining agent for all workers in all Ford plants.

Robert M. Lee, Editor, Dies of Heart Attack

Robert Morton Lee, managing editor of THE TRIBUNE, died suddenly early today in his home at 830 Waukegan road, Lake Forest. He was 56 years old.

Robert M. Lee.

Death was caused by a coronary occlusion, an abrupt collapse of the coronary artery of the heart. This occurred shortly after Mr. Lee had completed a game of table tennis in the recreation room of his home. A physician was summoned, but Mr. Lee died without regaining consciousness. His wife, Mrs. Virginia Lee, and his daughter, Mrs. Donald J. Eaton, were with him.

Mr. Lee had suffered attacks of illness during the last two years, but these were not deemed serious. Recovery had been prompt in each case. The suddenness of his death came as a shock to his friends and his associates on THE TRIBUNE.

Native of Iowa.

Mr. Lee was widely known among newspaper men throughout the nation. His circle of friends also embraced many of the business and political leaders of Chicago and New York.

He was born on a farm near Estherville, Ia. His formal education included attendance at the public schools of Estherville and a school in Washington, D. C. He did not go to college, but his education did not stop with the public schools.

Through constant reading and study and infinite patience he made himself a master of the English language and literature, of history, of philosophy, of conversation. From these interests he developed a study of other languages and became conversant with and in these.

Becomes Accomplished Writer.

Writing, however, was his foremost accomplishment. In this Mr. Lee achieved a style which was instantly recognizable to his associates, whether in copy or on the printed page.

His newspaper career began in Estherville. There in his boyhood he became a printer's helper. From Estherville he went to Davenport as a reporter. Then to a larger city, Des Moines.

Milwaukee was the next step. He became the city hall reporter for the Milwaukee Journal. In 1906 he came to Chicago and joined the staf of THE TRIBUNE.

Varied Newspaper Career.

He remained with this newspaper only a year at that period. He worked for other Chicago papers and then, for a time, with the Associated Press in Chicago and Denver. Next he undertook press work in the theatrical field, wrote for magazines, and served as Sunday editor of the Examiner.

In 1916 he returned to THE TRIBUNE as a rewrite man. Later he was made an editorial writer. In 1920 he became city editor. In spite of the administrative cares of this position, he found time to write. He reported the Ku Klux Klan slayings and their aftermath at Mer Rouge, La., in 1923. He wrote of the Loeb-Leopold trial in 1924 and helped to cover the national political conventions of the '20s.

Two years ago Mr. Lee was promoted to the managing editorship of THE TRIBUNE.

CAPTURES A MATE FOR MEI-MEI, BUT IT DIES IN ORIENT

Mei-Mei, the baby giant panda at the Chicago Zoölogical park at Brookfield, who is getting to be more giant than baby, again faces the prospect of spinsterhood.

Officials of the Zoölogical society have received a letter from Mrs. William Harkness Jr., captor of the late Su-lin and of Mei-Mei, indicating that her third expedition into the Tibetan interior has failed.

On this trip she sought a mate for Mei-Mei. She actually got two pandas, a young male and a female, whom she named Su-Sen. But the male died in Shanghai and the female proved intractable and vicious. Mrs. Harkness trekked back to the border, she wrote, and returned it to its native wilds.

The expedition was hazardous and disheartening. Her camp, in a cave, was washed away by floods. A $1,500 gold export tax was placed on pandas, and she became ill and now is recuperating at Darjeeling, India.

HISTORY SHOWS U. S. AS REFUGE OF NEW LIBERTY

Spirit of America Is Born in Virginia.

America has had many beginnings. Its central idea, that of a self-governing people, with the largest area of individual freedom consistent with democratic principles, had a new and radical meaning in the history of mankind. In this and other groups of stories an effort will be made to redefine this idea, recapture its meaning, and apply it to today's developments and dangers. It is an old but ever new story, containing some of the finest drama of the human race. Travel, interviews, and reading of local history at the scenes of the first great events in the making of this republic enter into a series of which this is the first.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Va., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The text of this story may be found in an obscure paragraph in the bill of rights of the constitution of the lost state of Franklin, written in 1784. This reads:

"That a frequent recurrence to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessing of liberty."

There is a lighthouse on Cape Henry in Virginia marking the landing of the first permanent settlers on American soil in 1607. From here to the last mountain gap opening to the Golden Gate, the story of the successive waves of pioneers has this same motive, the establishment at last of the liberty of the human spirit. The long, sad martyrdom of the human race to sun gods and kings and tyrants of all sorts was to have here a new morning.

New Race Moves Forward.

This is what America means and this was its beginning, the upswinging strain of all its beginnings, as the new race moved forward from frontier to frontier, like a great glacier, across the continent, against all enemies, within and without. It is a drama that is retold again and again, on the seaboard, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge, across the Alleghanies, at the Great Lakes, on the Mississippi and Missouri, on the Oregon and Santa Fe trails, at Downer Pass, and by the great Salt lake.

It is proposed here to reëxamine the moraines of this American march, to examine its power, its rising glory, and to project that character into today's problems, and the future. Its basic foundations are individualism, religiousness, humanitarianism. These have led into strange trails, even the wilderness of doubt.

There are those today who are saying that this sort of government has failed, that we must go forward by going back, that the whole meaning of the American dream, the result of 2,000 years of human longing and effort, has been lost because of economic conditions.

People Against Change.

In is the opinion of this writer, after much travel and talk with all sorts of people, that the people will not consent to any essential change in government, that humanitarianism will stretch to great lengths, impelled by the religious motive, but that there are definite limits even here. Government may regulate and arbitrate and see to fair play between conflicting interests, but it may not set up a new tyranny over the individual spirit. The feeling and consciousness of the dignity of man, projected from the Christian religion, underlies the mental approach to all national problems.

Examination of the first of the national moraines, where may be found the bedrock of the American character, formed, not by the study of books or theories, but of the rough conditions of frontier life, is illustrated in the minutes of the convention at Richmond, Va., in 1775, where the upland settlers met to make known their state of mind to the tidewater planters of the mother colony.

Virginia Valley Birthplace.

It was in the Valley of Virginia, opening from Pennsylvania and running between the Blue Ridge and the Allegheny mountains, that the courageous, creative American spirit, cutting entirely away from European landmarks, first took shape. Squatters, dissenters, and redemptionists who fled from debt and oppression and persecution in Europe had begun to write here a new contribution to the history of the undefeated human spirit.

Here is the voice of the mountain men, given in instructions to Thomas Lewis and Capt. Samuel McDowell, delegates to the Richmond meeting which was to result in moving the capital away from the coast to the hills:

"Many of us and our forefathers left our native land and explored this once savage wilderness to enjoy the free exercise of the rights of conscience and of human nature.

"These rights, we are fully resolved, with our lives and fortunes inviolably to preserve, nor will we surrender such inestimable blessings, the purchase of toil and danger, to any ministry, to any parliament, or any body of men upon earth, by whom we are not represented, and in whose decisions, therefore, we have no voice."

Same Voice Rises Again.

And the same voice, that of the freeholders of Augusta county, rises again in a letter to the Virginia leaders, Peyton Randolph, Richard Henry Lee, George Washington, Patrick Henry, Richard Bland, Benjamin Harrison, and Edward Randolph, as follows:

"May the sacred flame that has illumined your minds and influenced your conduct in projecting and concurring in so many salutary determinations for the preservation of American liberty ever continue to direct your conduct to the last period of your lives.

"May the bright examples be fairly transcribed on hearts and reduced into practice by every Virginian, by every American. May our hearts be open to receive and our arms strong to defend that liberty and freedom, the gift of heaven, now being banished from its last retreat in Europe." [This sounds like the average American's views toward Europe today.]

Liberty Taken Seriously.

Now, what was this fighting frontier, capable of such high sentiments and ready to support freedom with force? It did not come suddenly, or out of any man's plan. These men believed that it came from God, and they took God and their liberty seriously, with constant awareness. They were a part of a stream of migration from Europe that followed the persecutions of King James and the revocation of the edict of Nantes, which had guaranteed religious freedom.

The struggles of the thirteenth century for popular government, which had bogged down under the rules of despotic princes, lived in them. John Knox had said that if princes exceed their trusts they may be resisted by force. Out of their church government, according to Froude, the creed of republics in its first hard form was born.

Fired by New Dream.

With them came Moravians and Germans from the Palatinate, Huguenots, or Protestants, from France, Welsh and English. They met and mingled in the streams that followed between the mountains.

"Among this moving mass," writes Frederick J. Turner, Harvard historian, "as it passed along the valley into the Piedmont, in the middle of the eighteenth century, were Daniel Boone, John Sevier, James Robertson [names which strike light and which will be dealt with later], and the ancestors of John C. Calhoun, Abraham Lincoln, Jefferson Davis, Stonewall Jackson, James K. Polk, Sam Houston, and David Crockett, while the father of Andrew Jackson came to the Carolina Piedmont at the same time from the coast.

"Recalling that Thomas Jefferson's home was on the frontier, at the edge of the Blue Ridge, we perceive that these names represent the militant, expansive movement of American life. They foretell the settlement across the Alleghanies in Kentucky and Tennessee; the Louisiana Purchase, and Lewis and Clark's transcontinental exploration; the conquest of the gulf plains in the war of 1812-'15; the annexation of Texas; the acquisition of California and the Spanish southwest.

Represent Frontier Democracy.

"They represent, too, frontier democracy in its two aspects personified in Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln. It was a democracy responsive to leadership, susceptible to waves of emotion, of a 'high, religious voltage' —quick and direct in action."

From this fountain head of democracy, the Valley of Virginia, "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon" marched forth to become the "irremovable rear guard of the revolution." Washington said that if he had lost at Yorktown he would have fallen back on the frontiersmen here.

They broke through the Alleghany gaps to Watauga and Holston, and Nolichucky valleys. They crossed at Cumberland Gap to take up stations in the great meadows of Kentucky. They pushed southwest along the Natchez trail. They ran the Ohio and the Mississippi. They pushed up the Missouri and the Platte. Their sons and grandsons were governors, senators, major generals, legislators, and fighters for the ideal.

Tolerance for All Races.

They have slept these many years in the little hillside cemeteries of the middle west, which they settled and dominated. They gave meaning to the frontier as a process in self-government. They had self-confidence, social equality, tolerance for all races and religions, distrust of far away government. They believed in balanced powers and were suspicious even of a remote federal government.

How this situation is regarded by a leader today in the Valley of Virginia may be seen in a recent address of Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee university, which was founded as Liberty Hall in 1749 by the Scotch-Irish settlers.

New Rights Created.

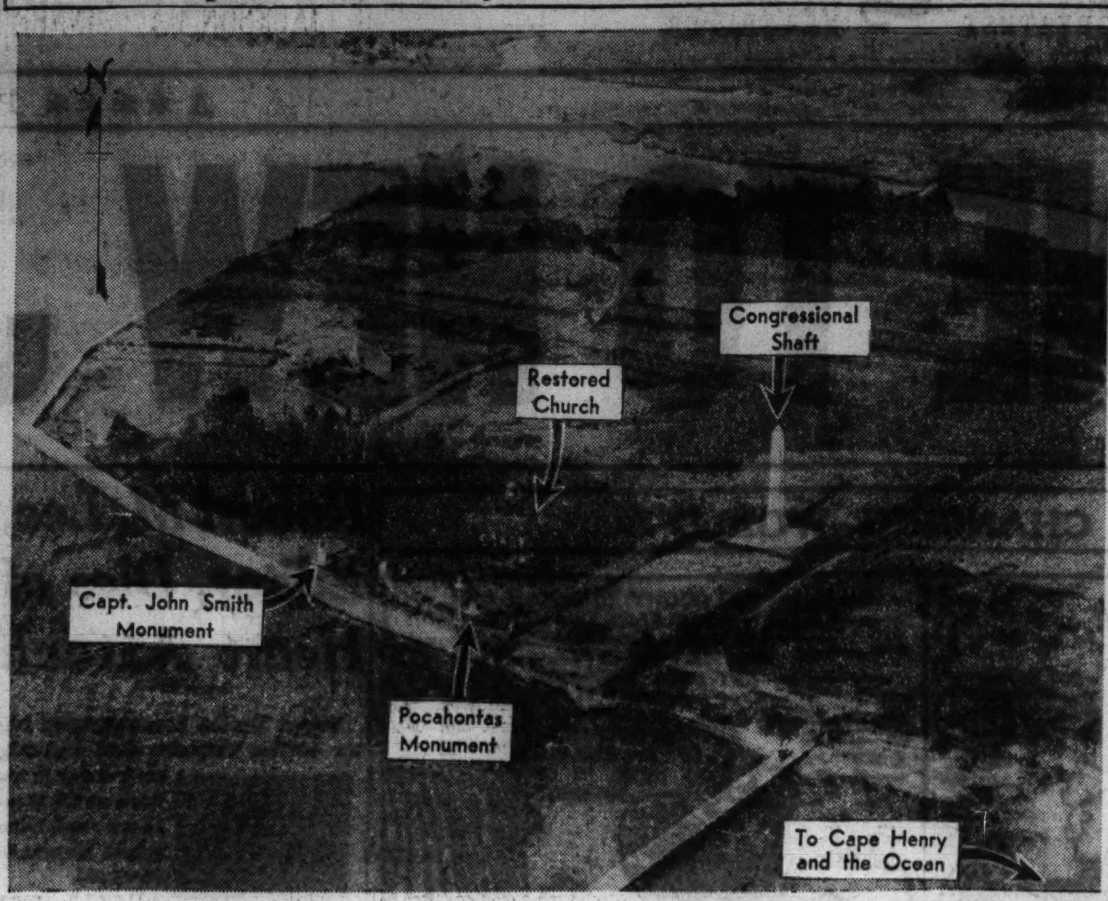
The conflict of the isms characterizes this age, Dr. Gaines said. He would examine each of these closely to see whether under ideological masks they cover the face of ancient tyranny.

"Look back at our morning wishes," he said. "The right of free thought, expression, suffrage, worship had never dawned before. The common man was given ultimate authority over his destiny, through a government, relatively stable, yet which could be modified by experience and new decisions.

"We know today that there are conditions and challenges of which the fathers never dreamed. They were protected by a grand remoteness. Now the voice of Europe breaks into our family conversations. We are living in the middle of the greatest armed camp the world has ever known. We have been hospitable to the oppressed, but while we slumber or sleep they may convert our liberty into their license. There is an unholy evangelism on behalf of causes that would destroy this country. We must be on guard."

[The second article in this series will picture more of the Valley of Virginia, its history and significance, and tell of the first Declaration of Independence.]

Birthplace of Liberty That Moved Across U. S.



Site of Jamestown, Va., where a little company of English, led by Capt. John Smith, established in 1607 the first permanent settlement of Europeans on the North American continent. This aerial view is of the western end of Jamestown Island, in the James river. Before proceeding up the James, the settlers landed at a point on Cape Henry now marked by a lighthouse.

City Teachers to Get Salary Checks in Time for Trips

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, announced yesterday that starting Jan. 16, Chicago public school teachers will receive their by-weekly pay checks on Thursday instead of Friday. He said many teachers complained that when they didn't get their checks until Friday they were delayed on trips out of town for the week-end.

HUSBAND'S DIARY TELLS COURT OF WIFE'S CRUELTY

She Smiles at His Story of Kicks and Threats.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

When she struck and swore at him, he answered her mildly. When she threatened to kill him, he had a light heart attack. When she went out at night, he stayed at home. But while he was waiting for her to come in he kept a diary.

The facts as set down in his diary led Earl Weymer, head of an ornamental iron construction company, to file a cross bill in his wife's separate maintenance suit, he testified yesterday in the court of Judge Philip Finnegan. He charged cruelty and adultery. His pretty young wife, who was previously divorced from him in March, 1937, and remarried him last January, charges nonsupport and cruelty in her suit. Mrs. Weymer lives at 105 East Delaware place. Weymer is registered at the Medinah club.

Memory Refreshed by Diary.

Mrs. Weymer says her husband has a yacht, an income of $75,000 a year, and a number of apartment buildings.

The diary refreshed Weymer's memory as he took the stand to recount in detail his wife's alleged misconduct. Peering into it, Weymer, who has been married five times, related his anguish at her temper, her intemperance, his embarrassment and pain at her flirtations with other men.

It began, he recalled under questioning of his attorney, Benjamin Ehrlich, when they anchored his yacht, the Cora J, at Macatawa Beach, Mich., in September. Mrs. Weymer left him to go to Saugatuck and wouldn't let him go along, he said.

Admits Going with Another.

"She came back very much later that night," Weymer related. "She fell against a partition. I picked her up. Her face was smeared and her clothing was rumpled, and she smelled of liquor. She tore herself from me. I asked her, 'My God, Ann, have you been out with another man?' Her reply was, 'Of course I have!'"

From then on, Weymer said, things grew worse and worse. She grew moody and sullen, he testified, and frequently left the house after refusing to cook for him, or dine out with him. At one time she told him to go out and keep his date.

"I haven't a date," Weymer said he told her, "This marriage means more to me than that." "And then, judge," he continued, "she threw a pair of dressmakers scissors at me. They missed me."

Always Kicked Him, He Says.

Later she pouted in the presence of a friend, he testified, and he remonstrated with her. She kicked him, he said.

"She always kicked me judge," Weymer added.

Mrs. Weymer, smartly dressed and poised, smiled at this. Norman Becker, her attorney, interrupted the story to demand that Weymer omit the embellishments in his testimony.

"Another time," Weymer declared, "she threatened to kill me and hit me like" — he whammed his arm through the air—"this! That was just after she had demanded $50 a week, three charge accounts, an automobile, a house, a golf membership, and an athletic club membership. I thought this was too much. Two other men we talked to thought it was too much too."

GIRL OF 16 WEDS THE UNCLE SHE FLED LAST FALL

Last October Winifred Sammler, 16 years old, of 2618 Magnolia avenue, ran away from home rather than marry her foster uncle, Walter Sammler, who is 42 and a widower.

She went to New York and worked as a maid and as a taxi dancer. On Dec. 27, disillusioned, she wrote her foster father, Alfred Sammler, asking for railroad fare home. She had changed her mind, she said, about her Uncle Walter.

So yesterday she married him in the county building. City Judge Paul A. Jones of Benton, sitting in the marriage court, officiated.

"I want a Piano to match our melodeon-desk heirloom"

"OUR daughter will be nineteen Monday," said the lady proudly, "and we wish to surprise her with one of the new modern console pianos. She is very fond of an old desk, fashioned from her grandmother's melodeon. It would please her to have a piano that resembles it."

"This Is the Piano!"

A thorough search ensued. Throughout our line of well-known makes of console pianos, we examined woods (mahogany, walnut, bleached woods, ebony) and styles (18th Century, Colonial, Sheraton, Louis XV, Chippendale, Duncan Phyfe). . . . "This is the very piano!" exclaimed the mother, stopping in front of the Chickering Sandringham. "And it's a splendid match."

We invite you to inspect our large display of new Cable-Nelson, Story & Clark, Everett, Chickering, Haddorff, Mathushek, Winter, Vose, Musette, Steck and Steinway console pianos.

FORESEE ACTION TO SETTLE PARTY SWITCHING SNARL

Bipartisan Move Looms Before City Vote.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Action to untangle the present snarl in the provision of the Illinois primary law prohibiting the voter from changing parties within two years, it was learned yesterday, is expected in the next fortnight by both Republicans and Democrats.

The snarl was created when County Judge Jarecki ruled last spring that the years involved were merely election years and that voters were free to switch from one party to another in the April primaries. Those primaries were two days less than two calendar years after the 1936 primaries. All previous rulings had been that the limitation was based on calendar years.

Legal Authorities at Odds.

Some leaders and some lawyers believe that the question can be answered by court action alone. Others contend that definite legislative action is necessary. Still others think that all of the needs of the situation can be met only by both legislative and court action.

One simple step, it is admitted, would be to persuade the legislature to clarify the act now on the books by defining the word year as it appears in the primary statute. But this, it is argued, merely will take care of future elections without straightening out the present situation.

What is considered as the present situation includes not only the mayoralty primaries on Feb. 28, but also the big primaries of 1940, which cover not only state and county offices, but also the presidential preference voting and the election of delegates to the national conventions of both parties. Presidential candidacies might be at stake.

Fate of 100,000 at Stake.

If the political year ruling of 1938 is allowed to stand, the 100,000 or more Republicans who, without a contest of their own, swung over into the Democratic fight, are prohibited from switching back to the Republican party on Feb. 28. Since the 1940 primaries fall on April 9, which is three days short of two calendar years since the primaries of April 12, 1938, the definition of the two year limitation will be the subject of battle again.

But it is considered certain that, regardless of how they voted in 1938, voters who cast their ballots in the primary of one party on Feb. 28 of this year will not be permitted under the present law to vote in the presidential primary of any other party in 1940. The interval is only fourteen months, and it is admitted generally that this period cannot be construed even as two political years.

The experts say that under present conditions the only way for the 1938 voter of one party to change to another party in 1940 will be for him to stay away from the mayoralty polls next month unless some unusual action is taken in the meantime. Even if he abstains from voting on the mayoralty, it is said, he may be barred from switching in 1940 if there is a reversion to the former definition of a year as a calendar year, the meaning established by the general statutes.

Debate City Exemption Issue.

There are some lawyers who argue that municipal primaries do not come under the state primary law. That contention is based on an exception set up for the primary of a party existing within a city only, also described as a purely city political party. Most lawyers, however, disagree with his contention, and a Supreme court decision would be necessary to settle the dispute.

On the whole, Republican leaders are anxious to see the deserters of 1938 freed to return to their own party on Feb. 28. In this way alone, they say, can the party make a full showing of its election strength. It also appears that the leaders of the Democratic organization do not want 100,000 or more Republicans voting in either their 1939 or 1940 primaries. Therefore, there may be some sort of a bipartisan effort to release Republicans from the self-imposed bondage of 1938. It may be court action, legislative action, or both.

Green's Campaign Photograph

Dwight H. Green and his campaign managers have selected this portrait of the former United States district attorney for use in his race for the Republican nomination for mayor.

TENOR JILTED BY OKLAHOMA INDIAN CO-ED

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The refrain for Arthur Ocheltree, 27 years old, operatic tenor, today was "Bring Back My Bonnie to Me."

For, he admitted sadly, Bonnie Bee Berryhill, pretty Creek Indian co-ed at the University of Oklahoma, had returned to her parents in Oklahoma after having flighted her troth.

Ocheltree, a native of Riverside, Cal., and a former music student at the University of Berlin, the Sorbonne, and Italian schools, was perplexed at the sudden, unexplained departure of his bride-to-be.

"She just checked out of her hotel and left town," he said. "No explanation. No nothing. Just left. We were waiting for the legal 72 hours to elapse when she left."

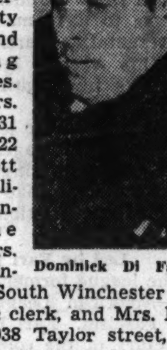
He recently concluded a successful season with the Wagnerian Festival singers, a small concert troupe composed principally of European voices.

BURGLARS RAID TEA STORE.

Herman Mednick, 5407 Drexel avenue, manager of the United Tea company store at 1945 West 51st street, reported to police last night that burglars broke into the store and stole $43 in cash, $75 worth of cigarets, and $15 worth of chewing gum.

JAIL 3 WOMEN IN VOTE FRAUDS; SEIZE FUGITIVE

Three women election officials in the 4th precinct of the 20th ward at the April, 1938, primary, who were sentenced to jail for contempt of court by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, surrendered at the county jail yesterday and began serving their sentences. They are Mrs. Rose Amore, 31 years old, 1122 South Wolcott street, Republican judge, sentenced to one year, and Mrs. Nancy Delmonaco, 27, of 1038 South Winchester avenue, Democratic clerk, and Mrs. Kate Paldo, 25, of 1938 Taylor street, Republican clerk, sentenced to six months each.



Dominick Di Fazio.

Meanwhile election officials reported the arrest of Dominick Di Fazio, 35 years old, who had been sought in connection with alleged election irregularities. State's attorney's police seized him Friday in an ax raid on a handbook at 115 East 14th street. He was arraigned before Judge Jarecki who set his trial Jan. 16. Di Fazio and four others were accused of having served as election officials of the 34th precinct of the 1st ward at the 1936 primary under false names and of having permitted vote frauds.

THOUSANDS FETE GREEN TOMORROW ON 42D BIRTHDAY

Young Republicans Hosts to Mayoral Candidate.

The 42d birthday anniversary of Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, will be observed tomorrow. Green will be the principal guest at a reception in the LaSalle hotel under the sponsorship of the Young Republican organization.

Several thousand invitations to the meeting have been issued. Green will be at the head of the reception line with Charles B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, and Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committeewoman. The receiving hours are from 2 to 5 p. m.

Regular Republican Choice.

Mr. Green is the choice of the Republican county central committee for the mayoralty. He has received pledges of support from nearly all G. O. P. leaders. He was one of the prosecutors of Al Capone and put many other gangsters behind bars when he was an assistant United States district Attorney. He is now in the private practice of law.

He has announced that he will make a vigorous campaign during which he will speak in each of the city's fifty wards.

Prepare Campaign Literature.

Ferre C. Watkins, Green's campaign manager, said yesterday that literature outlining the qualifications of the candidate was being prepared and would be ready in a short time.

"We intend," said Watkins, "to let everybody in Chicago know the record of a man who is qualified in every way to head the city's government. He combines intelligence, friendliness, and ability. Our principal task is to get the people to know him. Once they do, they will vote for him."

An official campaign portrait has been adopted and will soon be distributed.

STRICKEN POTTER BOY GAINS; MOVED TO BE NEAR HOME

Raymond Potter Jr., the boy who apparently is recovering from an attack by a rare and usually fatal disease, was transferred from the Municipal Contagious Disease hospital to the Roseland Community hospital last night. He is suffering from staphylococcus meningitis.

The transfer was made possible by his gains and his family desired that he be near them. The hospital is at 11101 Perry avenue and the Potter home at 11347 Church street.

It was not known last night how long he would remain in the Roseland hospital, but it was expected that he will be removed to his home soon. Raymond is 14 years old. He was stricken more than a month ago. He was given seventeen blood transfusions.

STILLMAN VALLEY WOMAN DIES.

Stillman Valley, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Jessie M. Brown, 82 years old, died at her home here today. Born in Belvidere, she had lived in this community since her marriage to Charles F. Brown in 1879.

LUCAS CAUTIONS DEMOCRATS: HEED VOTERS' REVOLT

Says Nation Desires Legislative Peace.

Scott W. Lucas, the new United States senator from Illinois, speaking at the Jackson day banquet of Illinois Democrats in the Congress hotel last night, said the American people want legislative peace. At the same time he warned of the midwestern reaction against the Democratic party, as shown in the November election.

"The Democratic congress should unite upon a program to employ idle hands and idle capital," he said. "The elimination of all controversial legislation and improvement of the new machinery which has been permanently installed will be approved by the public. I am of the opinion that the people are anxious for legislative peace rather than continued strife."

Admits G. O. P. Gains.

Senator Lucas reviewed the results of the November election by saying:

"Only those with eyes that cannot see and ears that will not hear can ignore the trend of the November election. . . . Certainly no one can gainsay that in the midwest there was not a trend against the Democratic party. Voters were telling us through the secrecy of the ballot that mistakes were made that they did not like. It is up to this Democratic congress to pursue immediately a course of industry and political honesty to meet such an emergency as was manifested through the ballot."

More than 2,500 Democrats attended the dinner, each paying $25 for the privilege. Other speakers included Senator James Hamilton Lewis and Mayor Kelly.

Asks Support of Human Rights.

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Gov. Lehman enjoined the Democratic party tonight to adhere to the time-tried policy of recognizing human needs and respecting civil and religious rights. He spoke to more than 1,000 diners at New York's $50-a-plate Jackson day dinner.

"The Democratic party in the past has adhered to a sound political philosophy," he said. "It has been responsive to the needs and wishes of the people. Our adherence to the policy of making the Democratic party the party of all the people will insure our continued success.

Wallace Issues Plea.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A plea to western progressives to support the Democratic national administration was coupled with an attack on leadership and policies of the Republican party by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in an address at the annual Jackson day Democratic dinner tonight.

Unemployment Biggest Problem.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Frank Murphy, making his first address since he became attorney general, said tonight that unemployment is the nation's most pressing problem and that it becomes more pressing as the challenge of dictatorship grows constantly stronger.

Walsh Defends President.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Asserting "there is no indication anywhere of general repudiation of President Roosevelt," United States Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], at a Jackson day dinner tonight called upon Democrats to "recognize that we may have made some mistakes in administration and method" and to "go forward with renewed vigor."

Calls Laws Adequate.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] told Virginia's $25 a plate Jackson day diners tonight that within the pattern of the Declaration of Independence can be found room for every needed reform in this country. Urging that the Democratic party take the lead in showing the world that Democratic processes are not outmoded, he said further that the institutions of free government are able to meet every issue we have.

Says SEC Is Permanent.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 7.—(AP)Chairman William O. Douglas of the Securities and Exchange commission told a gathering of $25-a-plate Jackson day Democrats tonight that SEC legislation stands as a permanent milestone of a broad liberal advance and a strengthening of the capitalistic system.

DEMOCRATS TRY TO BARGAIN WITH DIES ON RED QUIZ

Seek to End Probe Before 1940 Campaign.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—House Democratic leaders today sought a compromise with Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.] who is asking an appropriation of $150,000 to continue for two years his committee's investigation into un-American activities.

Speaker William B. Bankhead and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn called Dies into conference and told him they would agree to a continuance of the committee inquiry if Dies would consent to a one year extension. An appropriation of $75,000 would be voted the committee under this plan.

The two leaders told Dies that the results of his investigation had caused the Democratic party much harm in last November's elections. Disclosures that members of the communist party and persons with communistic leanings held key positions in the Roosevelt administration caused the defeat of many a Democratic candidate and influenced thousands of voters, they reminded the committee chairman.

Fear for 1940 Campaign.

"All we want to do is keep the investigation out of the 1940 elections," Bankhead and Rayburn told Dies. "Clean up the job this year and make your report next January. We don't want hearings going on during the 1940 campaign. If you'll do that, we'll back your request for more funds."

Dies insisted that his committee would need two years to do a thorough job. It was believed, however, that eventually he will accept the compromise offer.

It was believed the speaker and majority leader acted without consulting President Roosevelt. The President's announcement yesterday that the department of justice was starting an investigation of communist, Nazi, and Fascist activities was regarded by political observers as a move to stifle the Dies committee inquiry. Foes of the committee were given thereby an argument against voting more money for a congressional investigation.

"Whip" Moves for Gag.

Representative Pat Boland of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip, followed up the President's announcement today by expressing a preference for a department of justice investigation.

"I have thought for some time," said Boland, "that the department of justice could do a more effective job of investigating un-American activities. I believe it is the prerogative of the department. I think there would be a certain amount of duplication between a justice department inquiry and a committee inquiry.

"Then, too, the Dies committee has investigated enough to recommend legislation. If legislation is necessary to stop these un-American activities, it should be brought in."

Majority Backs Dies.

Bankhead and Rayburn are believed secretly to favor the inquiry and the disclosures which have been made, but fear, as practical politicians, the harm it may work upon their party in the crucial year of 1940.

Dies said yesterday that he personally had been pledged the support of 100 Democrats in his petition for additional funds. With the Republican minority of 169 expected to vote solidly for continuing the investigation, the Texan would have far more than the needed majority of 218.

These Democratic supporters, however, undoubtedly would side with the speaker and majority leader on the one year compromise, which would help to minimize "Roosevelt and communism" as an issue in 1940.

Refuses to Be Called Off.

Two Democratic members of the Dies committee sought unsuccessfully last October to persuade the chairman to adjourn the hearings until after the November elections. They pleaded with Dies "as a Democrat" to defer further disclosures of the communistic infiltration into the government structure. Dies replied that such a procedure would put the committee on record as placing party before country.

President Roosevelt also attacked the committee for "unfairness" in listening to evidence concerning the inactivity of Frank Murphy, then governor of Michigan, in connection with sitdown strikes in his state.

Murphy, now attorney general, will head the department of justice investigation into subversive activities. Dies commented today that this fact alone argued for a continuance of a congressional investigation in addition to the government inquiry.

CHRISTEN YOUNGEST ROOSEVELT GRANDSON AT WHITE HOUSE FETE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The youngest Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 6 months old, son of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and the former Ethel du Pont, was christened in the executive mansion today.

President Roosevelt, the baby's grandfather, dropped speech writing to go to the Monroe sitting room for the ceremony at 4:30 p. m. The baby wore the white dress President Roosevelt wore at his christening almost fifty-seven years ago. A charm the President's mother wore when she was christened, which has been about the neck of every one of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, was placed by her around the child's neck.

The child's godmother is Mrs. James P. Polk of New York and the two godfathers are J. Drexel Paul Jr. of Philadelphia and D. Eldridge Jackson Jr. of New York. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Julius Walter Atwood, former bishop of Arizona, who is an old friend of the family.

COMMITTEE QUIZ BID IS DECLINED BY FRANKFURTER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard tonight told the senate subcommittee investigating his qualifications to sit on the Supreme court that he would prefer not to testify personally unless developments necessitated it. The committee voted today to hold a public hearing Tuesday on Frankfurter's nomination to the court and wired him an invitation to attend or to be represented by counsel.

Chairman Matthew M. Neely [D., W. Va.] said Frankfurter telephoned him that he would prefer to be represented unless the committee later desired his attendance or unless developments in the hearing made it necessary.

GARNER'S HAND SHOWN IN ICKES' BLAST AT 'ISMS'

Turns on Reds After Texan Protests to White House.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Official Washington buzzed today with the inside story of the cancellation of the speech Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was to have delivered before the American League for Peace and Democracy, a communist front organization.

It was learned that Vice President John Nance Garner rose in wrath when he learned that the radicals planned to use his home—the Washington hotel—as a banquet hall. Garner demanded that the White House gag Ickes.

The Vice President's indignation was stirred by the fact that Secretary Ickes had turned the heat of his office upon Washington hotels to get accommodations for the delegates to the radical meeting, and upon the Washington hotel in particular to lend its banquet hall to the gathering.

Ickes Turns on "Isms."

Ickes retreated before the anger of the acknowledged boss of congress, who daily is mounting in national political stature. Not only did Ickes cancel his speech without explanation, but he sent a letter to the meeting he was to have addressed yesterday in which he assailed all "isms" and declared that neither communism nor Fascism "can be other than abhorrent to democratic people."

The full extent of Ickes' capitulation can be measured by the fact that the announced title of his scheduled address was "Playing with Loaded Dies." Under this feeble pun he was to have made an attack on Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.] and his special house committee which is investigating un-American activities.

Delegates to the league convention looked forward eagerly to what was billed as a pillorying of Dies because the committee had uncovered the communist affiliations of the organization.

Led by Earl Browder.

The league formerly was known as the American League Against War and Fascism. Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in the United States, was vice chairman of the league under its former name and is one of the promoters of the conference now in session here.

Ickes was to have addressed the opening session of the convention last night. He announced his cancellation Wednesday morning and would give no other reason, when he was approached at the White House after a cabinet meeting, other than to say: "The speech has been canceled and that's all there is to it."

Investigation revealed that Ickes went to the front for the communist organization when it encountered difficulty in obtaining a banquet hall and hotel accommodations.

Race Problem Feared.

The organizers had tried to get hotels to accept delegates on a block booking basis, under which they were to take a stated number of beds. Accommodations were being sought for almost 1,000 delegates, including a number of Negroes.

The hotels, knowing that a similar arrangement had brought a race problem in Pittsburgh when the body met under its old name a year ago, refused to book the radicals. The Washington hotel refused its banquet hall. According to reports, the radicals sought the hotel because it is the residence of Vice President Garner.

When they failed in their efforts to get accommodations, the promoters of the gathering appealed to Ickes. The secretary forced the hotel men to call a meeting and threatened to turn on the full heat of the government if they did not make accommodations available. The hotel men yielded and arranged for accommodations, although principally in the smaller hotels.

While Ickes was fighting the group's battles, word was brought to Vice President Garner that the banquet Ickes was to address was to be held within hearing of his suite. The sage of Uvalde, Tex., summoned Speaker William B. Bankhead and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, a fellow Texan, and sent them to the White House with a warm protest.

This brought results. Ickes canceled his speech and the hotel canceled the banquet. The communist front gathering went to a darkened theater to hear a speaking program which included the reading of Ickes' letter, which was in a vein distasteful to the ears of the radical membership.

DEATH PLOTTING WIFE AND BIRGER GANGSTER MAKE PAROLE PLEAS

Art Newman.

Mrs. Vera Carl, a principal in the fortune teller murder case of several years ago, is among twenty-one convicts in Illinois who will seek executive clemency at hearings to be started Tuesday by the pardon and parole board in Springfield. Eight of the others also were convicted in Cook county.

Mrs. Carl was sentenced in July, 1923, to fourteen years in prison for her part in the plot which resulted in the slaying of her husband, George, a grocer at 2511 South Pulaski road. The murder, which occurred a year before, had gone unsolved until the police learned that Mrs. Carl had visited a fortune teller, who predicted her husband's death.

Art Newman, member of the notorious Birger gang of southern Illinois who is serving sentences for three murders, is one of the applicants. Newman was convicted in Williamson county in 1929. He is serving two sentences of 57 years each and one life term in the Joliet prison. He has frequently sought clemency.

TOM J. MOONEY IS PARDONED BY GOV. C. L. OLSON

Freed After 22 Years in Prison for Murder.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Thomas J. Mooney was pardoned today by Gov. Culbert L. Olson of California after serving twenty-two years in prison for the murder of ten persons in the bombing of the Preparedness day parade in San Francisco in 1916.

Earlier in the day Mooney, now 56 years old, had been freed from San Quentin prison and had motored here accompanied by members of his family.

Shortly before noon Olson, first Democratic governor of California in forty-four years and whose campaign platform included a promise to pardon Mooney, formally freed the prisoner in the state assembly chamber in a setting of movie cameras and microphones.

Declares Mooney Innocent.

"I am convinced," Gov. Olson said, "that Mooney is innocent, that he was convicted on perjured testimony and is entitled to pardon."

The governor also said he had received word from a former Mooney attorney that police and a private detective informed him they had shadowed Mooney the day of the bombing and that there was no evidence he was connected with the crime.

He turned to Mooney and said:

"I have signed and I now hand to you, Tom Mooney, this final and unconditional pardon. I now instruct Warden [Court] Smith to now release you to the freedom which I expect you to exercise with the high ideals I have tried to indicate."

Mooney Wants Billings Freed.

While the audience applauded Mooney shook hands with the governor.

"I am not unmindful of the significance of this occasion," he said. "I am aware that this is not the case of an individual charged with murder, but one that symbolizes the whole economic order."

Turning to Gov. Olson, he continued: "I intend to dedicate my life to remove the shame from the state of California by working for the release of my co-sufferer—Warren K. Billings."

Mooney after his conviction was sentenced to be hanged. In 1918 his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, the same punishment that was meted out to his co-defendant, Billings, who also has been in prison for 22 years.

Billings listened today to the pardon proceedings over a radio in the office of the prison warden.

"I don't see how anyone who heard Gov. Olson's speech can figure out any reason why I should be kept in prison," was his comment.

Billings Applies for Pardon.

Under California law Billings can be pardoned only on a recommendation of the Supreme court because he had been convicted of a previous felony. George T. Davis, Mooney's attorney, said a notice of intention to apply for a pardon for Billings was filed with District Attorney Matthew Brady at San Francisco Jan. 3, and that the application was signed today by Billings. The application will be presented to Gov. Olson and then submitted to the Supreme court for recommendation. If the court recommends the pardon, the governor can issue or deny one, but if the court opposes it the governor cannot free him.

"The month of July, 1916," the governor said, "had ended with a bomb explosion, and it was a fuse bomb left in a railroad train by three Mexicans."

Mooney Insists He Was Framed.

The bombing occurred on July 22, 1916. Ten persons were killed and forty injured. Mooney had insisted that he was "framed." The prosecution charged that he was an anarchist. For years a fight was waged to free Mooney. It finally was carried to the United States Supreme court, but that tribunal refused to act.

Following the hearing Gov. Olson and Mooney lunched together in a hotel. The governor then addressed 130,000 persons at an inaugural barbecue at the fair grounds here. During the speech Olson became ill and was taken to a hospital where it was said his condition, which was attributed to emotional upset, was not serious.

After lunching with the governor Mooney sped to Folson prison where he met and embraced Billings in the warden's office. Mooney grasped Billings' hand and said, "Lots of luck, and I hope it won't be long until we're out there together." Laughing, Billings said, "Well, I hope it will be soon, because I am getting impatient."

In San Francisco today, Edward A. Cunha, assistant district attorney who convicted Mooney, said: "Mooney is guilty as hell and should have been hanged. That is my belief as an official and I stand by it. As an individual, however, I have no objection if they want to pardon him."

DIES OF CAR INJURIES.

Peru, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—George N. Clymer, 78 years old, a carpenter, living in Bloomfield, died in Dukes Memorial hospital today of injuries incurred last night when struck by an automobile driven by B. L. Faulkner.

permission to present the charges to the jury.

One count in the indictments accused Lawrence of having blackmailed and extorted $5,000 from Spurgeon Bowser, former president of the Pioneer Materials company. Linked with this charge was another which alleged that Lawrence violated election laws when, as chairman of the state committee, he received the $5,000 and did not turn it over to the committee treasurer.

Another charge accused Lawrence and the late John J. Verona, a Pittsburgh contractor, of having conspired to defraud the commonwealth through the sale of inferior gravel for state construction work and of conspiring to obtain unlawful contracts from the state. Conspiracy to induce other state officials to commit unlawful acts also was charged.

A statement issued from Democratic headquarters in Pittsburgh quoted Lawrence as saying: "I am not guilty of these charges, and I expect a vindication in court."

Jury Tells of Delays.

The jury informed Judge Schaeffer that its investigation had been delayed for eight months as a result of maneuvers by Earle.

Although repudiated in the November election, Democratic state officers still were in office last Tuesday when the newly elected legislature convened. Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, a henchman of John L. Lewis, dictator of the C. I. O., presided over the senate and piloted through a series of maneuvers which gave all senate jobs to Democrats.

It is expected that Samuel S. Lewis, incoming Republican lieutenant governor, will remove all these jobholders when he takes office.

One of Kennedy's moves in his attempt to keep Democrats in control of the senate was to defy a court order which forbade the seating of Herbert S. Levin, a Democrat whose election was contested.

Republicans were able to elect a president pro tem when a Democrat voted with them. Then the Democrat switched back for the vote on jobs, a tie resulted, and Kennedy cast the deciding ballot.

C. I. O. DIRECTOR PAYS $250 FINE FOR LABOR TIEUP

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Lester Washburn, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America and leader of the Lansing "labor holiday" in June, 1937, paid a fine and costs amounting to $250 here today. Washburn, arrested shortly after he called a general strike of C. I. O. unionists whose "flying squadrons" forced closing of all businesses and tied up downtown trafic, paid the fine after the United States Supreme court refused to review the case.

CHICAGO POLES GATHER IN HONOR OF KOSCIUSZKO

Bonds of Liberty Extolled by Speakers.

Five thousand Chicagoans of Polish ancestry gathered last night at the Stevens hotel in the name of Thaddeus Kosciuszko, Polish hero of the American revolutionary war.

They attended what was described as a Night in Poland, a gay pageant of native dances and song. The purpose was to raise funds for the Kosciuszko Foundation, which provides for the exchange of professors and students between the United States and Poland.

Earlier at a reception of 500 Polish leaders and other prominent citizens the bonds of liberty, freedom, and patriotism existing between the two countries were recalled by several speakers. Among them were Count Jerzy Potocki, the Polish ambassador to the United States; Waclaw Gawronski, Polish consul general in Chicago; Mayor Kelly and Chauncey McCormick.

Mayor Presented with Cross.

Mayor Kelly was presented with the Officers' Cross of Polonia Restituta, the highest award given by Poland for service to her government or people. Mr. McCormick, who organized food relief for Poland during the bolshevik aggression, is a wearer of the cross.

In his address, Count Potocki recalled that 500,000 Chicagoans claim Poland as their native land or the land of their fathers. This great immigration began, he said, at a time when Poland was engulfed by alien oppression.

"We in Poland are proud of the Poles who have now become citizens of the United States," Count Potocki declared. "They are faced with no conflict. The spiritual values of Poland, its traditional love of liberty and freedom, its perseverance in the pursuits of justified aims, are not alien to the spirit and to the traditions of America. These spiritual values supply the driving force of our efforts and the keynote of our policies."

Ventures a Prophecy.

Count Potocki ventured a prophecy for the new year in war-torn Europe. The most important feature of the year, he said, will be a contest, not necessarily of wills and arms, but "a contest of nerves in which the nations which are calm and conscious of their strength and of their cause, will ultimately win."

Recalling the ideals for which free governments strive, Mayor Kelly, in his talk, declared that Chicagoans of Polish descent have held to this heritage of their country. And in so doing, he said, they have forged international bonds of friendship.

"We will never make truce with tyranny," the mayor said. "You and I are of the belief that political democracy is worth fighting for, and we are dedicated to making that democracy work. You and I know that our mental, moral, and political progress must revere the traditions and follow the standards first breathed into a free government, the enduring faith that liberated Poland and that liberated America."

Tells Experiences in Poland.

Mr. McCormick spoke briefly of his experiences while providing food for starving Poland, then besieged by the Bolsheviks. He spoke of the help and inspiration furnished by Marshall Pilsudski and Ignace Paderewski, and of the occasion when he became the first American soldier, on active duty, to lay a wreath on the tomb of Kosciuszko.

Julius Smetanka was toastmaster at the reception. Among the others were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas Bona, pastor of St. Mary Perpetual Health church; Dr. Rapal Lepkowski, secretary to the Polish embassy; Jason F. Whitney; Charles E. Brown; Walter J. Cummings; James B. McCahey; Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to Poland; Rear Admiral Hayne T. Ellis, and Maj. Gen. Stanley Ford.

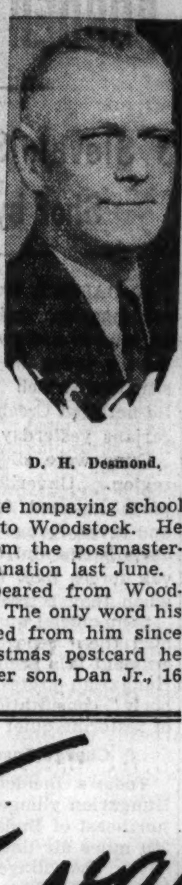
SCHOOL HEADS STUDY OFFICIAL'S TANGLED AFFAIRS

School trustees in Hartland township, McHenry county, yesterday continued their investigation of the tangled affairs of Daniel H. Desmond, former Woodstock postmaster who disappeared nearly two months ago. On Friday an $8,891 shortage was uncovered in the school funds.



D. H. Desmond.

Desmond was treasurer of the school district for twenty years before 1934, when he received the appointment as postmaster; then he continued in the nonpaying school job after moving to Woodstock. He was dismissed from the postmastership without explanation last June.

Desmond disappeared from Woodstock on Nov. 15. The only word his family has received from him since then was a Christmas postcard he sent to his younger son, Dan Jr., 16 years old.

HUNGARIANS FIRE ON CROWD IN NEW BORDER INCIDENT

3 Slovak Sympathizers Shot by Police.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Hungarian police wounded three persons in a crowd of Slovak sympathizers today in the uneasy border situation which precipitated a battle between Czecho-Slovaks and Hungarians yesterday at Munkacs.

Guns were silent in the Munkacs region. Unverified Hungarian reports asserted forty Czecho-Slovaks and seven Hungarians died in yesterday's battle and that the Czecho-Slovak forces took hostages with them when they retreated.

Semi-official quarters in Prague denied these reports. The Czech government in a preliminary reply to the Hungarian protest suggested "neighborly" consultations on the question of restoring quiet in the frontier zone.

Charge Insult to Horthy.

Today's incident occurred in the Hungarian village of Komarom-Csehi, northeast of Budapest and more than 200 miles air line southwest of Munkacs. The village is near the city of Komarom. The police fired five shots.

The shooting occurred as officers were arresting a man on a charge of insulting Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary.

The police reported that a crowd of 150 persons, "excited by Slovak agitation from across the border," attacked them with sticks and stones and that they shot in self-defense.

At Munkacs, a city of 30,000 in the territory awarded Hungary from Czecho-Slovakia Nov. 2 by Italo-German mediators in a post-Munich territorial settlement, there was no resumption of hostilities even though the truce arranged yesterday by military authorities ended at 1 p. m. [6 a. m. Chicago time].

Mixed Commission Meets.

A mixed commission established to fix responsibility for yesterday's conflict, in which Munkacs was shelled by the Czecho-Slovaks, met for an hour without reaching any conclusions.

Hungarians reported their own inquiry established that 1,000 Czecho-Slovak soldiers took part in the attack, which, the Hungarians charged, was planned by a former Czecho-Slovak military commander of the city. They asserted he chose yesterday as the occasion for the assault because he wished to make his country a "Christmas present of the city."

[The Orthodox Christmas, based on the Julian calendar, is thirteen days later than Christmas according to the Gregorian calendar.]

An official Czech statement contended that the border was crossed from both sides.

Nazis Call Frontier "Final."

In Berlin, Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz, semi-official mouthpiece of the foreign office, declared the new frontier between Hungary and Czecho-Slovakia was final.

BUS DRIVER FINDS $1,490; PROMISED 'SOMETHING BIG'

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Joe McConaghny, a bus driver, was giving his bus the once over today when he found a shabby black lether bag stuffed with cash totaling $1,490, fistfuls of checks and a bank book showing $8,000 deposits.

McConaghny, who has three children and a wife to support, shut the tattered bag and started north to hand the treasure to his superior at the other end of the line.

It was claimed by Mrs. Fannie Erlich, 55 years old, a widow who operates a real estate office. She gave honest Joe McConaghny $10, adding: "That's just a start. I'm going to do something big for him."

Tries Holdup Where He Is Well Known; Arrested

Allen Davis, 39 years old, a railroad fireman, was seized last night as he was holding two guns up to A. Pelsner in the latter's grocery at 2733 West 63d street. Detectives Ray McCahill and John Gallagher, who made the arrest, said Davis should have known better. They recognized him. He lives at 3509 West 63d street, which is next door to the Chicago Lawn station. He was kept there for the night. Police said he had been drinking.

Shrine Winter Circus Draws 130,000 in Week

Attendance at the second annual Shrine winter circus which opened New Year's eve in the International Amphitheater yesterday reached 130,000. This was 50,000 more than in the same period last year. The show, which includes acts from the five leading circuses of the country, will close next Sunday.

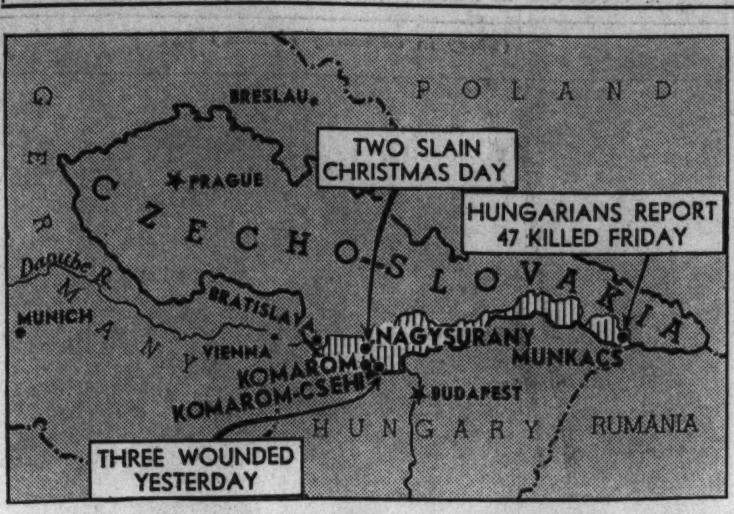
Czech-Hungarian Tension Increases



The Czech government yesterday proposed "neighborly" consultations with Hungary in an effort to end border clashes which have resulted from the cession of Czech territory to Hungary (vertical lined area). The captions in the map locate the scenes of three of the most serious of these clashes.

LOST IN QUAKE IN 1906; RETURNS TO SEE MOTHER

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 7.—[U. P.]—James H. Whaley, one of six children of Mrs. Clara C. Whaley, was reunited with his mother today after becoming separated from her and his brothers and sisters during the San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906.

Whaley was 14 years old when the fire destroyed the family home and somehow—the family never did know—got lost in the shuffle and was never heard from again. Recently, however, he located the family through a clew found in a city directory and informed them he was coming home for a visit.

Whaley works for the North Western railway in Council Bluffs, Ia., is married and has two grown daughters. One daughter has a child.

His mother recognized him as he stepped from the train today. "I'd have known him anywhere," she cried happily. "It's still Jim."

LAUNCHES PURGE OF 4 BOARDS IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Massachusetts' return to Republican rule after eight years of Democratic government tonight saw the spotlight of special inquiry and criticism trained on at least four state branches—education, civil service, racing, and the unemployment compensation commission.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, who took over the reins of government Thursday, made undisclosed charges against Race Commissioners George G. Moyse, a former Republican senator, and Thomas R. Foley, a young Boston attorney. Saltonstall announced a public hearing on the ouster proceedings would be held Tuesday.

At the same time, Educational Commissioner James G. Reardon, named to his post in 1935 by Democratic Gov. James M. Curley, defied Saltonstall and declared he was ready to meet any charges.

FIRST BATTLESHIP OF HITLER NAVY IS PUT INTO SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WILHELMSHAVEN, Germany, Jan. 7.—The first battleship of Germany's new navy, the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst, was placed in commission here today with a crew of 1,460 officers and men under the command of Capt. Ciliax.

Launched on Oct. 3, 1936, in the presence of Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the Scharnhorst has a main armament of nine 11-inch guns in triple turrets and twelve 6-inch guns in twin turrets as well as thirty anti-aircraft guns. She has two hydroplane catapults.

Capt. Ciliax thanked Hitler in an address to the crew. Hitler's "iron determination," he said, is responsible for Germany's new naval force. He recalled that the signal given from the original Scharnhorst before the British sank her in battle near the Falkland Islands during the world war was "follow the leader."

"CALLING CAR 42.. BAD ACCIDENT AT MAIN AND 4TH"

This can happen TO YOU! But why risk it?

To drive, even another day, in a car without the extra protection you get in a Hudson is a risk you'll never want to take once you know the facts. Read about the two great exclusive safety features described below—then come in and see everything else you get in a 1939 Hudson. New Salon Interior. New Handy Shift at the steering wheel. New Dash-Locking Safety Hood that locks from a lever inside the car so battery and engine parts are safe from theft. Enjoy the amazing comfort of the sensational new Airfoam Ride. For the sake of safety and lasting satisfaction—investigate!

YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE AUTO-POISE CONTROL

WHY? Because this revolutionary mechanical invention (patent applied for) automatically helps to keep wheels on their course—on rough roads, in heavy side winds, even when a tire blows. The operation of AUTO-POISE CONTROL does not require special tires, tubes or extra equipment of any kind. It is a built-in feature—STANDARD AT NO EXTRA COST on all 1939 Hudson passenger cars; no other car has anything like it.

IF HYDRAULIC BRAKES SHOULD FAIL!
YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE DOUBLE-SAFE BRAKES

WHY? Because, even if hydraulics should suddenly fail through accident or service neglect, the driver of a Hudson just pushes farther on the same foot pedal and STOPS. Thanks to Hudson's exclusive Double-Safe Brakes—two braking systems (finest Bendix Hydraulics and a separate reserve mechanical system) working automatically from the same foot pedal. Many letters in our files tell of accidents prevented by Double-Safe Brakes, standard in all 1939 Hudsons.

FRANCO RUSHES TROOPS TO STEM LOYALIST DRIVE

2 Strategic Towns Fall in Southwestern Spain.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], Jan. 7.—(AP)—Gen Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel commander in chief, was reported tonight to be rushing reinforcements to the Estremadura front in southwestern Spain in an effort to halt a government drive which apparently was gaining momentum.

Government troops were said to have advanced approximately twenty-one miles in three days. The attack was intended to relieve insurgent pressure on Catalonia, in the northeast, where Franco's command reported important successes.

Late in the afternoon the government reported capture of the communications centers of Peraleda de Saucejo and Fuente Ovejuna, in the region about 170 miles southwest of Madrid. Barcelona advices said the drive thus far had resulted in capture of 250 square miles of insurgent territory.

Fight Through Mountains.

To the south, government troops approximately fifteen miles north of Cordoba were fighting their way westward through the Sierra de Morena.

The insurgents reported, however, that the diversion attempted by the loyalists in the southwest had failed to check the rebel drive against Barcelona, provisional government capital in the northeast.

Gen. Franco has ordered the insurgent fleet, previously stationed near Gibraltar, to support the Catalonian drive possibly by shelling Tarragona, a major seaport about fifty miles southwest of Barcelona. Maneuvering by land and sea threatened to make Tarragona the target of a converging land offense and naval assault at the same time.

Village Hemmed In.

The rebel drive extended from the vicinity of Artesa, which fell during the week, southward to the Falset-Tarragona road area, apparently at no point closer than sixty miles to Barcelona.

The principal point of insurgent infantry and artillery pressure was in the Sierra de la Llena where an army division was said to have hemmed in the village of Ulldemolins, about twenty-five miles northwest of Tarragona on a highway descending to Reus and the Tarragona coast. This division, part of the southern wing of the offensive, had swung about ten miles eastward from Granadella in a week.

Fog Slows Advance.

Foggy weather slowed the insurgent advances east of the Segre river toward the fertile Urgel tableland.

Insurgents based on Lerida pushed beyond Borjas Blancas, southeast of Lerida, to the village of Vinaixa, about twenty-five miles from Tarragona and sixty miles west of Barcelona. Borjas Blanchas fell on Thursday.. Fanning out from Artesa on the northern flank, the insurgents reported capture of Doncel, five miles southeast of Artesa.

Prince Takes Bride

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Prince Alexis Obolensky II. and his bride, the former Miss Jane Wheeler Irby of New Orleans, La.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Prince Alexis Obolensky II., son of a royal Russian family socially prominent in New York, and his bride, the former Miss Jane Wheeler Irby, wealthy debutante, arrived here today on their honeymoon.

Dr. and Mrs. George D. Lilly of Miami Beach, mother and stepfather of the bride, announced the marriage was performed yesterday in Mannasas, Va.

Princess Obolensky is the granddaughter of the late William Radcliff Irby, former president of the old Canal Bank and Trust company, New Orleans. She made her debut in 1935, and met the prince, who was in New Orleans working for an industrial plant, at her debut party.

NAZIS ROUND UP JEWS IN DRIVE TO HURRY EXILE

U. S. Envoy Presses Italy for Aid to Semites.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—A roundup of Jews who have failed to leave the country within the time limit fixed in expulsion orders issued against them or whose attempts to emigrate are deemed insufficiently strong by the police is under way in Germany.

Those concerned include both German Jews and Jews without citizenship. The number of Jews still in Germany illegally is estimated variously from several hundreds to several thousands.

The roundup is likely to continue for some days. Among those arrested are Polish Jews, whom Poland has deprived of citizenship, who were given time limits to leave, but have been unable to obtain visas for any country; Jews without citizenship, who failed to obtain German residential permits, and German Jews, who were given passports to emigrate, but who still are in Germany.

U. S. Envoy Sees Ciano.

ROME, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A brief conference today between United States Ambassador William Phillips and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano spurred hope that President Roosevelt's memorandum to Premier Mussolini on the Jewish question would produce concrete results.

A reliable source said the ambassador was assured that, although no decision had been reached, the Fascist government was studying sympathetically the President's suggestion that Il Duce use his influence for a general settlement of Europe's refugee problem.

Informed quarters said Mussolini could not be expected to communicate his specific views until he had determined what contribution other nations, especially Germany, would make toward a solution.

May Offer Ethiopia as Haven.

The Fascist government already had hinted its willingness to offer a haven in Ethiopia, under certain conditions, for Jews.

It was thought Italian officials might discuss a solution of the Jewish problem with Walther Funk, Germany's minister of economics, who arrived today for talks with leaders in finance and economics. Among those who greeted Funk was Felice Guarnieri, Italian minister of finance. The German's conversations will deal chiefly with Italo-German trade relations. They were expected to last three days.

At the instance of President Roosevelt, Mussolini was approached to use his good offices with Reichsfuehrer Hitler over the Jewish problem.

Phillips conferred with Il Duce Tuesday and reports from Berlin said Mussolini had communicated with Hitler by telephone. This led to the belief that he would suggest a compromise to a German proposal for financing Jewish emigration through increased purchases of German goods abroad.

Fascists Attack Church.

Regime Fascista, Fascist extremist newspaper, charged that the Roman Catholic church was trying to shelter Italian Jews through their conversion to Christianity.

The newspaper, edited by Roberto Farinacci, member of the Fascist grand council, accused the church of falsifying dates of baptism to make conversions retroactive."

It failed to explain how this would aid Jews, since Italy's anti-Semitic legislation makes race rather than religion the basis for discrimination.

Regime Fascista said that, while only 300 Jews were baptized during the 19th century in Italy, several thousands had been baptized in recent months. The only reason for these conversions, it asserted, was to place Jews under the protection of the holy see and L'Osservatore Romano [Vatican City newspaper].

CHINA WAR SPLITS JAPS IN HAWAII; YOUTH VS. AGE

Older Generation Sends Cash to Aid Homeland.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The shadow cast by the conflict in the Orient has fallen between the older and younger generations of Japanese in Hawaii.

Some members of the younger generation disclosed recently that they had been kept in ignorance of the activities of their elders in behalf of Japanese soldiers fighting on the Chinese front.

One of the motives of the elders in keeping quiet about their activities in behalf of the homeland, the youngsters said, was a desire to avoid "arguments" with their sons and daughters. The elders also were said to have sought to avoid incurring the enmity of Americans.

U. S. Opens Inquiry.

Nevertheless, some Japanese sources reported, the elders have accentuated this division of loyalties by fresh instances of active support of the homeland.

The United States Securities and Exchange administration recently launched an inquiry into reports that 1,000,000 yen worth of Japanese emergency bonds were to be offered for sale in Hawaii without SEC registration, a legal requisite for such public offerings.

One Japanese newspaperman reported that "gifts" of the Hawaiian Japanese to their government were "staggering." He said rural Japanese on Oahu Island, on which Honolulu is situated, had donated money to buy seven heavy duty trucks for shipment to Japan.

Chief sponsors of such projects, reliable sources said, were old time Japanese residents, recently arrived Japanese priests, and Japanese naval officers passing through Honolulu on tankers or other vessels.

Cash Donations Solicited.

Japanese sources said the movement toward support of the Japanese army began with the making of sennin bari [shirts with 1,000 stitches]. These supposedly served as charms to prevent death or injury to soldiers at the front. As the war went on sennin bari was dropped in favor of making imon buxuro [comfort bags].

While appeals at present are directed for comfort bags, the trend is more and more toward soliciting actual cash for shipment to Japan either in the form of cash or heavy goods, suitable for war purposes.

Younger Japanese and Chinese here say there is no bitterness in their circles over the Chinese-Japanese war. Their parents say the same thing publicly, but there can be no doubt but that there is considerable dislike among many of the elders.

The Japanese constitute by far the largest racial group in the islands. The 1931 figures showed a total of 368,336 persons in Hawaii, of whom 139,631 were Japanese, 81,153 whites, 63,052 Filipinos, 27,179 Chinese, and 50,860 Hawaiians.

D'Orsay Palmer Given More Time to Pay Lawyer

Sarasota, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Circuit Judge George W. Whitehurst today granted Potter d'Orsay Palmer, heir of a prominent Chicago family, additional time in which to pay $10,000 to attorneys for his third wife, Mrs. Pauline Warren Palmer, who recently divorced him. Judge Whitehurst signed an order amending the original final divorce decree which directed Palmer to pay the $10,000 attorneys' fees within fifteen days. The decree also gave Mrs. Palmer $250 a month alimony. The new order gave Palmer until Jan. 15 to pay the attorneys' fees. Alimony must be paid before the 10th day of each month. Palmer married a fourth time several days after his third wife divorced him.

75 Seniors Take Armour Scholarship Examinations

Seventy-five high school seniors who are to be graduated in February took competitive examinations yesterday for five one year scholarships at the Armour Institute of Technology. The scholarships, available to young men only, are valued at $300 each. The recipients will be announced within two weeks. After the examinations yesterday the candidates were guests of the institute at a luncheon in the student union. Greetings were extended by President H. T. Heald, Dean C. A. Tibbals, and Tom Collier, president of the Interfraternity council.

BLONDES
Light Hair Requires Special Shampoo to Keep it Golden

TO keep blonde hair from darkening, fading and losing its attractiveness, it is always necessary to wash it with particular care. A shampoo suitable for dark or auburn hair may quickly ruin the charm of golden hair. New Blondex, the shampoo for blondes only, helps preserve the natural golden beauty of light hair, washes it shades lighter and brings out the glorious, shimmering radiance that can make blonde hair so attractive. You'll be amazed and delighted with the results of even the first shampoo. Blondex leaves the hair fluffy, soft and lustrous. Costs but little to use. Absolutely safe! Nothing better for children's hair. Get Blondex today at any good store.

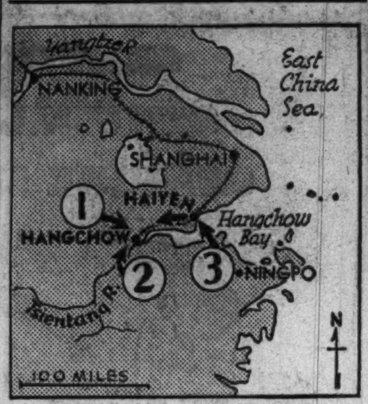
Chinese Attack City



From three directions yesterday Chinese troops began an offensive against the city of Hangchow in an area which has seen little fighting for a year and was considered largely under Japanese control. While one force moved in from the west (1), another crossed the Tsientang river to advance from the south (2), and a third landed in Haiyen (3) after crossing Hangchow bay.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7.—(AP)—After a lull of more than a year, the Chinese launched a surprise offensive on Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, with sudden attacks today from three directions. Hangchow is about 100 miles southwest of Shanghai and has been held by the Japanese since late in 1937.

The Japanese said the Chinese 63d division had crossed the Tsientang river ten miles southwest of Hangchow, while other Chinese units moved in from the west, almost cutting off the city from the interior. A third Chinese force crossed Hangchow bay and landed at Haiyen, forty miles northeast of Hangchow.

The initial attacks were repulsed, Japanese asserted, but severe fighting still was going on. Japanese planes were bombing the Chinese.

Chinese prisoners disclosed that Chinese inside Hangchow had plotted to aid in the offensive, the Japanese asserted. A cache of arms and munitions was said to have been seized by Japanese authorities.

JUDGE REFUSES TO DISMISS SPY CASE IN PANAMA

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States government today rested its case against Ernst Kuhrig, a German who is accused of spying. Judge Bunk Gardner denied a defense motion for dismissal.

The government had submitted evidence to show that Kuhrig entered the Fort Randolph reservation Oct. 16 with Hans Friedich Schackow, another German. He later was convicted Dec. 14 of photographing fortifications.

Other evidence was submitted to show that Kuhrig attempted to rent a small fishing boat, allegedly to approach the reservation from the sea.

A SCIENTIST HITS A SOUR NOTE FOR ARTISTS OF PIANO

Says Touch Doesn't Affect Tone Quality.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Sensitive English musical circles smarted today under the crushing assertion of Sir James Jeans that so far as a single piano note is concerned it makes no difference whether the key is struck with an umbrella or the finger of a Paderewski.

Sir James Jeans.

The famous scientist did nothing to further the harmonious wedding of arts and science in an address, "A Scientist Looks at Music." He spoke before the English Music Teachers' association.

Scorns the Artist Touch.

Sir James assailed a prevalent belief that a talented pianist can put almost any emotion he wishes into a note by the manner in which he strikes the key. American scientists, he argued, through photographs of sound waves produced by leading pianists, learned they could exactly match these waves by dropping weights on the keyboard.

"The moral for the piano teacher," said Sir James, "is that so far as single notes are concerned it does not matter how the pupil strikes the key, so long as he strikes it with the requisite degree of force.

Pianist Has a Hot Answer.

"If this is right, the tone quality will be the same whether he strikes it with his fingers or even the end of his umbrella. As far as the scientist can see, that is all there is to the much debated problem of piano touch."

Nettled musicians were quick to disagree, despite the fact that Sir James is professor of astronomy of the Royal institution, a member of the Advisory Council for Scientific Research, and the author of many scientific works. One musician, Mark Hambourg, who is a noted pianist, replied hotly:

"Sir James' statement is absolute nonsense. He is a very eminent scientist—let him stick to his science. Delicacy of touch is all a matter of muscular control. It is impossible to get it other than through fingers."

FARMERS FIGHT BRITISH SYSTEM OF CROP CONTROL

Protests on Subsidies Paid Pile Up.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—From all corners of the British Isles protests are pouring into the ministry of agriculture over the government's attempt to control farming.

Irish live stock raisers, Scotch barley growers and English and Welsh wheat farmers are protesting the classifications under which they receive subsidies.

Unlike Secetary of Agriculture Henry Wallace's scheme to curtail farm production in America, the British program has the opposite purpose. Since free trade was abandoned in 1931, successive British governments have attempted to make the islands self-sufficient in the production of foodstuffs.

Encourage Certain Crops.

This program has taken the form of encouraging farmers to grow certain crops by paying subsidies and offering price insurance.

The subsidies, or deficiency payments for wheat, are about four times greater than the deficiency payments for such cereal crops as oats and barley. Thus, the ordinary farmer prefers to concentrate on wheat rather than on cereals, and the goal of a balanced agriculture has not been achieved.

If the farmer should grow both crops, he is eligible for subsidy on only one. Many, therefore, lose on cereal prices what they might gain on wheat.

Hit Unequal Distribution.

Protests also have been received by W. S. Morrison, minister of agriculture, that the payments are distributed unequally between Scotland and England and that Irish pig raisers suffer because the price of fodder has been forced up.

In East Yorkshire, resentment has developed to the point of calling for a national demonstration in London against the government's farm program.

Behind this dissatisfaction is the declining state of British agriculture and the government's attempts to insure self-sufficiency in time of war.

From 1914 to 1936, the cultivated land in England and Wales decreased 1,885,000 acres. The migration from country to city decreased the number of farm laborers by 228,000.

During this time wheat acreage remained about the same, but the yield fell slightly. In addition to wheat, corn, and green crop, production decreased in an era when scientific agriculture was making great headway in the world, especially in America.

In the last few years, a similar fall has been recorded in live stock production. This was accelerated by the severe epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease which lost cattle farmers a million and one-half dollars, and swine, sheep, and poultry diseases.

Orchard Areas Decrease.

In the last thirty years, barley and hay production has fallen off one-third and one-sixth respectively. The areas devoted to orchards also have decreased.

The most recent statistics on farm income indicate that the average farm family earned about $1,800 in 1936, but that one in every five showed small losses.

Farm wages have increased, but the increased use of agricultural machinery has made fewer laborers necessary.

The redressment and self-sufficiency policies of the government, inaugerated in 1931 were crticised in a recent report compiled under the direction of Viscount Astor and B. Seebohm Rountree.

It criticises the farm formula of gauging the degree of prosperity by the number of farm laborers and the amount of cereal crops under acreage.

PARIS HAILS VISIT OF CHAMBERLAIN ON WAY TO ROME

Sees British Stirred by Daladier's Triumph.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The announcement that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of Great Britain would stop over in Paris on their way to Rome on Tuesday for a brief visit with Premier Edouard Daladier and Georges Bonnet, foreign minister, was hailed with great satisfaction by French political circles.

They want the British statesmen to be warned against being drawn into any discussion of Italy's claims on French possessions during their talks with Premier Mussolini.

Daladier, who returned to France today after a triumphal tour of Tunisia, was reported to be planning a special session of the supreme war council for Monday to emphasize France's determination not to cede any territory.

The premier, in a radio address from his home in Orange, assured the nation, however, that his policies would "spare France the horrors of war."

Visit More than Coincidence.

In the opinion of political observers here, there is more than coincidence in the fact that Chamberlain is to stop in Paris after, rather than before, Daladier's visit to Corsica, Algeria, and Tunisia.

The British prime minister is thought to have been duly impressed by the scope and spontaneity of the loyal demonstrations which marked the premier's trip and also by the strength of French military establishments in Africa.

The opinion also was expressed that doubts which might have existed in the capitals of Europe about the readiness of France to defend its African holdings ought to be effectively removed by now.

Won't Imitate Italy.

Daladier and Bonnet are expected to point out that France, while returning a firm "no" to the Italian ambitions, does not wish to imitate the uncompromising tone in which the Fascist campaign has been conducted.

In this connection it is observed that the Italian government, apart from denouncing the 1935 Laval-Mussolini accord, has taken no official steps nor has it put forward any basis for negotiation.

The announcement that the officials would stop here apparently proves false the unconfirmed rumor in some diplomatic circles that the British were favorably disposed to the German suggestion that both adopt a "hands off" attitude in the Franco-Italian situation. It does not seem likely that if the British ministers were agreeable to such an arrangement they would go out of their way to stress Anglo-French solidarity on the eve of their talks with Il Duce.

Continues Preparedness.

France, however, is continuing its careful campaign of military preparedness and nation-wide propaganda. Another battalion of Senegalese infantrymen left Marseilles yesterday for French Somaliland to reënforce the garrison keeping watch on the borders of Italian Eritrea and Ethiopia.

Paris movie houses which reopened today after a two day strike against city taxes, featured extensive newsreel coverage of Daladier's voyage.

Famed Beauty Weds

[Associated Press Photo.]

Mrs. William B. Ansted Jr., the former Miss Virginia Judd,

Indianapolis, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Miss Virginia Judd, considered one of America's most beautiful models, and William B. Ansted Jr., wealthy Indianapolis business man, were married today at the home here of Ansted's sister, Mrs. Lindley E. Clark. The couple left immediately for a west coast honeymoon. Relatives said they were expected to return after Feb. 1.

ITALIANS ORDER A BOYCOTT OF ADDIS ABABA LINE

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Travelers reaching Djibouti from Ethiopia today reported Italian authorities have ordered a strict boycott of the French controled railway connecting Addis Ababa with this Gulf of Aden port.

The boycott has resulted, these sources said, in heavy reductions in both passenger and freight business. Normal daily freight loadings were said to have declined from an average of 400 tons to 30. Italian controled truck routes have absorbed the difference.

Another report told of a destructive raid Thursday on the railway station at Diredawa in Ethiopia by a band of alleged Italian Fascists. Reliable informants said the boycott and raid probably were a sign of renewed efforts by Italian authorities to gain control of the railway, an apparent aim of the Italian colonial campaign which has threatened France.

FINDS SUDETEN AIR OF YEAR AGO IN TUNISIA TODAY

French-Italian Tension Is Like Nazi-Czech Row.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TUNIS, Tunisia, Jan. 7.—However weak the Sudeten analogy as applied to Tunisia may be on juridical and political grounds, the psychological atmosphere prevailing here is amazingly like the atmosphere I found in Czecho-Slovakia one year ago.

Tension between the two governments was reflected in each case in endless backyard bickering between their politically conscious racial elements in the territory where they lived side by side. At first glance it is hard to make anything out of the welter of charges and countercharges, pin pricks, and brick bats except an outstanding example of human orneriness.

Affect Designs of Nations.

On deeper study, however, you discover that these backyard quarrels contribute in no modest way to realization or frustration of the great designs of rulers and nations and you are forced to admire the ingenuity with which the most unexpected incidents of daily life can be made into burning political issues.

The local press of Tunis, both French and Italian, is an endless source of material for such studies.

Babies, of course, are political. The Fascist newspaper Unione played in three columns the ceremony at the local Italian charitable organization in which fifty-six Sicilian mothers, who bore 510 children, received cash and other awards.

French Press Fights Back.

Even religion and Christmas are not too sacred for the political angle. A French Catholic paper attacked the Unione for having represented the religious services in Tunis on Christmas as a political demonstration staged by the French.

Many local press polemics have a less evident political basis, but you soon discover politics everywhere. In sports, for instance, a French newspaper a few days ago ran on its sports page a long editorial warning the authorities of the danger of letting a Czech football team appear at the local stadium, the reason being that the Italians would use it as a precedent to demand authorization for a Fascist team to come here and a political demonstration would ensue.

There is nothing new in all this. Incidents of the same sort between the French and Italians have been going on ever since Premier Mussolini came into power, and even before. There have been press wars as violent as the present one and diplomatic incidents—often created by Fascist officials coming here and snubbing the French authorities and behaving in a provocative fashion.

Relations Are Typical.

The origin of these incidents and the bad relations between the French and Italians are the same as between the Germans and Czechs in the Sudetenland. Just as Reichsfuehrer Hitler organized the Sudetens into a racial party under Nazi control and used this party to further the political ends of the German reich under pretext of demanding local rights, so has Mussolini organized the Italians here. And France, like the Czechs, has tried to break down the political and cultural isolation of the Italian colony and absorb the Italian population.

The result is the same dispute over nationality rights, the same struggle to bribe or wheedle Italian children into French schools and the same bribing and bullying of parents by Fascist authorities to keep the Italian children in Italian schools.

Organizations Are the Same.

There are the same charges—that the French authorities have given contracts and jobs to Frenchmen instead of Italians, that is, trying to get them to change their nationality so as to find work, and the French, like the Czechs, answer that it is only on national defense jobs where the Italians can't be trusted.

Just as Konrad Henlein's Sudeten [Nazi] party was an exact replica of the German Nazi organization with all its collateral institutions and its regimented youth and secret militia groups disguised as gymnastic societies, so is the Italian organization here an exact replica of the Fascist organization in Italy.

There is one important difference though. The status of the Sudetens was guaranteed by the Czech constitution and by multi-lateral international treaties.

Depends on Conventions.

The status of the Italians depends on a series of diplomatic conventions. That of 1896 makes possible the Fascist combat organization the Italians have built up here and theoretically opens the door to limitless immigration to reënforce it. The Italians, however, charge this convention was aimed at splitting their national cohesion and keeping down their numbers. Probably they have a good legal case, but the French can argue that the convention was intended to give Italy a base for operations aimed at supplanting the French in Tunisia.

In any case Mussolini in 1935 accepted a new convention, which, in effect, legalized the French efforts to absorb the Italian population here, provided they are graduated over a period of twenty years. That treaty now is denounced by Italy and France now is legally free to put the Italians on the same footing as other foreigners here and eventually claim their children as French citizens if they continue to live in Tunisia and want to work in French concerns.

Outlines French Answer.

Thus, if Il Duce is counting on getting some new Runciman to come to Tunisia and report to the world that it is impossible for the French and Italians to continue to live side by side under the same régime, the French can answer "Let them go home, then."

Il Duce apparently is confident that fear of war with him will prevent the French from taking this step and accordingly is demanding that, since the convention of 1935 was denounced and the 1896 convention allegedly was violated by the French, the Italian colonists in Tunisia should return to the status of capitulations prevailing before the French occupation.

In other words they should be outside French law and under the jurisdiction of their own consular courts. The French say that would amount to giving Tunisia to Italy and flatly refuse to consider it.

presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

AS WHEN A CHILD—

By CALEB

WHEN, lately, have you taken a good, old-fashioned walk? Not as a busy, worried adult, going briskly to a conference, to the store, or to meet Grandma's 9:25 bus. Not that way at all . . . but the way you once wandered along a leafy street or winding country road as a child —just inquiring into things.

Curious, for instance, to know why, when Autumn's tax-gatherer has collected all the others, four thin leaves are still clinging to that maple branch. Or pausing at some big brown stump with its funny creatures crawling in domestic industry around the base—and the green blob of moss on one side, soft and thick as fur. Or looking into a puddle of water at the road's edge, clear as if Nature had dropped her pocket-mirror there, without breaking it . . .

Starting such an old-fashioned walk, of course, you do three things first. You dismiss any idea of destination. You dismiss, too, all current cares and problems: you can come back to those after the walk's over. And finally, you dismiss matters that concern human beings. You're "in" only to impressions: odd, easy, casual, restful ideas that come from watching a flag blow in the wind, counting the stories of an office tower, tracing the poetry of a gull's veerings over gray water, or studying the stutter of a pigeon's strut along a stone sill.

Above all—never "plan" or "program" such a walk as that. Suddenly, when your thinking has gone a shade fuzzy, or "red tape" is tying itself around your nerve-ends—drop phone receiver or report, put on hat and coat, explain nothing . . . and be off. Ten, twenty, thirty minutes later, you'll be back bright as an April dandelion. IF, that is, you took your walk as an old-fashioned walk should be taken.

On the walk itself, get yourself a free regular rhythm, neither dawdling nor driving. Blood and respiration move faster; and a good secret is to notice small, unimportant incidents as you go. Ever catch a sparrow at its bath? Or see a squirrel candidly appraise you from a tree-fork? Take time to notice these and a hundred other similar trivialities. They're great spirit-restorers.

After all, Business and Life both need restored spirits, these days—as much as they need prosperity, world peace, or any other major importation from Utopia.

WOMAN, STRUCK BY HIT AND RUN MOTORIST, DIES

Driver Leaves Victim, 69, Lying in Street.

Mrs. Amelia Schoen, 69 years old, 4314 South California avenue, was injured fatally last night by the automobile of a hit-and-run driver at 43d street and California avenue. The car sped north in California avenue. Mrs. Schoen was taken to St. Anthony's hospital, where she died.

Albert Dzarack, 55 years old, 2712 West 24th place, a metal worker, was killed yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at 23d street and Marshall boulevard. The driver, James Vales, 3213 Milwaukee avenue, was charged with reckless driving.

Crossing flasher signals were in operation and a warning whistle was blown by the train that struck a car carrying four Oak Park High school pupils Friday night. This was brought out in testimony at an inquest yesterday over Robert King, 18 years old, of 137 North Scoville avenue, Oak Park, who was killed.

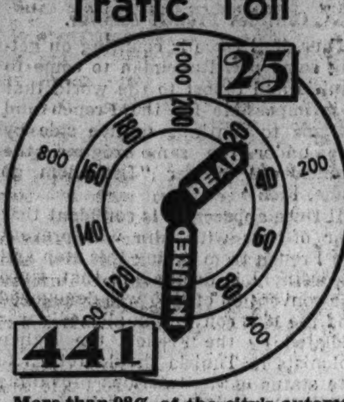
Miss Virginia Doyle, 18, of 412 North Maple avenue, and Miss Clara Panneck, 15, of 5658 Ohio street, were injured. David Chamberlain, 18, of 717 South Clarence avenue, was driving the car. It was struck at the Butterfield road crossing in Hillside by a Chicago Great Western passenger train.

Herman Quinn, 39 years old, an electrician, was fatally injured last night when he drove his automobile head on into a north bound street car in front of 2913 Cottage Grove avenue. Several passengers were shaken. Quinn died in the Michael Reese hospital early today. He was an electrician and lived at 2232 West 12th avenue, Gary.

Relatives were notified yesterday that Charley F. Shaw, Elgin's oldest native resident, was killed by an automobile Friday night in Tampa, Fla., where he spent each winter. Mr. Shaw, who was 87 years old, retired several years ago from the Elgin Watch company where he had been employed forty-four years. His widow, Bessie, of Cleveland; a daughter, Mrs. Mark Colwell, of Long Beach, Cal., and a sister, Mrs. H. C. Buhman of Chicago, survive.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday thirty-one persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these twenty-five were killed in Chicago where 441 were injured during the same period.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

EVANSTON BEATS OWN SAFE TRAFIC MARK; 3 DIE IN '38

Evanston's national reputation for trafic safety was improved in 1938, according to records compiled yesterday by Sergt. Albert J. Hagel of the accident prevention bureau. There were three automobile deaths last year, compared with five in 1937.

In 1938 there were 1,684 accidents, compared with 1,823 in 1937. Four times as many men were involved as women. The first fatality of the year occurred on the 302d day, a record for Evanston.

More drunken drivers were arrested. This was due, the police said, to the perfection of tests for intoxication. The number of arrests jumped from seventeen in 1937 to sixty-six last year, while the convictions in court increased from thirteen to thirty-five, with fourteen other cases pending.

POLICEMAN'S SON SEIZED WITH PAL IN STOLEN AUTO

William Moran Jr., 15 years old, son of a Lincoln park district policeman, and Howard Richardson, 14, were arrested early yesterday while riding in a stolen automobile. In the car, which the boys admitted taking from in front of 712 Diversey avenue, Policeman Edward Knapik found a shotgun. The boys said they stole the weapon from another automobile. They were taken to the juvenile home after questioning by Juvenile Officer T. J. Kedy. Moran lives at 2759 North Halsted street and Richardson at 2829 Orchard street.

NEW BEDS PROVE FURNITURE MEN ARE WIDE AWAKE

Novelties Highlight Home Furnishing Shows.

Chicago's great home furnishing markets open tomorrow, replete with novelties. These range from beds of zebra and tiger wood to perfumed curtains, from armchairs of glistening black patent lether to a silent dropside for cribs.

Ten thousand buyers from all sections of the United States are expected to delight in these offerings, to be shown at the American Furniture mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, and the Merchandise mart. Both shows will continue through Jan. 21.

Beds Come in Every Shape.

Beds seem to lead the way in ingenuity of style. They come in every shape except that of a circle. One is a console by day, a bed by night; somehow it unravels. Another, a twin set known as "Sweetheart," has a beautiful fat heart cut out of each maple headboard; on the footboard of one is the picture of a woman, on the other, of a man.

A nautical bed has half a large spoked ship's wheel as the headboard; the other and smaller half is the footboard. A pioneer bed has a large wagon wheel as its headboard, an ox yoke as its footboard.

Still another bed has a headboard ornamented only with two cut-out maple leaves, but its footboard combines all the comforts of home. Two small chairs are built in at either end of the footboard; these, low, with rounded seats, are for putting on your shoes. Wedged in between them is a combination book shelf, end table and lamp stand.

'High' Shades Predominate.

Many lether armchairs are being shown, but most of them come in colors known as "high," shades of fuchsia, pinks, yellows and browns, as do the more luxurious upholstered brocades and satins. The black patent one, however, is pure, slippery black, so shiny you can see your face in it. It is a massive thing, its edges studded with flat pearl headed nails.

The outstanding furniture style of 1939, as of 1938, is Swedish modern, a subtle combination of simplicity and function, usually in light woods. One manufacturer, though, is showing a new line of Pennsylvania colonial.

The new garden furniture indulges in effective flamboyance. Beach umbrellas, for the garden table, resemble [in turn] the floral nightmare of a Bulgarian peasant, a circus, stick candy, and the American flag. All the colors are bright, in combinations formerly thought of as daring.

Betty Armour Engaged to Wed

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Gerald Vanderbilt Hollins Jr. of Cleveland, O., and his fiancee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour. Their betrothal was announced at a dinner and dance last night.

Wedding in June

At a dinner and dance last night at their home in Lake Forest Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour announced the engagement of their elder daughter, Betty, to Gerald Vanderbilt Hollins Jr., son of Mrs. Henry Morgan and Gerald V. Hollins of New York. Young Mr. Hollins has been living in Chicago but was recently transferred to Cleveland. He was here, however, for the announcement party last night.

Miss Armour, great-granddaughter of the first Philip Danforth Armour, made her debut at a tea given at the Casino by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, in November, 1937. She went to Miss Walker's school in Simsbury, Conn.

Mr. Hollins, who is with the United States Steamship lines, prepared for college at St. Mark's and was graduated at Harvard in 1936. He and Miss Armour plan to be married in June.

SHOPPERS WANT COLD STORAGE SIGNS DISPLAYED

Start Drive to Enforce Illinois Law.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Housewives of Chicago are taking steps to get "cold storage" labels placed on foods held under refrigeration for more than thirty days. The movement will be formally launched at a joint meeting Wednesday of the Woman's City club and the Chicago Housewives' league.

Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley

Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, chairman of the club's food and merchandise committee and head of the league, called the meeting after a survey made by housewives in all parts of the city.

State Law Ignored.

"Our interest in the cold storage food question started recently," Mrs. Fribley said. "Prices of fresh foods had become relatively high and housewives were shopping for refrigerated items such as eggs and butter. These usually sell for less than products direct from the farm. The women of our surveying committee said they were unable to find stores where 'cold storage goods' labels were displayed over the foods as is required by Illinois law.

"Our committee members knew that good cold storage foods are wholesome and economical and they went into neighborhood stores to buy them. But they found few merchants who were willing to admit they handled cold storage foods because of the prejudice that is held by many against such foods."

Mrs. Fribley said the housewives who made the survey did not blame the merchants for the lack of cold storage labels in the stores. They believe that consumers should become more familiar with the way cold storage products can be utilized in holding down living costs.

Law 20 Years Old.

More than twenty years ago the Illinois legislature passed a uniform cold storage law requiring merchants plainly and conspicuously to mark "Cold Storage Goods" on the bulk or articles of food held under refrigeration for thirty days or more.

Edward F. Gerrity, superintendent foods and dairies division of the state department of agriculture, says that merchants have not been required to display the "cold storage" labels for many years. He explained that this provision of the law had been considered unworkable. Gerrity added that the prejudice of consumers against cold storage eggs and other foods made it unwise to require signs identifying such foods.

Gerrity, chief administrator of the law, has been invited to the housewives' meeting at 410 South Michigan avenue Wednesday.

Mrs. Fribley said the housewives were studying the cold storage food situation from an educational standpoint rather than with the idea of adversely criticizing any one.

"If it is impractical to administer our state cold storage law and require the labeling of refrigerated goods, then our organizations want to help make it workable," Mrs. Fribley said.

According to Gerrity, merchants are not allowed to sell cold storage foods, such as eggs and butter as fresh products. Consumers are asked to report violations to Gerrity's office, 428 South Wabash avenue.

Price is the main guide to consumers in buying cold storage goods. Lately cold storage eggs have been selling 10 cents a dozen under fresh eggs.

$5,000 IN CASH PRIZES

For Finding

NICKNAMES OF THE STATES in Crosswords!

YOU have heard the nicknames of many States such as the Hoosier State, the Badger State, the Gopher State, the Lone Star State. Would you like to know them all—and why they were so nicknamed?

Then solve this interesting series of crossword puzzles. The name and nickname of one of the States will automatically appear as you solve each puzzle. Beneath each puzzle you will find an explanatory item telling you why the State was so nicknamed.

The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best answers to this series which is now appearing daily in the Chicago Daily Tribune. There are 430 big cash prizes. You may win as much as $1,000. This offer is free to all. There are no subscriptions to solicit. Nothing to do but prove your skill.

You can start with the first 6 puzzles printed here. They will count. Then continue the series in tomorrow's Chicago Daily Tribune.

THE RULES

1. This offer is open free to everyone everywhere, excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families.

2. A new crossword puzzle containing the name and nickname of one of the 48 States of the United States will be printed in the Chicago Daily Tribune each week day until 48 have appeared. You are invited to solve these puzzles and find the names and nicknames.

3. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do not send in each puzzle separately. Hold until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Nicknames," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. Entries must be in by midnight one week after Puzzle No. 48 has been printed.

4. The Chicago Tribune will pay 430 cash prizes totaling $5,000 for the most nearly correctly solved, complete sets of puzzles submitted in accordance with these rules. (See Prize List.)

5. You do not have to solve ALL the puzzles correctly to win. Prizes will be paid to those persons whose entries rank highest.

6. No person may submit more than one entry. No one shall be entitled to more than one prize. Entries must be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Each entry must be accompanied by a letter, giving your name and address, and completing in 25 words or less a statement telling which of the States you think is the most appropriately nicknamed. Such statements will be considered only if two or more persons submit equally correct solutions to the puzzles; in which event, judgment will be solely on the basis of sincerity and originality of thought.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles. The Chicago Tribune may be examined free at its offices or Public Libraries. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune and their decisions shall be final and binding. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid to tying contestants.

MILK RULE PLAN CRIPPLING BLOW TO N. Y. FARMERS

Consumers Strike Against Increased Prices.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A growing consumers' strike over the increased price of milk and a mounting surplus of it are the results of the first four months' operation of the federal-state marketing scheme promulgated in the New York area by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Housewives are rebelling because they are forced to pay one and a quarter cents more for a quart of milk than they were before the plan went into operation. The retail home delivery price for grade "B" milk, the type most widely used for drinking and general household use, is 13¾ cents.

Results Prove Disastrous.

Heretofore New York state had saddled price fixing regulations on the milk industry with disastrous results. Secretary Wallace stepped into the picture to impose a scheme on an interstate basis because New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and other states contribute toward the New York metropolitan milk supply. Experts believe that the new plan of political control merely will spread the trouble instead of localizing it in one state.

Under the Wallace order an administrator, Erskine M. Harmon, is empowered to fix the minimum wholesale prices to farmers. The order went into effect last Sept. 1. Prices went up, consumption went down, and the farmer had a surplus of unsold milk on his hands.

Alarm grew among the producing farmers, two-thirds of whom are in New York state. On Nov. 3, just before the gubernatorial election in which Gov. Herbert L. Lehman won a hairline decision over his Republican opponent, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, the federal surplus commodities corporation in Washington announced that it had decided to buy up to 40,000,000 pounds of surplus milk in the New York area as a prop for the artificial price structure.

Similar to Chicago Action.

This is similar to the action of the FSCC in going into the butter market in Chicago during the summer to keep the price above 25 cents a pound. The corporation is said to have purchased 100,000,000 pounds of butter, most of which it still has on hand.

Reliable reports to the big milk companies from their producers are that milk production in the New York area is up 11 per cent per herd over last year. By comparison, production in Wisconsin and Illinois is practically at the same level as last year.

No one will predict how long the government can carry on its scheme in New York before it collapses, as did similar stabilization measures in wheat and cotton undertaken by the old farm board.

Meanwhile, a campaign to organize consumer resistance against unwaranted price increases in milk, is under way. The movement is under the direction of the Milk Consumers' Protective committee, which embraces nearly 100 consumers' groups in New York City.

Milk Consumption Falls.

Last August the consumption of fluid milk in New York City increased 4.78 per cent over the same month of 1937, according to figures based on official reports of the United States department of agriculture.

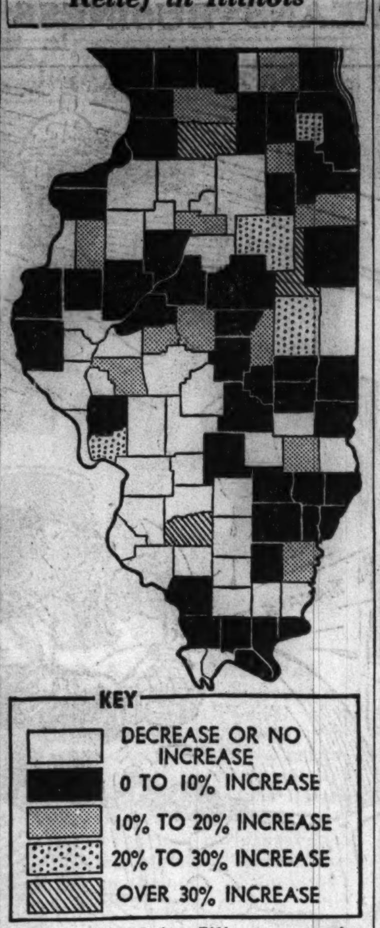
But last September, the first month under the Wallace scheme, consumption fell 3.48 per cent compared with September of the previous year. In October, the last month for which figures are available, the decrease amounted to 3.63 per cent. Cream consumption also fell sharply. The consumption loss in milk and cream was equivalent to 14,095,000 quarts in September of 1938 over the same month of the year before.

At the same time Boston and Philadelphia, not affected by price changes on Sept. 1, showed increases in milk consumption. Boston registered a gain of 3.02 per cent in September and 5.89 in October while Philadelphia has increases of 6.16 and 2.11 for the two months.

RETURN VERDICT OF SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health and financial worries was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Dr. Herman A. Steinberg, 44 years old, 2257 Cortez street, a dentist. He hanged himself Friday in his office at 3958 Fullerton avenue.

Relief in Illinois



Part played by Illinois counties in increase of relief cases in November over October totals.

RELIEF IN COUNTY BOOSTS ILLINOIS TOTAL BY 1.4%

171,217 IERC Cases in November.

There were 171,217 home relief cases in Illinois in November, Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, reported yesterday. This was 1.4 per cent more than in October. The increase was caused by a gain of 2.6 per cent in Cook county. Downstate the cases dropped off .3 per cent.

Chicago had 94,515 home relief cases in November, 2.9 per cent more than in October. The rest of Cook county had a 1.5 per cent decrease. There was a total of 100,928 cases in the county.

Gains in 63 Other Counties.

Sixty-three counties in the state, besides Cook, showed increases over October, while in thirty-eight there were decreases.

Most of the counties which showed a decrease experienced a seasonal industrial gain in November because of coal mine activity. A few of those counties have experienced oil booms. Henry and La Salle counties, both of which showed a decrease, showed industrial gains.

Lee county had the greatest percentage increase, with 170 home relief cases, 37.1 per cent more than in October. Putnam county had the greatest percentage decrease with only 121 home cases, a decline of 24.8 per cent.

8,825 New Cases in City.

Of 8,825 new cases opened in Chicago, 4,092 were attributed to loss of private employment and 1,156 to loss of WPA jobs. Exhaustion of old resources accounted for 1,416 more being added. The rest were attributed to termination of wages, old age assistance, loss of aid from relatives, and other reasons.

Among 5,667 cases closed in Chicago, 1,516 were removed because they found private employment and 1,692 because of WPA work. The rest were removed because outside resources were developed, and 680 cases were removed because relief checks were not called for.

ANTI-TRUST LAWS ASSAILED IN MILK CONSPIRACY SUIT

53 Defendants Open Fight Against U. S. Charges.

Constitutionality of the Sherman anti-trust law was challenged yesterday as fifty-three corporations and individuals filed demurrers and motions in the United States District court here. It was the first move in their fight against the milk conspiracy indictments returned against them Nov. 15 by the federal grand jury.

The majority of the demurrers contended the Sherman act is unconstitutional because it denies the defendants due process of law. Only four of the fifty-seven indicted were not represented in court. Yesterday was the deadline for filing preliminary motions.

Bundesen Fails to Appear.

Those who did not appear are Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health; Paul Krueger of the dairy section of the board; William J. Guerin, chief dairy inspector of the board, and Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office. Gilbert filed his demurrer Friday. The other three had pleaded not guilty when arraigned several weeks ago.

The attack on the anti-trust laws charges that the Sherman act is unreasonable and arbitrary and that it discriminates between certain producers and associations of agricultural products with respect to monopolies and restraint of trade.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, who will hear the milk cases, is expected to notify the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which will set up a statutory court to pass on the constitutionality of the law.

The Pure Milk association filed a demurrer contending that it is exempt from the provisions of the anti-trust law under the Capper-Volstead act of 1922.

In behalf of seven indicted officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, Attorney David Riskind—himself under indictment—filed a motion asking for a bill of particulars on the charges in the indictment.

Instead of a demurrer Borden-Wieland, Inc., another of the accused corporations, filed a motion to quash the indictment on the ground that it ceased to exist as a corporation on Jan. 4, 1936. Attorneys said the corporation had been absorbed by the Borden company.

Judge Woodward set Jan. 23 for ar-expected, however, that a further delay will be granted at that time.

The twenty corporations and twenty individuals who were indicted in connection with activities of the ice cream industry are to file their motions before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan on Jan. 16.

RHODE ISLAND COMES BACK.

With the inauguration of Rhode Island's new governor, William H. Vanderbilt, the state has been restored to its place in the Union with a constitutional form of government. Therefore THE TRIBUNE may now take down the first plank in its program for America, to wit: Restore constitutional form of government in Rhode Island.

Rhode Island under Robert E. Quinn, who was first lieutenant governor and then governor, was a state governed by a dictator who had no regard whatever for constitutional limitations, for the functions of the state judiciary, or for the honor of the National Guard. He purged the state legislature to obtain control of it. When he had done so he threw out the Supreme court judges and created a court for his own purposes. He established censorship of the press, violated the constitutional guarantees of freedom of opinion, and in contempt of his own court decisions used the state troops to take a money making race track away from his political rival, O'Hara. He made it impossible for O'Hara to own and run his newspapers and his race track.

Quinn did not make himself as much of a national figure as Huey Long and may not have been as well known as Mayor Hague of Jersey City. But neither Long nor Hague exhibited a more thoroughgoing contempt for the American form of government than Quinn, and it was rightly disturbing to people all over the country that such a dictator could take possession of one of the American states and do exactly what he wanted to, undeterred by any of the restraints which we have all thought would prevent any such official lawlessness.

Even in days which saw a great deal of this sort of official contempt for law and this kind of misuse of state force Quinn was far out in front of the other state autocrats. He wasn't the only man who used the National Guardsmen as Storm Troopers, but he was the least conscionable and his transactions had elements of personal gain.

Until the people could get to him in an election there was nothing to be done about it, because he had seized control of the assembly and the courts, and there was no way of bringing him to an accounting until he had to submit himself again to the people. If one of these upstart dictators could find a way of suspending the electoral process nothing but a revolution would get him out of power.

The American people have been going over thinner ice than many of them have realized in recent years, and we can hardly say that they're on firm ground yet. The democratic institutions are not endangered wholly by external threats against them. The foreign dictator is not the only person who would like to re-create the world in his own image. Persons in authority in this country have been very impatient because of the checks which have curbed them and would like to get rid of the restraints by which the people keep the government in their own hands. That is why restoration of constitutional government in Rhode Island is a matter of importance the country over.

Gov. Vanderbilt in his inaugural promised that the wreckage of the Quinn administration and of the preceding Green administration would be cleared away and constitutional government would be restored, but the new governor is inclined to believe that it would be inadvisable to remove the kangaroo Supreme court which was created when the former judges were thrown out. He apparently feels that the court should be left undisturbed until constitutional amendment can correct the procedure of appointment and give the judicial status a greater freedom from political interference.

There would seem, however, to be more to be said in favor of throwing out the kangaroo court than against it. There can be no confidence in the judicial integrity of a court so formed. The men who accepted appointment in such circumstances proved their lack of fitness, because they themselves thereby participated in an act of revolution, violating the constitution of the state of which the Supreme court is supposed to be the upholder. They sacrificed their professional reputation for prestige and salaries. There would be a cleaner and healthier situation if these kangaroo judges were thrown out and the constitutional judges reinstated.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND MR. HITLER.

Mr. Hitler can use a quarrel with the United States in his domestic affairs and Mr. Roosevelt can use a quarrel with Nazi Germany in his own politics. The Nazis must make many sacrifices for armament, and if they are to do so without grumbling they must be led to believe that they are unjustly attacked by powerful enemies against whom they must be prepared to defend themselves. They may butter their bread with such reflections when dairy products are lacking in the market. Russia has been a good enemy to Hitler and would be a real one if it could. The United States will be another good enemy and Hitler loses nothing when relations with America become officially unfriendly.

It is a cheap hostility for the present. A break would be just about as useful to Mr. Roosevelt as it would be to Hitler. It will probably not permit the New Dealers wholly to distract the attention of Americans from their own really important affairs unless the two governments can engineer a series of incidents which produces a fighting spirit in the two countries. Then Americans might forget for a while that what Mr. Roosevelt has been doing to them is very much more their concern than what Mr. Hitler has done.

New Deal politicians are doing their best to find reasons for the third term, as well as a way of making the new congress submissive. All indications are that the new congress will break its leash and go on its own. The first requirement of New Deal politics is to prevent this, and the best dodge is to stir up international troubles and find arguments for national solidarity in support of the government against foreign aggressors. That stratagem is so simple that it should be transparent.

THE FALLIBILITY OF THE AUTOCRAT.

With the champions of dictatorship declaring the failure of democratic government and the superiority of autocracy, actual experience of the defects of one man rule sometimes gives striking evidence of the weakness of the case for autocracy. If the autocrat were infallible we might swallow the claims of the Fuehrer and the Duce, but no infallible autocrat has yet appeared on the stage of history.

There is no field in which concentrated authority is so plausible as in that of war. Certainly it must be granted to a far greater extent than in the activities of peace. Yet even here it requires limitations and counter checks, and their absence sometimes exacts terrific sacrifices for its errors.

A striking illustration of this is given in an analysis of the German strategy of the great drives in 1918 which were conceived and directed by Gen. Ludendorff, who had then come to dominate the German high command. At that stage the fate of Germany was wholly in the hands of this one man. If he failed the German cause failed; and he failed.

Col. Richard C. Burleson, a regular army officer, contributes to the current Field Artillery Journal an illuminating review of the German military situation in 1918 and of Ludendorff's use, or rather misuse, of his resources. Space is not available to give details. The gist of it is that Ludendorff indulged in a terrific gamble at a tremendous loss of human lives and with a disregard or fatal underestimate of the basic elements with which he must cope successfully or fail fatally.

In short, Ludendorff had no such resources of man power and no such superiority of armament as could justify the tremendous expenditure of life and material entailed by the German offensives planned and persisted in in the spring of 1918. They were brilliant tactical affairs, accomplishing striking immediate results, but at a cost out of proportion to any strategic gains. And this is not merely wisdom after the event. Ludendorff himself at a conference in February said: "Do not count on an offensive such as that of Galicia or Italy. The fight will be formidable, commencing at one point and continuing at another. It will require a good deal of time and it will be hard."

But time was a vital factor in view of the fact that the United States had entered the war nearly a year before and in spite of its unpreparedness and want of military experience was steadily pouring men into France and training and equipping a huge army. Only a very low opinion of this factor, a very bad estimate of its military significance, could justify Ludendorff's gamble on repeated exhausting yet inconclusive offensives in the face of the American effort. In spite of the cessation of Russian pressure which permitted the transfer of German divisions from the eastern to the western front in April and May, the betterment of the Italian situation had permitted the transfer of six French and five British divisions to France and Flanders and 60,000 British from Palestine. Meantime German resources in man power were desperately low and there was no such preponderance for the German forces as could give expectation of a prompt decision. As Col. Burleson remarks, while Ludendorff could count on a substantial superiority, some 20 divisions, for a certain time, the French and British had had available in 1916 and 1917 as great a superiority, yet had not succeeded in penetrating the German front in spite of repeated heavy attacks.

Why did Ludendorff so fatally ignore or underestimate these basic factors of the German situation? Students of war will find in this final and decisive chapter of the great war food for much reflection. The source of the German blunder was in the personality of the man who dominated German command. He had achieved brilliant successes earlier in the war, but his rise to complete authority had not developed his fitness for greater responsibilities. On the contrary, it may be reasoned, it had enlarged his ego to scorn counsel when it most needed the restraint and advice of other minds. It is the fatal weakness of autocracy, of unshared power.

Editorial of the Day

FOOD ON THE FARM.

[Detroit News.]

Can you remember when the startling announcement was made that the producers of the nation's foodstuffs were themselves poorly fed? There was a period in our history when revealers of the unbelievable were periodically discovering that the farmers' children weren't drinking enough milk; that the farmers were selling their butter and buying oleomargarine for their own families; that the vegetables from the farm garden went to city markets and the farmers ate only potatoes and beans.

Well, here is a more optimistic report: Surveys have been made recently and the United States Bureau of Home Economics declares that as a class, farm families are the best fed of the nation. That probably is a true statement of present conditions.

It calls attention to an important development. Things are happening down on the farm. Not to be disregarded is the fact that most farm homes now have daily newspapers, telephones, and radios. And all these sources of information have encouraged farm meetings and hook-ups with state agricultural colleges through extension services. And thus, what is learned in the schools and colleges is talked over in farm families and finds application in farm life.

DE VALERA GAINS STRENGTH

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Dec. 31.—The close of the year 1938 finds Eamon de Valera—after nearly seven years in office in Ireland—more firmly established than ever. Looking back over these eventful years one notices several surprising things.

De Valera came into power with a definite policy to establish the Irish republic which, it was charged, had been "let down" by the administration of William T. Cosgrave, but today the country is as much involved in the British commonwealth of nations as it ever was. Another item of his policy was that public expenditure must be reduced. The Cosgrave party, he said, had been extravagant and wasteful, and its government had taken salaries which the country could not afford.

Today public expenditures are higher than they were by about $35,000,000, and ministers who began by taking lesser salaries than their predecessors are receiving pay at the Cosgrave standard. In addition the present government has put through legislation granting pensions to ministers when they are turned out of office, and has increased the allowance of deputies, which was formerly $1,800 a year, to $2,400.

In other words, the policy of personal sacrifice has been completely abandoned. Pensions for all sorts of persons, including those who fought against the state in its early years, have been provided, as well as doles and public assistance for those who cannot find work, or as has been asserted, who will not work. As a deputy in the dail [parliament] recently expressed it, the country has become "a nation of pensioners."

There is, however, another side to the question. It must be admitted that De Valera's policies have in many respects justified themselves.

An advance has been made in the matter of rectifying a lopsided national economy. Agriculture hitherto has been the main, almost the only, national industry. The government in its pursuit of national self-sufficiency has established factories to produce the goods which had to be imported from Great Britain and foreign nations. The amount of money annually paid out for such goods greatly exceeded the receipts for exported agricultural produce. The adverse balance is still considerable, but it is falling, and will fall still more as the new industrial policy develops.

The year now ending has seen many changes, but these might be said to be more sentimental than real. The operation of the new constitution was a spectacular event. It became effective two days before the end of 1937.

Most important of its assertions is, that the state consisted of the whole of Ireland, its islands and seas. That is declaratory only and ineffective since it fails to include the area of Northern Ireland which has its own government, and is closely associated with Great Britain. The constitution admits this and provides that the laws enacted in the state of Ireland are operative only in the area previously known as the Irish Free State "pending the re-integration" of the northern territory.

The new constitution makes no reference to the king of Britain, but an obscure clause permits his use in the appointment of ministers to foreign countries, the reception of ministers from other nations, and in the matter of agreements with foreign countries. All these things have to be done in the name of the king, as is the issue of passports to citizens of Ireland traveling abroad.

The office of governor general, who under the previous constitution was the king's personal representative here, has been abolished. Instead there is a president of Ireland who is the head of the state. This office is occupied by Dr. Douglas Hyde, a learned and distinguished citizen, a poet, litterateur, and above all an outstanding leader in the promotion of the Irish language. In party politics he has no place—in fact he left the Gaelic league, which he founded, when it became a political body.

Dr. Hyde is a member of the Protestant church of Ireland. His unanimous choice as the first head of the state under the new régime, of which 94.5 per cent are Catholic, is in the circumstances held to be a striking demonstration of the spirit of tolerance of the majority. When he was officially installed in office on June 25 at Dublin castle there were assembled together in addition to the members of both houses of parliament the judges of the high court, all members of the foreign diplomatic corps, and the heads of all religious denominations.

It probably is true that no other single individual in the state could have been acclaimed in this high office with such complete unanimity.

De Valera's great achievement during the year was the final settlement of the financial dispute with Britain which included the long-standing refusal of the Irish government to pay over the land annuities to the London government. A single payment of $50,000,000 wiped out this and other financial claims. As a consequence certain penal tarifs were removed at once.

The agreement also provided for the handing over to the Irish government the control of ports at Cobh, and Berehaven in County Cork, and another at Lough Swilly, County Donegal, which the British had occupied since the treaty of 1921. In the future the Irish government will look after its own defenses.

Since the general election in 1937 when De Valera was returned to office with a following of barely half the members of the dail, the Labor group having ceased to be a reliable support, his tenure of office was constantly in peril. Of the 138 members of the dail sixty-nine were members of his party. In May the inevitable happened, when on a comparatively trivial matter the government was defeated by one vote. De Valera immediately appealed to the country, and at a general election was returned with seventy-seven party supporters. The government is therefore in a strong position, and barring some very extraordinary development will hold office for five years.

The senate or second chamber, which had been abolished by De Valera in 1936, was reëstablished under the new constitution. Nominally the new chamber was constructed on a vocational basis, but in fact it is no less a party political body than was its predecessor. Its powers have been greatly restricted, so that nothing it can do will affect legislation passed by the dail.

It is known that De Valera himself is by no means satisfied with the constitution of the senate. In all probability measures to reconstruct it will be taken shortly.

Following his big achievements of the year De Valera has made it clear that his one remaining ambition is to secure the removal of the border between Southern and Northern Ireland—in other words, to bring about the reintegration of the national territory. Without this the new constitution cannot have full effect. On this matter he will have the support of all parties in the dail, for the division of Ireland which was brought about by the British government of Ireland Act of 1920 is generally regarded as a national degradation.

There are, however, differences of view as to the best means of achieving the desired result. De Valera's attitude is that the British government, having passed the legislation which brought about the division, should undo it. He put this view to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain when he was negotiating the agreement of April last, but the answer was that the Irish government should negotiate with the government of Northern Ireland and persuade it to join with the Dublin parliament.

The Northern Ireland government has said "no." And so the matter stands. The Cosgrave party in the dail when it was in office had the view that it would make its administration in the south so good that the northerners would ask to be included. This policy does not appeal to De Valera. The position at the moment is one of hostility between the two governments. What form subsequent developments may take it is difficult, in fact impossible, to forecast.

THE HORROR OF DRUG ADDICTION.

If we could all live in a Utopian state with freedom from pain; with every one contented, kind, and honest; with no poor and no unemployment; with physical perfection an inherent birthright—would we comprise a nation of stalwarts? Far from it! The reason is that except for those who are physically and mentally handicapped, every one is obliged to work out his own salvation to strive for a better existence; to achieve a goal. Thus courage and vitality are engendered.

Whenever the world goes against one, when adversities pile up mountain high, weak-willed men and women seeking easy avenues of escape are likely to follow the lines of least resistance. Some will crash mentally, while others may turn to alcohol or become narcotic addicts. What an abject surrender either mode represents! Any substance that deadens the intellect provides but an artificial means of covering up aches and pains that should be tracked to their sources and rooted out.

At first the effect is joyous—happiness reigns supreme, and the individual becomes carefree. But morphine is neither a true nor a steady friend. Sooner or later the seducer will turn upon his dupe, betraying him into horrors a thousand times more dreadful than the original difficulties from which he fled. Should he be deprived of his consoling opiate the sufferer may live daily in an inferno that even the lurid descriptions of Dante fail to picture accurately. Thomas De Quincey told his personal story well in his "Confessions of an Opium Eater" and Samuel Taylor Coleridge, who dabbled with the poison long enough to become convinced of its pernicious rôle—sapping mentality and undermining physique—was able to refrain from its use only after a fierce struggle.

There is a national problem of drug addiction and we have given far too little attention to its seriousness. As long as there are dishonest, clandestine dealers, these deadly chemicals will be for sale. We can never hope for the millennium when honor and square dealing will obtain everywhere. On the other hand, by stringent law enforcement we can make it well nigh impossible for any one to secure these preparations except for legitimate medical purposes. Habitués are irresponsible for the most part and many cannot be cured, but it is essential that we keep these seductive dream producing nostrums out of the hands of youths.

At first the user will not listen to warnings. He or she is having too much fun. Life is just one beautiful fantasy after another, with reality shut out. But after six months—certainly within a year—enough of the aftermath will be experienced to force the patient to seek relief—yes, even pray for it. While it may take but a few weeks to instill the habit, years may be required to get rid of it. Victims are not criminals, although some may commit unlawful acts—they are largely selfish thrill seekers.

Complete freedom is not easy to achieve. First of all, it is necessary to adopt a régime either of gradual or abrupt withdrawal under proper safeguards. Then comes the psychiatrist who is needed if these people are to be returned to a state of rehabilitation which will be lasting. If they are defective mentally, institutional treatment is the only alternative. In the United States the total of those who indulge is unknown. A conservative estimate, however, places the figure at several hundred thousand and the pity of it all is that each one is a teacher of another—perhaps of several. They are not solitary performers, as a rule. They want company and they find it.

From the medical standpoint we must regard confirmed opium eaters and smokers as sick persons. We should not jail them or punish them. Above all we should not ignore their appeals or their distress. Recovery is possible with a large percentage. There will be some discouragements, of course, because relapses will come, but if the fight is maintained it can be won—not in a week or two, but within a few years. Every state and every large city should provide some special hospital or sanitarium the chief purpose of which is to save these unfortunates. Law enforcing bodies can stop the trafic—if they will.

CYSTIC GOITER.

Worried writes:
1. What is meant by cystic goiter?
2. What effect does it have?
3. Do such cases need to take thyroid extract?

REPLY.

1. This refers to the formation of cysts [watery sacs] within the thyroid gland.
2. Cysts are likely to cause pressure—destroying and crowding some of the tissue. In consequence the normal functioning of the gland may be disturbed.
3. Only when the metabolic rate is found to be below normal.

AFFECTS COLON.

Mrs. H. writes: What is bacillary dysentery and how does a person contract it?

REPLY.

Bacillary dysentery is an infection of the large colon, characterized by inflammation of the bowel lining with resulting bloody diarrhea. The causative organism may be picked up either from one having the disease or from the eating of infested fresh vegetables. Contaminated water is also a possibility.

OLD-FASHIONED COLIC.

Mrs. T. P. writes: My baby, 3 months old, is bothered considerably by gas pains. What causes this condition in an infant?

REPLY.

This is common, old fashioned colic. It may be well, however, to check the outlet of the stomach to be sure there is no spasm at this point. Air swallowing should also be thought of. After each feeding allow the baby to "burp."

FIRST AID IN FRACTURE.

K. T. writes: If a leg is fractured, what first aid methods should be employed?

REPLY.

Keep the patient warm and do not tumble him into the back seat of a passing automobile without first splinting the leg. Serious damage may be done to the injured parts by careless handling. Every Boy Scout knows how to apply a temporary dressing.

IMPORTANT TO HEALTH.

A. K. writes: In the course of a physical checkup, why is the blood tested?

REPLY.

The circulating fluid is of the greatest importance to health. The examination covers hemoglobin, red and white cells, and the various chemical constituents. If syphilis is suspected a Wassermann test is made.

MAYBE HE MEANS BUSINESS THIS TIME!

SHE WANTS AN EDUCATION.

Niles Center, Ill., Jan. 1.—As I sit here alone on New Year's day in my tiny maid's room I'm thinking some slightly bitter thoughts about all this Merry Christmas-Happy New Year stuff. How many of the men who spent hundreds of dollars on wife's or daughter's Christmas fur coat or Junior's new car would ever consider lending [please note I say "lending," not giving] an equal amount to some intelligent, eager young person who dreams night and day of being a successfur business woman, a doctor, a nurse, etc., etc., and who, instead, is doing the humblest, most distasteful of labor?

I happen to be one of these unfortunate individuals—an "A" student in high school—and now just a maid—but with a constant ache in my heart for the laboratory technician that I want to be. SOMEBODY'S MAID.

ARE THE TWO BILLION STILL THERE?

Chicago, Dec. 30.—In your editorial of Dec. 26 entitled "Are the Two Billion Still There?" you make a statement relative to the surrender of gold in exchange for paper money. I have read and studied the editorial and, while I have a general grasp of the subject, nevertheless, I am sorry to confess I do not understand the transaction as well as I would like to.

Would it be possible for your economist or financial authority to give any other or further explanation of this transaction, so that the ordinary layman who does not readily grasp the financial manipulations that have taken place during the last six years can more easily understand this complicated subject? EDWARD R. LITSINGER.

KINDS OF SPENDING.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—On your editorial page you quote Boas as saying, "The old illiterates were the people of the middle ages who could not read, and who looked at pictures and sculpture for information and edification. The new illiterates presumably can, but will not, read." I commend this bit of wisdom and an elementary course in economics to the savants who rhapsodize about Brenda's party. If they can and will read they may learn the difference between the effect on the business cycle of luxury spending and mass spending for necessities. M. B.

THE LIMA CONFERENCE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—In behalf of the Pan-American league I want to congratulate and thank THE TRIBUNE for the fine daily reporting of the pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, by Capt. M. M. Corpening.

It made an excellent dramatic picture of the various forces at work down there, and the final clarification.

MRS. J. DUNRAVEN YOUNG,
Vice President at Large and Central Area Director.

A HAPPY THOUGHT.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—My first good laugh on the new year was at Mr. Orr's cartoon of Old Mother Hubbard going to the cupboard to get some bones for her pets I congratulate the artist on the happy thought. P. A. LINDBERG.

FOR AN ED SULLIVAN BOOK.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Why not publish some of Ed Sullivan's "Looking at Hollywood" column in booklet form similar to "The Line Book," "Front Views and Profiles," "The Wake of the News"? FRANK J. FITZGERALD.

THE DIES COMMITTEE.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—It seems to me that, while it may be advisable to have an investigation of un-American activities in this country, Mr. Dies is hardly the one to conduct the investigation.

Mr. Dies can scarcely conceal the fact that what he most wants to do is to paint the liberals of this country with a communist brush. Anyway, it is very apparent that he does not object to fomenting hatred and suspicion among his countrymen.

I cannot see why domestic conditions cannot be handled by the government machinery already existing. An investigation of foreign propaganda should be directed toward that which menaces us most, and, even for that, why must there be enormous appropriation of funds? ALICE V. BLOOMFIELD.

TRIBUTE TO ZONA GALE.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I wish to thank THE TRIBUNE for the fine article written upon the passing of Zona Gale.

I am deeply moved by the death of this great author, whom I have admired and whose works I have read for some twenty years, since I was 9 years old. Like most of us thoughtless beings I failed to express my appreciation to her while she was alive. It would have been easy to do so, but it never was done.

Her "Miss Lulu Bett," "Preface to a Life," and many other beautiful books shall always have a place in my bookcase, as well as in my heart. It is good to know she received recognition and fame long before her death. C. V. G.

PROBLEM CHILDREN.

Wilmette, Ill., Dec. 29.—What about all the young people in totalitarian states who are being educated by dictators, while being kept entirely isolated from the rest of the world? If the dictatorships should collapse some day, what would those people be like upon coming into contact with the rest of the world? Would they be able to reeducate themselves from the ground up, or would they be such complete misfits that there would be a few million lunatics for the rest of the world to get along with as best it could? M. P.

APPRECIATIVE.

Rhinelander, Wis., Dec. 29.—I am appreciative of your courageous leadership in common sense spelling. May your power increase in that respect! FRANK C. PLAUTZ.

IT SEEMS SO.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 1.—Evidently Roosevelt goes on the theory of "the public be damned," as he is appointing to important offices in the government men who have been rejected by their constituents. T. S. CLARK.

THE FASHION.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—When will the ladies come to their senses? Fur coats and bare feet! What a combination! LOUIS PALUCH.

MEADOW LARKS IN JANUARY.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—As we were driving Jan. 2 on the outskirts of Arlington Heights on route 62 we saw three meadow larks fly up. We thought we would tell you, as this is very unusual at this time of year. LEONARD FRANK.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ESTATE ACCOUNTING.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died five years ago and the estate has been probated. "A" [son] is executor and if something happens to him I [a daughter] would take his place. "B" [another son] is unable to work. In the will it was stated property could be sold, if needed, to help this son. His income at present is enough to take care of him. Some time ago we signed papers to the effect that three acres were to be sold. Now we are asked to sign papers that five more acres may be sold, but no explanation is made as to what will be done with the money.

1. Is there any law providing that a statement be made so that heirs may know what is happening to the money? We have heard and know that "A" has borrowed a large sum of money, and as he is not working we know he cannot meet these payments. When the money from the land sold is received I am quite sure "B" is going to let "A" have it.

2. Is there any way that we can compel "B" to let us know what he is going to do with this money? In the will it says this money must either be invested or placed in a bank.

3. How often should heirs receive an accounting? I. L.

1. No, but if you are being asked to sign, then we would consider it reasonable that you should ask for an accounting as a condition of your signing.

2. We see no legal obligation on you to sign, and the conclusion would seem to follow that you are in a position to name arbitrarily the terms on which you will sign.

3. Except for the points above discussed, the executor's obligation is to account to the court, rather than to the heirs.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WATER PRESSURE.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Two weeks ago my mother-in-law asked me to go down to the city hall to report low water pressure on the third floor of her flat building on South Western avenue. An inspector was sent out who asked a lot of questions but nothing further was done. The day after election the two families occupying the third floor reported no water reached them and the rest of the tenants were getting very little. They all threatened to move out. I again reported the matter but nothing was done. All we need now is a good healthy fire! E. L.

The water pipe extension division of the bureau of engineering excavated at the above mentioned location and made the necessary repairs to correct the condition complained about. We thank you for calling our attention to this matter.

O. E. HEWITT,
COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC WORKS.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Could you tell me if I am an American citizen? I came to the United States in November, 1919, from England. I married an American man in February, 1921, which made me a citizen through marriage. I was divorced in July, 1933, but never remarried. Will I have to take out my citizenship papers because of the divorce? F. S.

If the inquirer was married to an American citizen prior to Sept. 22, 1922, she became a citizen by virtue of such marriage, under the laws then in effect. The divorce in 1933 did not affect her American citizenship status, as under an act of congress approved Sept. 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women on and after that date is independent of that of their husbands.

KELLY CONFIDENT MODERN CAR LINE SYSTEM IS NEAR

Security Holders' Action Removes Big Barrier.

Mayor Kelly and other city officials were confident yesterday that the creation of a unified local transportation system for Chicago, now that the last bondholders' committee—the Harris group—has accepted an elevated-surface lines merger plan, is only a matter of time. The decision of the bondholders' group, which holds $41,700,000 of surface lines mortgages, was reached late Friday.

"The announcement that the last security holders' organization has recognized the need for unification is welcome news," Mayor Kelly said. "With the city council, I have insisted that no solution of our transportation problem would be satisfactory unless it included these things: New and comfortable equipment, universal transfers, reasonable valuations and rates of fare, and attractive working conditions for employés.

May Need Modifications.

"While the city has never indorsed the Shaw plan [the basis for negotiations between the investors' groups] and will undoubtedly require many modifications, I am confident we are at last on the way to a settlement of an old controversy from which the city and all its car riders have suffered.

"The decision to start digging the subway without waiting for the companies to settle their differences played no small part in producing action. I am pleased by this encouraging progress."

Mayor Kelly said he was not speaking for the council, and that the final decision would rest with the people and their representatives.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the council committee on local transportation, said the city already had done much preliminary work toward drafting a franchise for a united company.

Reach Tentative Agreements.

"We have tentative agreements on many points," he said. "On other points there have been discussions that narrowed the field of disagreement. We must still arrive at a valuation for the properties and for compensation to the city. Also, we must determine regulations for paving and cleaning streets, terms for a subway lease, and details of the proposed $110,000,000 modernization program."

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], head of the subcommittee which conferred through 1938 with traction officials, said plans for physical handling of the properties were almost worked out, and that a final draft might be made in ninety days, if necessary, and be submitted by summer to a referendum of the voters.

It is not expected that the progress will be quite that fast. The agreement of investors on the setting up of the unified company must be completed under the direction of the federal court, and the city and the officials of the company must then get together.

Albert W. Harris is chairman of the last committee to accept the modified Shaw plan for the surface-elevated merger. Eastern financiers were among the committee members. Their decision is to be presented to Judge James H. Wilkerson Jan. 20.

BURGLAR'S STARE FREEZES A LADY AND HE ESCAPES

Mrs. Walter Nichol of 3216 Berteau avenue heard moving footsteps yesterday in the apartment above hers. She knew that the occupant, Mrs. Marguerite Anders, was visiting a friend. So she telephoned her at the friend's home and reported, "There's a burglar in your house."

When Mrs. Anders arrived Mrs. Nichol told her: "After I called I heard the footsteps move to the kitchen. I stepped out on the porch, just as the burglar came down. He was a big man with brown eyes and a baby face. He stared at me and walked by. I was so scared I never thought about calling the police."

Mrs. Anders discovered that the thief had taken jewelry valued at $600.

MRS. JOHN H. HEMINWAY.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Miss Jane Alva Johnson, St. Louis' most prominent society girl and a nationally known expert horsewoman, was married late today to John Hylan Heminway of New York.

The ceremony was performed in a lavish setting of white flowers and candlelight at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson, by the Rev. Alfred Thomson of the St. Louis cathedral. About 500 attended.

The bride, an attractive blonde, ruled St. Louis society as Veiled Profit queen during her debut year in 1933. Her father is chairman of the board of International Shoe company.

The bridegroom, a Princeton graduate, is the son of Mrs. Jay O'Brien, socially prominent in New York and Palm Beach, Fla., and a stepson of Jay O'Brien, polo player and former Olympics athlete.

The couple was expected to depart early tomorrow for their honeymoon, the destination of which was not disclosed. They will live in New York.

APPEAL TO COURT TO UPHOLD LIMIT ON PICKET RIGHTS

A petition requesting the Appellate court to refuse a review of a decision limiting labor's right to picket has been prepared by Attorneys Samuel A. Rinella and Myer Rosengard and will be filed tomorrow.

The Appellate court on Dec. 21 issued an injunction restraining the Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' union, an A. F. of L. unit, from picketing the beauty shop of Ross W. Swing at 5558 North avenue. Testimony showed that no strike had been called in Swing's place and that he had no controversy with his employés, who are not unionized. The picketing was designed to win the employés as union members, and the court pointed out that the state legislature has never amended its labor injunction law to authorize picketing under such circumstances.

The union, with several other organizations intervening to assist, has asked the rehearing on the ground that the decision interferes with the right of free speech. This is disputed in the Swing attorneys' petition. Among the intervenors are the Illinois and Chicago Federation of Labor, the C. I. O., and the civil rights committee of the Lawyers' guild.

C. I. O. ENJOINED FROM TYING UP PACKING PLANT

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A temporary injunction was issued today against the C. I. O. United Packing House Workers' union at the Cudahy Packing company's Sioux City plant.

The writ, which was signed by Judge D. C. Browning, named approximately thirty members of the union and its officers and ordered them not to interfere with work in the plant.

The petition for the injunction charged that officers and members of the union had conspired to damage the company in its business and property rights. It also reviewed several months of disagreement with the C. I. O. workers since Aug. 25, when work was first stopped at the packing plant.

On Oct. 19, according to the petition, the workers declared a holiday in sympathy with strikers at the Swift company packing plant here, where a strike has been in progress for 101 days.

CIVILIAN FLYERS TOLD OF PLANS TO TRAIN PILOTS

Military Reserve Program Described at Maneuvers

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—G. Grant Mason Jr., a member of the Civil Aeronautics authority, tonight disclosed details of President Roosevelt's program for the training of 20,000 civilian flyers annually as a military aviation reserve.

Mason, addressing 1,200 men and women pilots at a banquet, said that actual flight training on the scale necessary to turn out 20,000 pilots is to begin in several hundred colleges and universities during the scholastic year of 1939-'40. The list of schools has not been completed. Cost of this training for the first year, he said, is expected to be $9,800,000.

During its current session congress will be asked to make a special appropriation for this purpose. Mason also announced that the program will be administered by the Civil Aeronautics authority.

Discusses Purpose of Plan.

"The plan simply proposes to give aviation its proper place in the vocational training system which already is established and functioning in public and private schools of the country," said Mason.

"Approximately $22,000,000 in federal funds is expended annually on vocational training. The increasing importance of aviation, both as an economy factor in American life and as a necessary back-log to the national defense, amply justify its inclusion in a federally sponsored vocational training program.

"By limiting flight training to college students of 18 to 25 years and requiring them to meet the present physical standards for a commercial pilot's license, the C. A. A. will insure that a high percentage of the men thus trained will be able to meet both the physical and educational standards of the military flying services."

Leaders Back Program.

Mason concluded by saying that the plans were made after consultations with the aviation industry's leaders, who think the program will stimulate the development of the aircraft industry.

Announcement of details of the program was the high spot in the second day of the all-American air maneuvers.

Max Constant, flying a wasp powered Beechcraft, won the Bernarr Macfadden trophy race. He flew nonstop to the field here from New York City at an average speed of 204.277 miles an hour. His elapsed time was 5 hours 43 minutes, 39 seconds.

Less than 39 seconds behind him were Russell Holderman and Dick Richards in a Lockheed 12 with two wasp Jr., motors. Holderman's elapsed time was 5 hours 44 minutes 17 seconds and his time 204.069 miles an hour.

Wife Is Stowaway.

Holderman's wife accompanied him on the flight. He said she boarded the plane unknown to him just before the takeoff.

Third place went to Sonny Harris and Art Bussy in a twin motored Beechcraft. Their average speed was 186.4 miles an hour.

None of the flyers approached the 270 mile an hour average speed made last year by Jacqueline Cochran in a Seversky with a twin row wasp motor. Miss Cochran's elapsed time was 4 hours 12 minutes 38 seconds for the 1,170 mile trip. The ship flown today by Constant is owned by Miss Cochran.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Emma Rose Evans.

Mrs. Emma Rose Evans, widow of Clinton B. Evans, business news writer and former financial editor of THE TRIBUNE, died yesterday in the Passavant hospital after an illness of several years. She was 78 years old. For many years Mrs. Evans lived in Riverside, where she was active in club and civic work. She also was a former feature writer for THE TRIBUNE. A daughter, Mrs. Marion Evans Vaughan of Washington, D. C., and a son, Clinton B. Evans Jr., survive. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Riverside Presbyterian church. Burial will be private.

Alexander G. Melville.

Funeral services for Alexander G. Melville, president of the Sanitary Cotton company, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the North Shore Baptist church, 1311 Berwyn avenue. He died Friday at the age of 58 after a week's illness. Mr. Melville's father established the Excelsior Quilting company, predecessor of the present concern, in the last century. Mr. Melville had been a life long resident of Wilmette and at the time of his death lived at 1022 Greenwood avenue there. Surviving are his widow, Daisie King Melville; a son, James G., and a daughter, Mary Agnes.

Dr. Hugo J. Von Hagen.

Dr. Hugo J. Von Hagen, geologist and handwriting expert, died yesterday in St. Joseph Mercy hospital in Aurora. He was 73 years old. Born in Germany, Dr. Von Hagen was a graduate of Heidelberg university and received his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Chicago. His home was in Greenwich, Conn., but for the last year he had been residing with a daughter in Shabbona in De Kalb county. His widow, Luella, and two daughters survive.

Thomas A. Keating.

Thomas A. Keating, 63 years old, retired wholesale shoe merchant, died early yesterday of heart disease in his home at 3827 Lexington street. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Presentation church, Springfield avenue and Polk street, with burial in Mount Carmel church. Surviving are his widow, Katherine; three sons and four daughters.

Mrs. Louis J. Friedman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Lesen Friedman, wife of Louis J. Friedman, former Chicago financier, died today at the hotel where they had lived for fourteen years. Mrs. Friedman was widely known as a philanthropist. She was the daughter of the late Marx Lesen of Chicago, where several sisters live.

Dr. Leo Steiner.

Dr. Leo Steiner, well known medical executive, died last night in his apartment at 1765 East 55th street after an illness of two months. He was 54 years old. Dr. Steiner was born and educated in Chicago. He was chief medical examiner for the city civil service commission from 1915 to 1921, and superintendent of the Illinois Charitable Eye and Ear infirmary from 1921 to 1929. He later was president of the Jefferson Park hospital. At his death Dr. Steiner was a medical examiner for the Chicago board of health in addition to being a private practitioner. His widow, the former Lillian Lederer, and a daughter, Irene, survive. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m., at 936 East 47th street. Burial will be in Waldheim.

Percy R. Wild.

Percy R. Wild, a retired sergeant of police, died last night in St. Bernard's hospital after an illness of four years. He retired in 1934 because of ill health after having served twenty-eight years on the force. Sergt. Wild was 56 years old. He was born in Chicago and lived at 910 East 56th street. His long police career was spent in the Stanton avenue and Pekin Inn police districts. His widow, Cecile, survives. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 1506 East 67th street.

Miss Anna Sepple.

Funeral services for Miss Anna Sepple, a former probation officer in the Juvenile court for twenty-seven years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Thomas the Apostle church. Miss Sepple, who was 60 years old, lived at 834 East 57th street. She died Thursday while visiting a sister in Rockville Center, N. Y. Two brothers, Dr. Charles V. Sepple, and Frederick J. Sepple, and two sisters, Mrs. Leo C. Kinsella and Mrs. Bernard J. Reilly, survive.

Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Funeral services with military honors will be conducted at Fort Myer chapel tomorrow for Admiral Walter S. Crosley, United States navy, retired, who died at the Johns Hopkins hospital yesterday. He was 66 years old. Burial will be in Arlington National cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah Radcliffe.

Mrs. Sarah Beresford Radcliffe, 81 years old, a resident of Hyde Park since 1896, died yesterday in her home at 1351 East 53d street. She was the widow of Benjamin D. Radcliffe. Surviving are a son, Howard W. Radcliffe, and two daughters, Mrs. Mabelle R. Gwin and Mrs. Frederick M. Bobo.

Light-weight modern street car for Chicago Surface Lines.

UNDER the clock tower of the Pullman Car Works at 110th and Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, the first modern streamlined train was designed. At this plant the first Streamliner was completed in February, 1934 . . . the culmination of years of research.

Under this same clock tower are created designs, not only of all types of steam railway equipment, but also of all types of Subway, Elevated and Surface Line Cars, as well as Trolley Coaches. Pullman-Standard has built a large number of the Elevated and Subway Cars in which you ride when you are in New York; and Trolley Coaches, Elevated and Street Cars Built by Pullman are in service in Chicago.

Pullman-Standard research has concerned itself with modern light-weight car development for more than a decade. Studies were under way even before materials were available to produce a tangible light-weight product. This background of study and experience is behind every product built by this company today.

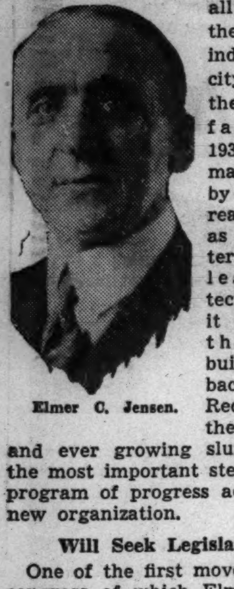
Chicago Leaders in Real Estate and Building Fields Launch Program to Reclaim Slums

WILL ASK LAW TO BRING ABOUT BROAD CHANGES

Open Drive for General Construction Gain.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Launching of the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., the first successful coördination of all branches of the construction industry in this city, was one of the outstanding factors of the 1938 real estate market. Backed by prominent realtors as well as builders, material men, labor leaders, architects, and others, it plans to put the Chicago building industry back on its feet. Reclamation of the city's large and ever growing slums is one of the most important steps planned in program of progress adopted by the new organization.



Elmer C. Jensen.

Will Seek Legislative Aid.

One of the first moves of the new congress of which Elmer C. Jensen is president, will be to obtain legislation which will make possible the formation of public service building corporations to build large housing projects in slum areas with private capital. Operating like public utility concerns, these building corporations would be under state supervision. They would have the right to acquire sites in designated depreciated areas by condemnation.

Officers of the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., believe that the public service building corporation idea, if carried out, will do more to boost construction activity than any other building program so far outlined.

The Chicago real estate market in general improved steadily throughout 1938. No spectacular transactions were made, but sales activity increased slightly and the market is now on a firmer foundation than it was a year ago. Distressed properties gradually are getting into stronger hands.

Occupancy Again Improving.

Residential occupancy, which in 1937 had climbed close to the 100 per cent mark, and then slid down in sympathy with the slump in general business conditions, showed slow but steady improvement during the year. Rents, which also slipped a little early in the year, firmed up in the fall and higher rents are predicted for next May.

Home building in both the city and suburbs was the outstanding activity of the construction industry. In the city there were several hundred more homes built in 1938 than during the previous year. In building of all types in Chicago the total for 1938 was less than 1937.

Residential building in the suburbs continued to exceed that of Chicago itself, as it did in 1937. After a slow start home construction increased steadily throughout the year. During the second half of 1938 the total cost of new homes in the suburbs was greater each month than the year before.

Apartment Building Revives.

After several years of almost complete inertia the apartment building situation in the Chicago area began to look up during 1938. By the end of the year there were under construction or being planned about ten million dollars worth of big apartment buildings. These will contain suites for approximately 1,600 families.

The largest of these, work on which is expected to start shortly, is the Chatham park apartments, at Cottage Grove avenue and 83d street. They will cost about $3,640,000 and contain 549 flats.

The Marine Drive apartments, on Marine drive between Winona street and Carmen avenue, will cost about $1,500,000 and contain 202 suites. Two ten story apartment buildings are planned for South Shore drive, to cost a total of $800,000 and to contain 180 flats.

Work is scheduled to start at once on a $600,000 apartment group in the neighborhood of Ingleside and 86th, to have 120 suites. Another announced project is an 81 flat building group at Hoyne and 111th to cost a reported $500,000.

Other Construction Under Way.

The $1,000,000 Granville Garden apartments, at Hoyne and Granville, were completed during 1938. They cost a million dollars, it was said, and have 196 flats.

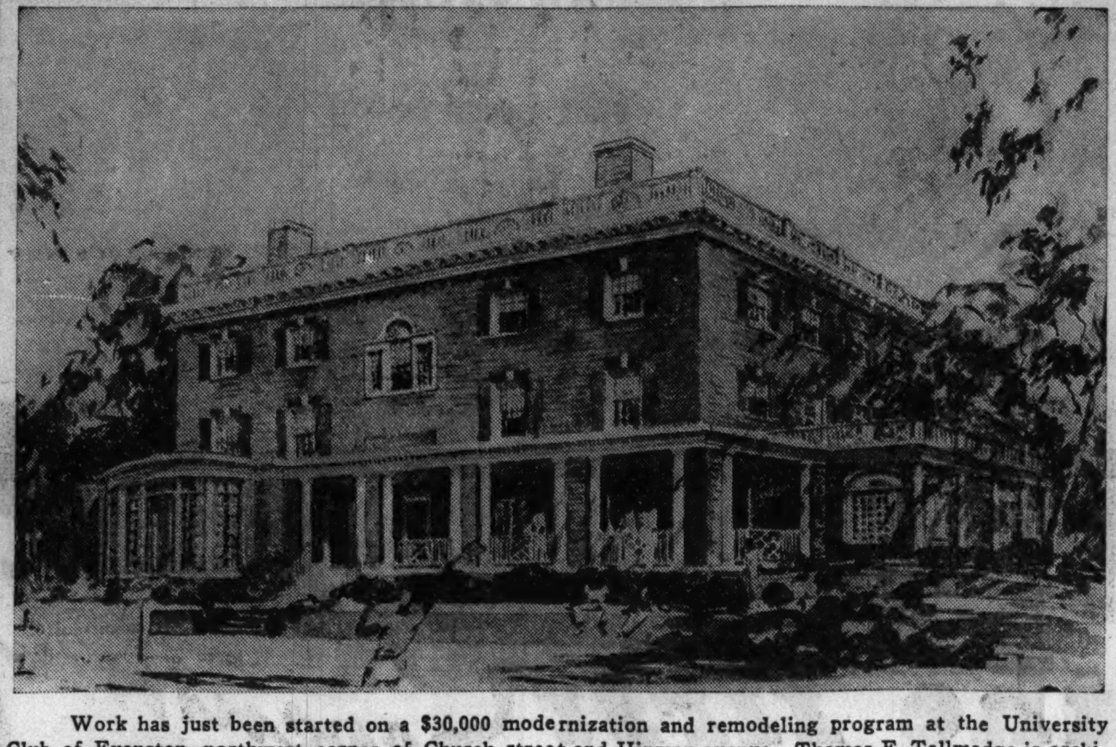
Construction is well under way on the Wolcott apartments, at Wolcott, between Ainslie and Argyle. They will cost a reported $850,000 and have 147 flats. The Isabella Park apartments in Evanston, more than half finished, will cost a reported $700,000, and contain 91 suites.

In the nonresidential class of building one of the largest structures erected during 1938 was the million dollar Sears Roebuck & Co. department store at Cicero avenue and Irving Park road. Another large structure was the $600,000 administration building of the Moody Bible institute.

Several million dollars was spent in new factories and additions to plants in the Chicago area. Of this total a large part of the industrial expenditures were in the Calumet area.

For 1939 both realtors and builders unite in predicting a continued upswing in all types of construction, with residential building a leader.

University Club of Evanston to Be Modernized



Work has just been started on a $30,000 modernization and remodeling program at the University Club of Evanston, northwest corner of Church street and Hinman avenue. Thomas E. Tallmadge is architect, with William N. Alderman as associate architect. A new porch will be built, the dining room will be doubled in size and the kitchen will be rebuilt and modernized. An addition will be made to the billiard room and new offices and a new coat room will be built. The club was built in 1909 from plans by Otis & Clark, architects. It has over 500 members. The president of the club is Prof. Arthur James Todd. Nels Hokanson is chairman of the building committee. J. H. Graf has the general contract. The picture above shows how the club will look with the improvements.

FHA Activity Points to Home Building Gain

John R. O'Connor, state director of the Federal Housing administration for Illinois, yesterday said that in December the value of applications for insured FHA mortgages was more than 100 per cent greater than during the same month of 1937. Last month there were 795 applications for insurance on mortgages totaling $4,210,200. These figures compare with 449 applications in December, 1937, for $2,051,000.

This points to an increase in new small home construction for Illinois during the coming spring, he said. Applications for insurance received during December have a direct bearing on new construction scheduled for the latter part of the winter and early spring.

"Although applications for insurance do not constitute the actual number of mortgages the FHA underwrites," O'Connor said, "they have become an extremely accurate barometer of building sentiment."

DR. MAX LERNER WILL SPEAK AT BANKERS' DINNER

The Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association will hold its eighteenth annual dinner meeting at the Hotel Knickerbocker on Thursday evening, Jan. 12. Walter L. Cohrs, retiring president and vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, will preside. Byron V. Kanaley, attendance committee chairman, expects approximately 500 members and guests to be present.

According to H. R. Goodwillie, chairman of the program committee, Dr. Max Lerner, professor of political science at Williams college, will be the speaker. He will discuss "The Current Political Scene and Prospects for 1940."

The annual election of officers and directors will follow.

FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS LOAN HAS RECORD YEAR

The First Federal Savings and Loan association of Chicago reported yesterday that 1938 was a record year in both volume and number of mortgage loans negotiated. The lending of $2,307,223 to 439 individuals in Chicago and vicinity represented a gain of sixty per cent in volume over 1937 and one and a half times as many separate loans, according to H. O. Walther, managing director. Forty-three per cent of the year's financing, he said, was for the purchase of properties, largely residential, in Cook and surrounding counties. Loans were made during the year for the construction of 20 new homes, costing $199,400.

FLAT BUILDING ELEVATOR MEN GET VACATIONS

Elevator operators in Chicago apartment buildings will receive one week's vacation with pay, according to the Apartment Building Owners and Managers' association. This is part of an agreement entered into by that body and the Elevator Operators and Starters' union, local No. 66. The agreement is for two years, beginning Jan. 1, 1939.

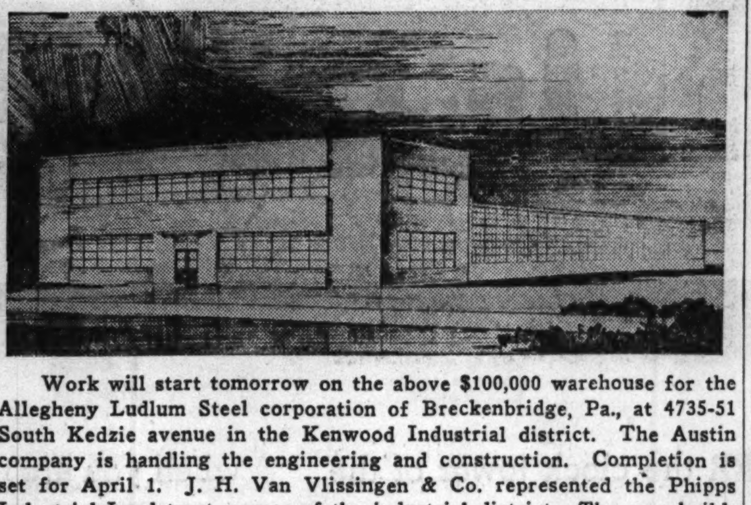
T. J. Stob Again Heads Berwyn-Cicero Realtors

Thomas J. Stob was elected president of the Berwyn-Cicero Real Estate board for the third consecutive time at the annual meeting of that organization on Dec. 16. Others reëlected were: Anton Janura, vice president for Berwyn; George Jaros, vice president for Cicero; Anthony Radous, treasurer, and John O. Sykora, secretary. Installation of officers will be held on Jan. 20, 1939.

Report Increased Interest in Ivanhoe Home Building

Increased interest in home buying at Ivanhoe is reported by Mills & Sons, Inc. According to L. H. Mills seven new orders for homes to be built to order have been received during the last thirty days.

$100,000 South Side Warehouse



Work will start tomorrow on the above $100,000 warehouse for the Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation of Breckenbridge, Pa., at 4735-51 South Kedzie avenue in the Kenwood Industrial district. The Austin company is handling the engineering and construction. Completion is set for April 1. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. represented the Phipps Industrial Land trust, owner of the industrial district. The new building will be of fireproof construction, with face brick on all sides. It will be 84 by 236 feet. It is a duplicate of a warehouse just completed in Detroit.

Woman Legislator Approves Public Service Building Plan

Approval of the proposed public service building corporation plan to reclaim slum areas was given yesterday by members of the general assembly of Illinois. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, Republican representative from the 41st district, said the plan may be the way out of the slum situation confronting practically all American cities. Other members of the legislature indicated that when the necessary legislation is sought they will support it.

Lottie Holman O'Neill

The public service building corporation plan was originated by several Chicagoans after months of study as an approach in a solution of the slum clearance problem. They include J. Soule Warterfield and Arthur Kruggel, former presidents of the Chicago Real Estate board, and Paul D. Angell, former vice president of that organization.

Depends on Legislation.

The plan depends on legislation which would permit the formation of public service building corporations, operating in designated slum areas with private funds, but under state supervision. They would have the right to condemn land for necessary sites. They would operate under conditions somewhat similar to those of public utility corporations in this state.

"This plan for slum clearance looks like the answer to the problem in Illinois without having to comply with all the federal rules," said Mrs. O'Neill. "I did not favor the plan presented last season [a housing law which would have permitted tax exempt projects] but realize that those who voted against that plan ought to have an alternate. Perhaps this public service building corporation plan will be our way out."

Seems Worth While.

"This seems quite a worth while project and I shall be glad to give due consideration to legislation that may be presented in the next general assembly," said Dean S. McGaughey, of Mount Zion, [R., 28th].

Senator Edward E. Laughlin, of Freeport [R., 12th] said he could see no objection to legislation to permit private capital to rebuild slum areas, nor to give the power of condemnation to sponsors of such projects.

Representative Arnold L. Lund, of Riverside [R., 19th], had this to say: "It must be agreed by every one that some effective measure must be taken to abolish the slum areas of Chicago. The proposed plan seems intelligent and without making a comprehensive study of its effects appears to be workable. I intend to devote more time to the study of this issue and hope to be thoroughly familiar with it when the plan comes before the general assembly."

[Views of other state legislators will be given later.]

Beauty Products Concern Rents Old Postal Station

The former Humboldt Park postal station building, at 1402 North Western avenue, has been leased by Joseph A. Krauss, of the Allied Beauty Products Manufacturing company, from Dr. Arthur Preis. The property, containing 12,000 square feet of floor space, is being remodeled for immediate occupancy. Joseph Seeberger & Co. was broker for both parties.

Specialty Makers Lease North Wells Street Space

Weinman Brothers, makers of gift specialties, with general offices in the Merchandise Mart, leased space at 325 North Wells street for manufacturing from the John Moir trust. Albert H. Wetten & Co., agents of the property, represented all parties.

News of the Architects

Books will be discussed at the first 1939 meeting of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, at Normandy house, Chicago avenue and Tower court, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 10. Among the speakers will be Thomas E. Tallmadge, F. A. I. A.; Philip Newell Youtz, director of the San Francisco World's Fair; Ludwig Hilberseimer, city planning expert; Noel Flint, architect and artist, and Syberen Nydam, structural engineer. Each will talk about his favorite books in relation to his specialty.

KRUGGEL & CO. WILL MOVE TO BIGGER OFFICES

Arthur Kruggel & Co., now at 4865 Broadway, will move to 4931 Broadway on Feb. 1. The new quarters, according to Charles Kruggel, vice president and director of sales, will provide nearly twice the space now occupied. They will be within half a block of the present location, occupied for the last fifteen years. Feb. 1 marks the beginning of the firm's twenty-eighth year in the real estate business.

VILLAGE CODE MORE LIBERAL THAN CHICAGO'S

Mount Prospect Permits Modern Building.

Within the last few months two neighboring municipalities have passed laws covering requirements for construction of homes. One was the village of Mount Prospect with a population of 1,500. The other was Chicago, with a population of more than 3,500,000.

But a comparison of the suburb's building code with Chicago's code as far as it applies to dwellings shows that the trustees of Mount Prospect were the more liberal toward the building industry. The Mount Prospect code permits the use of new materials and types of construction which were outlawed by the Chicago code.

Ignore Expert Advice.

City officials have been sharply criticized because they ignored the advice of their experts and the recommendations of technical societies in drafting new building regulations. The 27 year old code was in the process of revision for a decade. Now that the revision is almost complete leaders in the building industry charge that it fails to meet its objectives.

Meanwhile the officials of Mount Prospect quietly set to work to formulate building regulations which would protect property values in the suburb and provide minimum standards of construction. A committee of villagers was appointed and it hired Paul F. Olsen, a Chicago architect, as technical adviser.

Before many months the suburb's code was completed. One of the experts who served on the commission drafting the Chicago code praised it as having "all the requirements for recognized good building practice."

Standards Similar.

The suburb's code in many respects is almost identical with the city code in providing standards for such items as size of rooms, ceiling heights, amount of window and ventilation area, and stairways. It sets up types of construction similar to the Chicago code and in addition recognizes a type of "incombustible construction" for dwellings.

Something along this line was proposed for the new Chicago code, but was rejected by the council. Mount Prospect allows plywood and wall board as substitutes for lath and plaster. The city banned such materials by piling on restrictions that made their use economically impossible.

The city also arbitrarily barred gypsum roofs and cellular steel floors. These are admitted under the Mount Prospect code, the only requirement being that they meet the general safety and fire resistive standards.

Cellular Floors Described.

Cellular steel floors consist of corrugated steel sections, which can be fastened together, leaving several inches of air space between. Concrete can be poured over them for fire proofing. The air spaces can be used for pipes, wires, etc. These floors are useful in making alerations because of their light weight.

The argument in favor of new materials is not that they are cheaper. They cut building costs because they can be applied more quickly. Arguments against new materials and construction methods have been beclouded by disputes between manufacturers and among labor groups.

Carpenters who put up the wallboard don't like plaster because it deprives them of work. Plasterers don't like wallboard for the same reason. These are some reasons why it took ten years to give Chicago a new code.

Seek High Standard.

Officials of Mount Prospect explain that their code is not designed to permit cheap housing. They are determined, they say, to keep homes in the suburb at a high standard. But the code was drafted to enable property owners to get as much benefit as possible for each dollar spent.

A comparison between the two codes is made because there are certain fundamental similarities between Chicago and Mount Prospect which cannot be overlooked. Both have the same weather conditions. Residents of both are affected by the same economic forces. And, it was pointed out, the residents have the same general requirements and personal standards.

Marubio Trust Buys Lot on North Side; Build Later

The Marubio Trust bought from Miss Frances E. Whedon the vacant 50 by 100 feet at 308-10 West Hubbard street for an undisclosed consideration. The buyers own the adjoining property, which they occupy with their own business, and plan to improve the vacant lot in the future. John A. Marr of Crowe Bros. & Co. was broker.

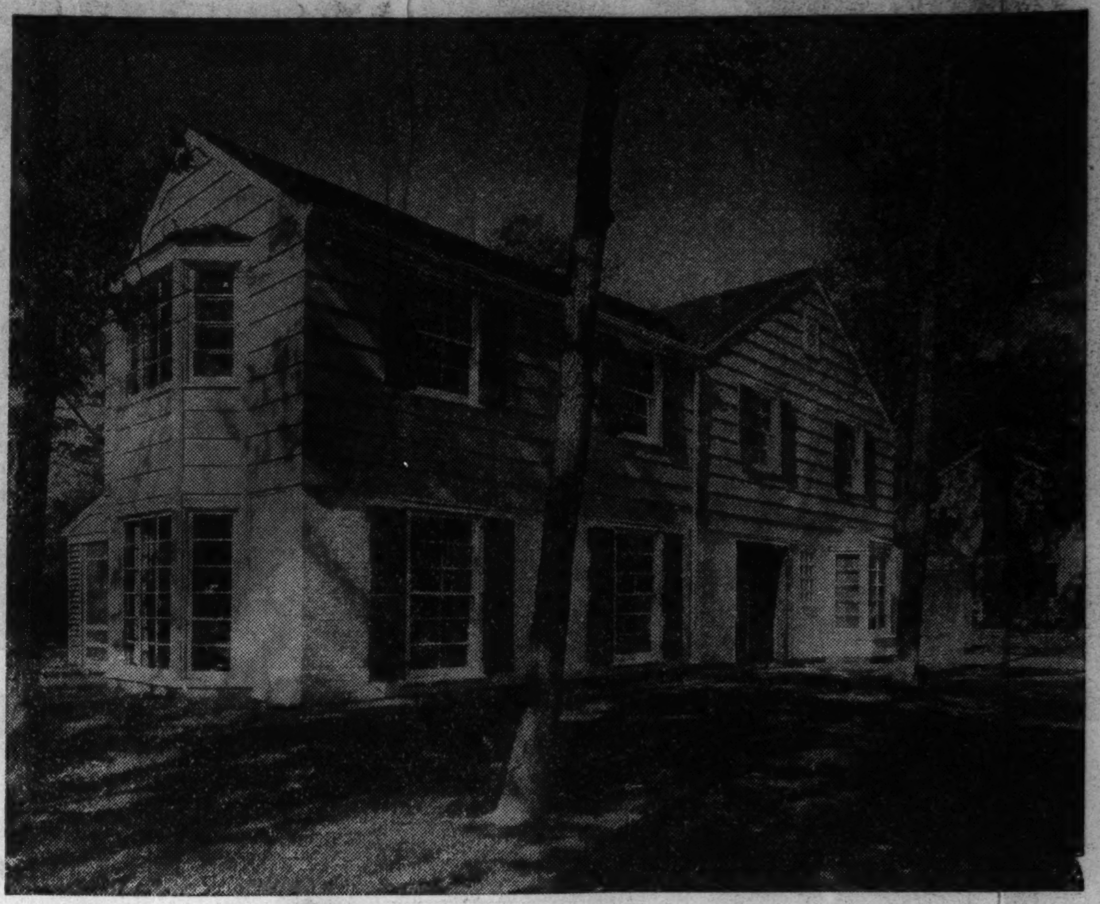
At the Realty Boards

Harry S. Cutmore will discuss the land use survey and its application at the first regular Wednesday noon luncheon meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board on Jan. 11. The meeting will be held at 12:15 p. m., in the board dining room, 32 West Randolph street.

George F. Anderson, of the law firm of Anderson & Anderson, will be the speaker at the business and dinner meeting of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board tomorrow evening at the Shawnee Country club, Wilmette.

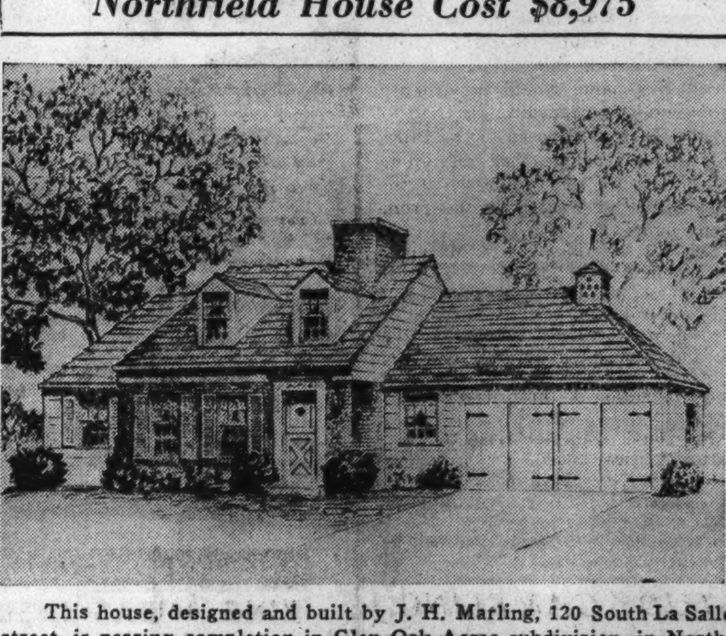
Joseph R. Dorfman will relinquish his duties as president of the West Side Real Estate board tomorrow noon at the first meeting of the year. It will be held at the Graemere hotel. The new president is Fred B. Huebenthal.

North Shore Prize Winning Residence



Above is one of the prize winning houses in the recent "Home Building and Modernization Contest" sponsored by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. White & Weber of Chicago are the architects. It is the residence of V. H. Moon, vice president of the Central Service corporation, 720 Forest avenue, Highland Park. There are eight rooms, three baths, and a two car garage. It has an electric kitchen. The award of $200 was made in the house class above $15,000. The site fronts 211 feet on Linden avenue and 175 feet on Forest avenue.

Northfield House Cost $8,975



This house, designed and built by J. H. Marling, 120 South La Salle street, is nearing completion in Glen Oak Acres subdivision, in Northfield, just east of Sunset Ridge road. It is on Ridgewood lane, between Lake street and Winnetka avenue. Rudolph Schirk is owner. The reported total cost was $8,975. The construction cost was $7,700 and financing costs were $275. The 90 by 125 foot lot cost $1,000 additional. It was financed with a $7,000 twenty year Federal Housing administration insured mortgage through the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, with monthly payments of about $56. It contains three bedrooms, living room, dining room, and kitchen. Exterior walls are of red brick and clapboard. It has a gas fired warm air furnace and is insulated. This is one of three homes under construction by Marling. Four more will be started in the spring, he said. Four recently were completed. All are built to order.

Pay $2,126,175 on Greenebaum Bond Issues During Last Year

Dividends and interest paid in cash during 1938 on reorganized bond issues of the Greenebaum Investment company totaled $1,826,175, according to Edgar N. Greenebaum, president. In addition, approximately $300,000 in cash was distributed in retirement of principal, he said. The total cash distributions to date are $6,584,497. In 1937 the distributions were $2,146,865. In 1936 they were $1,463,108.

"In addition to the $6,584,497 distributed in interest and dividends since the work of reorganization began, approximately $5,612,000 has been paid out in reduction of the principal of the original financing," Greenebaum said.

"This includes funds realized from the sale of properties, the sale of deposited bonds by committees or trustees for the benefit of the bondholders, the refinancing of loans, the redemption of bonds, and the operation of sinking funds. The total amount of cash received by the holders of the Greenebaum reorganized issues from all sources exceeds $12,196,000."

Of the 236 Greenebaum issues, with a par value of $145,461,500, which were forced into reorganization, 212, with a par of $130,165,600, have been reorganized, he said. This leaves 24 issues, with a par value of $15,295,900, to be reorganized.

More than $220,000 in dividends, interest, and principal payments were made on Heitman Trust company issues during 1938, according to Fred P. Heitman, vice president.

Richard M. Loewenstein of the E. & S. Loewenstein company, said $65,224 was paid in dividends during 1938 by twenty-seven building corporations formed coincident with the reorganization of Loewenstein bond issues. In addition, two bond issues extended through the United States District court distributed $7,100 in interest, he said. All Loewenstein issues are said to have been reorganized.

Realty Miscellany

John Hoggins, one of Chicago's oldest real estate men, is celebrating his 87th birthday today. He was born in Kingston, N. Y., on Jan. 8, 1852. He entered the real estate office of William D. Kerfoot & Co. in 1880. He became partner on Jan. 1, 1915. The firm is now known as Jones & Kerfoot, 134 North La Salle street. The other partner is John F. Jones.

Hoggins still is an active member of the firm, being the first one at the office every morning as he has been for the last 59 years. He resides at 6259 Magnolia avenue. His daughter, Mary, is giving a party in his honor at their home today to a few friends.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, director of research at Armour institute, will speak before the Illinois chapter of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, tomorrow evening at the Merchants and Manufacturers' club, in the Merchandise Mart. The subject will be "The Scientific Work of the Byrd Expedition." Dr. Poulter was second in command of this expedition. He will show his own motion pictures.

Merchandise Mart Hits Peak in New Leases

The Merchandise Mart signed 127 new tenants during 1938, according to Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., owner of the building. These leases together with expansion of areas by existing tenants accounted for 312,000 square feet of net floor space. Of the leases which expired during the year 195 were renewed. The new leases and renewals together made 1938 a peak year, Wilson said.

"Proof of the public's interest in home building is indicated by the 60,000 prospects for home construction who have visited the home building exhibit on the seventh floor," Wilson said. "Buyer attendance at the Mart continued to increase during 1938. Two hundred and eighty thousand buying visits, representing an expenditure for goods of 100 million dollars, were recorded last year.

"The Mart's police department reported 185,128 buyers' cars parked in 1938 as compared with 158,534 in 1937."

SLAIN ON ROAD AFTER 2 KIDNAP HIM IN OWN CAR

Young West Sider Killed with Six Bullets.

Less than four hours after he had been reported kidnaped by two men, Robert Lewison, also known as Lewis, a young west sider, was found shot to death last night on a lonely road near Hinsdale. Two bullets had been fired into his head and four into his body. His body was on the road beside his expensive new automobile.

Robert Lewison.

The murder scene was on 31st street road, one mile north of Hinsdale and one-half mile east of the little town of Canfield in Du Page county. Allen A. Myers, chief investigator for the Du Page county state's attorney, expressed the opinion that revenge motivated the killing with the executioner possibly a woman.

Chicago police said, however, it appeared to be a hoodlum crime. Their records showed that Lewison was indicted in an unusual robbery case in 1937. Lewison was 24 years old and lived at 1301 Independence boulevard.

Two Incidents Indicate Plot.

Two definite incidents yesterday and last night indicated that Lewison's death was deliberately plotted. He was riding in his automobile at Independence boulevard and 13th street at 9 a. m. when two men in a car tried to curb him. This incident was witnessed by his brother, Julian, 28, an insurance man.

This apparently did not worry young Lewison. During the afternoon he took his sister, Mrs. Leone Chavin, for a ride. She last saw him at 5 p. m. He told her he was going to the barber shop at 3664 Roosevelt road. He did go there, and left after 6:30 p. m. At 6:50 p. m. he telephoned home that he'd be home in a few minutes. Not long afterward some one called the Lewison home.

Phone Call on Kidnaping.

"Two men just climbed into Bob's car and drove him away," the caller reported. Julian Lewison, remembering the morning curbing incident, immediately notified Fillmore street police, giving the details to Policeman Peter Sinkiewicz. At 10:30 p. m. Lewison's body was found. No clews were found on the scene. A further search will be made today. He was carrying $100 in his pockets.

Lewison was a husky young man and once had hoped to be a pugilist. He was married, but separated from his wife, Ruth, daughter of a wealthy motor executive.

He, Morris Lew, and Harold Shapiro were indicted early in 1937 on a charge of robbing Shapiro's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Shapiro, on Dec. 28, 1936. Young Shapiro allegedly schemed the holdup. Shapiro, a manufacturer, failed to prosecute, and the charges against all were nol prossed.

CAPTURE INSANE CRIMINAL WHO FLED FROM OHIO

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Detective Inspector Fritz Franks identified a man captured here tonight while raiding the National Guard armory as Willard Brucks, 34 years old, one of the five criminally insane men who escaped from Lima, O., state hospital Jan. 1. Brucks admitted his identity.

Franks said he learned two more of the escaped convicts were here last night and today after having spent two days in Council Bluffs, Ia. He identified the other men as William Blatz, 32, and Frank Haines, 36.

Franks said he learned from Brucks that the three spent last night here. In Council Bluffs, Franks said, the men robbed a restaurant where they obtained a blackjack and whisky.

Franks said Brucks told him they left Marion Pierce, Negro who escaped with them, at Fort Wayne, Ind., proceeded to Chicago where they wrecked their automobile and then went to Council Bluffs.

WOMAN, 99, CELEBRATES.

Oelwein, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Jestina Kreklau, the oldest resident of Fayette county, celebrated her ninety-ninth birthday here today. She settled near Stanley, Ia., in 1868, coming here in 1912. She has two sons and a daughter.

ACCUSE MISSING IOWA BANKER OF THEFT; PUT SHORTAGE AT $48,000

Dewitt, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—U. S. Commissioner John D. Hamilton issued a warant in Des Moines today for the arrest of Harold J. Kriebs, cashier of the First National Bank of Dewitt charging him with the theft of $48,000 of the bank's cash. Another $20,000 also is missing.

Harold J. Kriebs.

Kriebs disappeared last Tuesday when he checked out of a Chicago hotel. On Dec. 31 he received a package containing $20,000 in $20 bills which the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago had sent to the Dewitt bank. The next day he received another $20,000 from the bank. The money never reached the Dewitt bank. Examiners have found an $8,000 shortage, according to George Myers, president of the bank. The other $20,000 was reported to have been drawn from the bank's accounts with neighborhood banks.

Kriebs left for Chicago last Sunday and was expected by his wife to return Tuesday. He was a church deacon of temperate habits who liked to play poker and bet on horse races. A reward of $2,000 for his arrest has been offered by the company which bonded him.

DROP ROOSEVELT NAME IN BOOSTING PARALYSIS FUND

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Maryland will not use President Roosevelt's name this year in connection with its benefit ball to raise funds for the campaign against infantile paralysis.

Senator Radcliffe [D., Md.], chairman of the ball committee, said the President's name would be dropped from publicity regarding the benefit because persons opposed to the President and his policies had refused to coöperate with the committee if the chief executive was to be the prominent figure.

For the last five years Maryland has publicized the benefit as a President's birthday ball. Radcliffe said the benefit would be held as usual on President Roosevelt's birthday, Jan. 30, but that publicity will name as sponsors the National Foundation for the Prevention of Infantile Paralysis, Inc.

Maryland, embroiled last fall in a bitter political battle, turned back an attempted New Deal purge of Senator Millard E. Tydings, renominating him by a wide margin over Representative David J. Lewis, indorsed by President Roosevelt.

STUDY GAMBLING LINK IN KILLING OF JOLIET HOODLUM

Will county authorities yesterday were investigating the gang killing of John Balma, 25 years old, a minor Joliet hoodlum. Shot eight times, his body was found in his automobile in the 400 block in South Chicago avenue in Joliet early in the day. He lived at 114 Ferdinand street in that city.

Balma had been playing cards Friday night in the neighborhood where his body was found. Police believe he was killed by two gunmen as he enterted his automobile.

Investigators indicated his murder probably was tied up with the slot machine racket. Since the banning of slot machines in Will county, Balma, according to police, had tried to muscle in on the racket in other parts of the state. Balma once served nine months at the state prison farm at Vandalia on a charge of automobile theft.

Dogs Listed in U. S. Social Guide, but Not Mr. Bailey

An item appearing in THE TRIBUNE yesterday stated that a family of six dachshunds belonging to Theodore M. Bailey of Sioux Falls, S. D., was listed in the 1939 Social Directory of the United States. It was stated that Mr. Bailey also was listed. This was incorrect. The dogs are listed. Mr. Bailey is not.

POLICEMAN KILLS DRUNKEN SLAYER; RECEIVES AWARD

Tribune Honors Hero for Bravery Under Fire.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Detective Allan Mulvey of the Fillmore street police station shot it out with a dangerous criminal on Nov. 30 in a tavern at 10 South Pulaski road. The criminal was slain. From his finger prints he was identified as James Wood, 34 years old, an escaped convict with a long prison record.

Allan Mulvey

Ordinarily Chicago police would have rejoiced that one of their number had won a gun battle with such a criminal. But only a few moments before his crime career was ended he had murdered Mulvey's partner, Detective Edward Lynn. As a result, Detective Mulvey's bravery and the slaying of Wood were almost forgotten in the mourning for the slain policeman.

Victim Cited for Bravery.

Detective Lynn, who was 37, was one of Chicago's best known policemen. He was twice a winner of THE TRIBUNE hero award. Six times in his eleven years on the force he was cited for bravery by police officials.

The two detectives thought it merely a piece of routine business that took them to the tavern the morning of Nov. 30. There was a complaint that a drunk had become quarrelsome.

The "drunk" was Wood, who had been drinking at the bar. He was feigning sleep as the policemen entered. The bartender had seen the outline of a gun in his pocket and told Detective Lynn. To gain time, Lynn pretended to question someone else. Then suddenly Wood whirled and opened fire. Lynn was struck and fell dying.

Mulvey dropped to one knee at the corner of the bar and yanked out his revolver. Then while Wood was firing at him wildly, he picked up his partner's weapon from where it had fallen. Mulvey started shooting from both hands and Wood dropped to the floor with four bullets near his heart. He died within a few minutes.

A Criminal Since 19.

Wood's record showed that his criminal career began when he was 19 years old. He served time in both federal and state penitentiaries. On three occasions he was sentenced to the Missouri penitentiary in Jefferson city for robbery and assault. Twice he managed to escape, the last time in July.

This caused a scandal because he had been assigned to special work at the Boonville reformatory. With only one penitentiary guard watching him and several other convicts, he had merely walked away. The guard had been relaxed despite his long record and the nature of his crimes.

He also served two years at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth for auto theft and was arrested once for bank robbery.

For his coolness under trying circumstances and his bravery in exchanging shots with the killer, Detective Mulvey has been awarded THE TRIBUNE hero award for November. He has been a policeman four years. He is 31 years old, married, and the father of two small children.

Each month THE TRIBUNE awards $100 to the city or park policeman or the fireman who displays the highest courage in the period beyond the ordinary requirements of his service.

Fire, Explosion Destroy Tavern; Damage $3,000

Fire followed by an unexplained explosion early yesterday destroyed the one story building housing a tavern at 8145-47 Dobson avenue. Damage was estimated at $3,000. Police at first thought the building had been bombed but could find no evidence.

Beginning the Seventh Year
OF RESPONSIBLE
LOW COST MEDICAL CARE IN CHICAGO

A UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE begins its seventh year of responsible, low cost medical care in Chicago. Its inauguration in January, 1933, was hailed by a friendly press and an enthusiastic public as an important step toward the solution of the problem of the high cost of medical care—a problem that has engaged the attention of prominent professional and lay individuals for the past 20 years.

Although organized to meet a recognized public need the continued operation of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has been bitterly opposed. Every conceivable obstacle has been used to retard its development. However, public confidence and support have more than offset the effect of this opposition. For six years, without benefit of charity, philanthropy or tax support, it has moved forward steadily, and in the light of recent events will be able to extend its fields of service further this seventh year than ever before.

So upon this occasion, the beginning of our seventh year, we wish to thank the public for the part it has played in the success of this contribution to the health of Chicago. We wish to thank our patients, now numbering over 100,000 men, women and children, for their confidence and support as well as thousands of others who have referred their friends to us. We also wish to thank the physicians in private practice, more than 5,000 of them now, for sending over 20,000 of their patients to us for X-ray examinations, medical laboratory tests and diagnostic services. Many of them could not have afforded these protective medical procedures elsewhere.

This response on the part of the physicians and their patients, as well as the general public, proves definitely that a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is a complete service and is available to all. Its offices occupy five entire floors in the Finchley Building, one of Chicago's most modern and highly respected office buildings. Members of its medical staff and associated physicians are graduates of prominent medical schools and hospitals, with special training and experience in all departments of medicine.

To support this pool of medical knowledge one of the finest X-ray departments in the middle west and a complete and highly efficient medical laboratory and other scientific equipment have been provided. This combination of all medical services makes it possible to render complete medical protection and care not only more efficiently, but at low cost. Newly decorated throughout, a United Medical Service presents as new and attractive an appearance as the day it was opened. Inspection is cordially invited.

Medical and Surgical Care for All Ailments

A United Medical Service provides competent care in all departments of medicine and surgery. Extensive X-ray and medical laboratory facilities add greater value to this service. All physicians and surgeons are experienced and registered by the state.

VINES WHIPS BUDGE IN FIVE SETS; SQUARES SERIES

8,000 See Stadium Match.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Ellsworth Vines, at this writing, is still the greatest tennis player in the world. There will be other matches and other nights on the long road that stretches ahead of the touring troupe, but the 8,000 fans who gathered in the Chicago Stadium last night are satisfied that people just don't play tennis any better than Vines did as he beat Donald Budge, three sets to two, to square their series at two victories apiece. Scores were 3-6, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3, 6-3.

Things appeared anything but promising as the evening began because Vines, after a lackadaisical start, performed erratically while losing the first two sets. But Vines operates on so close a margin of error that he often has to adjust his sights ever so little before his artillery begins to function with devastating effect.

As Vines Goes, So Goes Show.

He did just that as the third set began and those shots that were going out by inches began hitting the lines for clean placements and those services that were slapping the net cord began clearing it for aces.

That made things just dandy, because Budge already was playing good tennis and once Vines got into the game everything sparkled. It has become a characteristic of the troupe that whenever Vines is right, the show is good, whether he wins or loses.

The turning point of the match occurred in the fifth game of the last set. With the score 2 all in sets and two all in games, Vines stepped up to serve. Losing three points in a row, he seemed about to drop the psychological advantage he'd gained by his long uphill climb to square the match. Then he clicked out point after point to come up from love-forty and win the game.

Double Default Ends Sets.

In the next game he played as though he couldn't miss. Drawing Budge out of position, he went to the net repeatedly to put away points with confidence and precision. Breaking Budge's service, he led 4-2. On his own delivery he continued to attack inexorably and led, 5-2. He conserved his strength while losing the next. Leading 5-3, Vines then put everything he had into his services. With an ace, a placement after a short rally, and another ace, he went to 40-0. A double fault checked him. Then he put away another clean placement to end the match.

Through the opening games, Vines and Budge maneuvered to get the range, brightening up some lackadaisical tennis with a few brilliant strokes. After Vines had taken the first game, Budge settled down and ran four in a row, breaking through Vines' service on the last of these after it had gone to deuce five times.

Vines steadied and got off some good shots during protracted rallies to take the next two. Then he became erratic again and dropped two, terminating the set with a double fault.

Vines Rallies in Third.

Vines drew the cheers of the crowd with his aggressive play at the outset of the second set. He broke through Budge's service and then won on his own. Budge took command at this juncture and ran six consecutive games. Again the set ended on a double fault by Vines.

Vines started well in the third set, taking the first game as he drew his opponent out of position with a beautifully executed lob and smacked the return for a clean placement. He went on to win his own service at love and then cracked through Budge's service. Leading 40-30 in the next game, Vines hammered a service ace past Budge to take a 4-0 advantage. Continuing his brilliant stroking, Vines won the next also, scoring the decisive point with a long low drive to the forehand corner. He ran the next game to 40-30, tried a drop shot that his opponent returned and then hammered over a fine backhand passing shot to take the set, 6-0.

The Champion Bears Down.

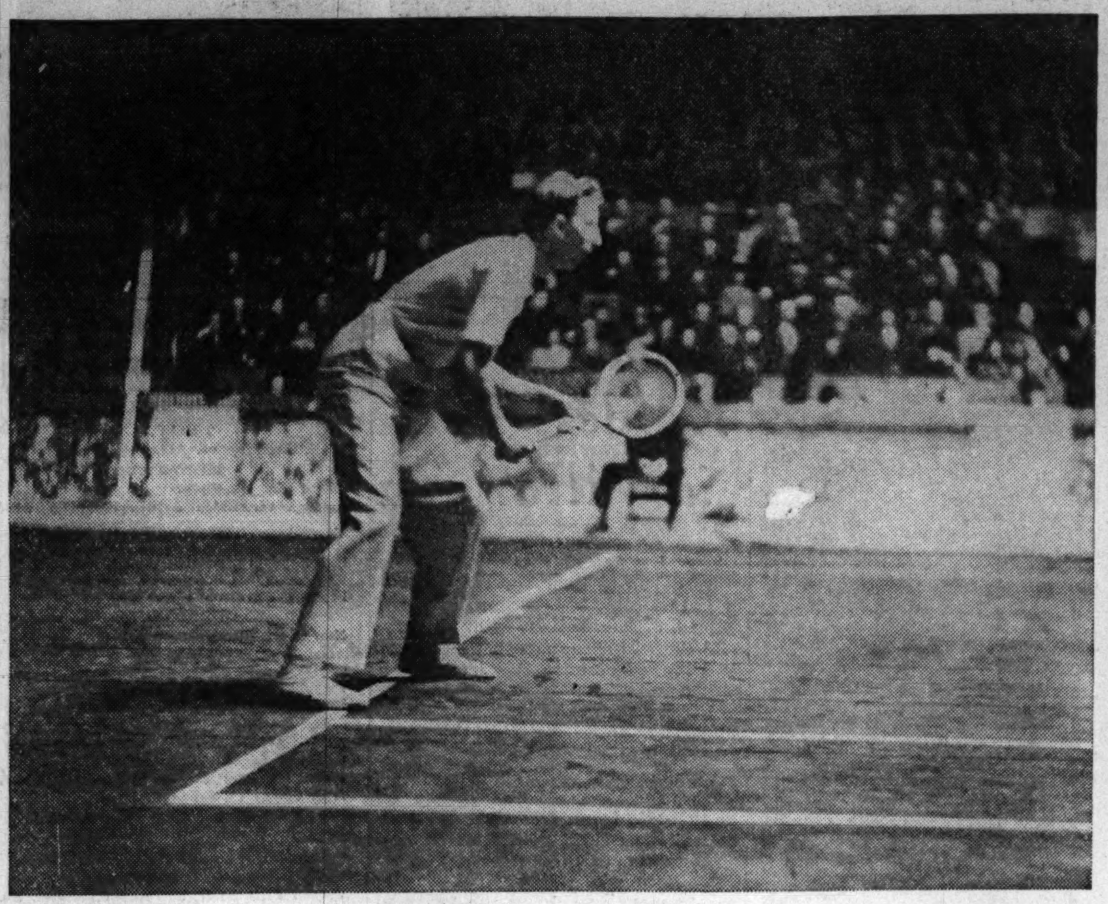
Vines won the first two games of the fourth set to run his string to eight in a row. Games went with service until Vines, leading 5-3, broke through with a series of perfectly executed placements to take the set, 6-3, squaring the match.

Games went with service for the first five games of the final set. Then Vines, attacking inexeorably, broke through to lead, 4-2. His tremendous service ace was the deciding point in the next game and he led, 5-2. Vines eased off while dropping the next on Budge's service. Then he rode in on his own delivery to take the set, 6-3, winning the match.

In the match which opened the program, Dick Skeen of Los Angeles beat Bruce Barnes of Austin, Tex, 7-5, 6-3.

Vines and Barnes beat Budge and Skeen, 6-3, in the exhibition doubles set that followed the main event.

CHICAGO GETS A PEEK AT NO. 1 MEN OF TENNIS



Don Budge, the champion of champions in amateur tennis last year, poises for a shot from Ellsworth Vines, the world's No. 1 professional, in their match in the Chicago Stadium last night. It was the fourth one night stand for the troupe in its nation-wide tour, which introduces the colorful Budge to professional tennis.

Baer to Enter Ring Against Nova May 25

Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, yesterday said that the former heavyweight champion would meet Lou Nova of Alameda, Cal., in a fifteen round elimination bout in Yankee stadium, New York, May 25. The announcement means that Baer will not engage in a proposed match with Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., challenger, in Philadelphia in May under the auspices of Promoter Herman Taylor.

Hoffman also conferred with Nate Lewis, Chicago Stadium matchmaker, about a contest between Max's giant brother, Buddy, and Galento for presentation in the west side arena next month. Ancil agreed to the match, but Lewis is having difficulty signing Galento.

Seeks Bout with Max.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the Orange Fat man, demands that Max first sign to meet his protégé in May. Failure to accept will cost Buddy his chance against Galento in the Stadium, Jacobs told Hoffman.

Buddy has opened drills in Sacramento in anticipation of the Galento engagement.

Max and Hoffman left last night for Rome, N. Y., where they will appear tomorrow as defendants in a $50,000 law suit. The suit was filed by Mrs. William W. Wallis of Rome. Mrs. Wallis charged she was injured when the bleachers collapsed in Baer's training camp in Speculator, N. Y., in September, 1935.

Wants Louis Match.

From Rome, Hoffman said he would go to New York and sign for the Nova bout. He said he will not agree to more than the one bout. If Max eliminates Nova, recent conqueror of Tommy Farr, he will meet Galento if necessary to earn a rematch with Champion Joe Louis, Hoffman said.

Max will open a week's refereeing tour in Boston, Jan. 16. Then he will return to California for a Hollywood screen test, upon which will depend a five year movie contract.

FAUROT SIGNED AS COACH AGAIN BY MISSOURI

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Don Faurot today was reappointed head football coach and instructor in physical education at the University of Missouri.

The board of curators at its meeting in St. Louis approved the recommendation of the committee on intercollegiate athletics that Faurot be reappointed for one year at his present salary of $6,000 a year.

The curators also approved the committee's recommendation that Phil Bengtson, assistant football coach; John C. Simmons, freshman coach, and Chauncey G. Simpson, assistant football and track coach, be reappointed for 1939.

Yankees Send Four Back to Minor League Farms

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The New York Yankees today released four players to farm teams. Pitchers Kemp Wicker and Paul Andrews and Outfielder Colonel Mills, acquired recently from the St. Louis Browns, were sent to Newark of the International league, and Pitcher Joe Vance to Kansas City of the American association.

DEMARET CARDS 68, KEEPS LEAD AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The fourteenth annual Los Angeles open reached the half way mark late today and found Jimmy Demaret still in command of the bulky field of professional and amateur stars with a thirty-six hole score of 134.

The young Houston, Tex., pro, adding another par breaking round of 68 to his first round of 66, finished the day four strokes in front of two "dark horse" candidates, E. J. [Dutch] Harrison, former Little Rock pro, and Mark Fry of Oakland, Cal.

As first round threats, Leo Diegel, Lawson Little, and Abe Espinosa fell back under the torrid pace, and Defending Champion Jimmy Thomson, Sammy Snead, Dick Metz, and Horton Smith pressed along in the forefront of tournament favorites. Demaret clipped three shots off the Wilson course par almost as easily as he sliced four shots off the champion Harding course yesterday.

Jimmy Thomson Bags a 67.

Espinosa, who posted a 68 in the first round, needed 74 today, while Little and Diegel, who had 69s yesterday, had 75s today.

Thomson toured the Harding course in 67 for 139 and Snead, who had a first round 73, shot a 69 on the Wilson layout before the largest gallery of the day, a throng of 2,000.

Harrison, now located at Chicago, turned in a surprising 66, while Fry stayed in the running with a total card of 68—70—138.

Tied at 140 were Horton Smith, Harold McSpaden, and Marvin Stahl, the latter of Lansing, Mich., who had a 68 today. Metz and Ivan Sicks, Los Angeles caddie, ended the round with 141, while the 142 group included Snead, Harry Cooper, Byron Nelson, Eddie Loos, Ed Gayer, and Espinosa.

Only 100 Survive.

The field tonight was cut to 100 low scorers, and ties.

Scores of 151 or under go into tomorrow's third round, with the final round set for Monday.

Weather conditions were ideal. Movie Stars John Boles, Bing Crosby, Richard Arlen, Leon Errol, Johnny Weissmuller, Martha Raye, and other celebrities joined in the throngs.

Western State Quintet Defeats Wayne, 39 to 34

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Western State handed Wayne university its second setback of the basketball season tonight, 39 to 34. Wayne led at the end of the first half, 25 to 23, and once in the second half had a 31 to 25 margin, when a Western State rally put the Hilltoppers in front.

Hawks Host to Leafs Tonight on Stadium Ice

Games Tonight

Detroit Red Wings at Montreal Canadiens.
Toronto Maple Leafs at Chicago Blackhawks.
New York Americans at New York Rangers.

The Toronto Maple Leafs will be the Blackhawks' opponents tonight in the Stadium. The teams, contenders last spring for the Stanley cup have battled four times to date this season, twice in Chicago, and twice in Toronto. Both Chicago contests finished even. The overtime clashes ended 1 to 1 and 4 to 4. In Toronto the first game went to the Hawks 2 to 0, the second to the Leafs 4 to 1.

The bitter feeling existing between the clubs, an outcropping of Red Horner's rough play in the savagely fought Stanley cup series that saw the cup go to the Hawks, has somewhat abated due to the trade which sent Doc Romnes to the Leafs.

While the games between the teams indicate they are about on a par, their general showing to date find both outfits below expectations.

Toronto Led Scoring Last Year.

The performances last season of Gordon Drillon, Syl Apps, Harvey Jackson, Pep Kelly, Nick Metz, and Bob Davidson, the highest scoring sextet in the circuit, made Toronto the top notch scorers of the league. With 151 goals to their credit they averaged better than 3 goals per game.

Only two of the sextet, Jackson and Kelly are showing consistency in scoring this season, and as a result the Leafs are averaging less than two scores per game.

The game will mark the first appearance of Bucko McDonald, former Detroit Red Wing, in a Toronto uniform. The former champion steakeater of the league will pair with Jimmy Fowler on a defense line. Horner will function alongside of Bingo Kampman who was out of the last Leaf-Hawks game in the Stadium because of injuries. Horner is again in the lead for bad man honors. He has been assessed nearly 50 minutes in penalties.

Red Heron Makes Appearance.

In preparation for tonight's contest the Paul Thompson-Carl Voss directorate yesterday sent the Hawk squad through two hard scrimmages in the Chicago arena. According to Coach Thompson it is the first time since the opening game of the season that the Hawks have been able to muster a team devoid of injuries.

Despite the fact that the Blackhawks on Thursday lost to Boston 2 to 1, Thompson pronounced it the best played game of the season for the Hawks. Tonight's lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		MAPLE LEAFS.
Karakas	G	Broda
Seibert	R. D.	Horner
Wiebe	L. D.	Kampman

DePauw Triumphs, 33-28, Over Franklin Quintet

Green Castle, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—De Pauw university defeated Franklin college, 33 to 28, in an Indiana conference basketball game tonight. The victory gave De Pauw the conference leadership.

ENTRY LIST FOR SILVER SKATES IS COMPLETED

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Entries for the twenty-second annual Silver Skates Derbies which will be held next Saturday and Sunday afternoons in Garfield park closed last night. However, all letters received today will be accepted by the clerks who will finish listing contestants in the eight Derbies by tomorrow evening. This will comprise the list of eligible contestants for the 1939 races, even if it becomes necessary to postpone the events until later because of unfavorable weather.

Gen. John V. Clinnin.

There are forty major prizes, including twenty-four pairs of skates. Five awards will be made in each of the eight Derbies and each champion will receive Silver Skates. Each contestant will receive a bronze button and each winner of a preliminary race will be awarded a gold medal. More than 250 of these medals will be available for the preliminaries Saturday in four Derbies and again in the preliminary races of the other Derbies Sunday.

Gold Medals for Lap Leaders.

Gold medals will be awarded to those skaters who lead for the greatest number of laps in each of the three longest championship races, the girls' senior one mile, boys' intermediate one mile, and the men's senior two mile final. Quite frequently the skater who sets the early pace does not win Silver Skates and this special award is compensation for willingness to step up the tempo of the events for the older contestants.

There are two team trophies. One will be presented to the club which has the largest number of contestants in the preliminaries. The Walter Eckersall Memorial trophy, which was placed in competition in 1931, is presented to the team scoring the most points in the eight championships. Five places count in this scoring. First place counts 50 points, second scores 40 points, and the remaining 30, 20, and 10 points, respectively. The team trophy was won by the Northwest Skating club last year, which now has two legs on the trophy. Skaters of the Catholic Youth organization also have been victorious twice. If either of these teams win Sunday it will get permanent possession of the trophy and another will be placed in competition in 1940.

Pick Roll as Midget Winner.

Members of the Glen Ellyn Amateur Athletic association, whose team entry was submitted several days ago by Bob Starrett, believe the boys' midget championship will be won by David Roll, a 10 year old, who so far has done exceptionally well in earlier races. He won the state title a week ago, defeating, among others, Jerry Fehrenbach of the C. Y. O. Bill Meskan, who began the season as a novice in the senior class has almost advanced to class B of the seniors by victories so far, while Lenore Long is an outstanding skater in the girls' senior class. Others who have excel-

GRANT TO MEET SABIN IN FINALS IN DIXIE TENNIS

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 7.—[U. P.]—Bryan Grant of Atlanta and Wayne Sabin of Los Angeles entered the finals of the Dixie tennis tournament today.

Grant used clever defensive tactics to eliminate Hal Surface of Kansas City, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Sabin played a hard driving game to defeat Gene Mako, top seeded player from Los Angeles, in a furious five set match, 6-0, 4-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-0.

The finals will be played tomorrow.

Cunningham, Lash Race to Easy Victories

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Don Lash, the Indiana state patrol man, tonight overhauled Tommy Deckard of Bloomington, Ind., to win the Conklin trophy 3,000 meter run in the Columbus council, K. of C. games in the 245th Coast Artillery armory in Brooklyn.

Lash, never worse than fourth in the eight man field, let Deckard, his former teammate at Indiana university, make the pace. Don sprinted coming out of the next to last turn and went on to win by six yards in eight minutes twenty-eight seconds, six-tenths of a second off the American record set in this race last year by Archie San Romani.

Cunningham Follows Lash.

Glenn Cunningham ran a race on Lash's pattern to win the 800 meter grand knight trophy special in 1:53, fastest time ever made on the Brooklyn armory's flat floor. The big Kansan let first Howie Borck, then Curtis Giddings, and finally Gene Venzke lead until the field of eight hit the backstretch.

There Cunningham came past Venzke to stride easily across the finish line with a three yard margin over the New York A. C. star who won this event a year ago. Venzke held off Charley Beetham, N. C. A. A. half mile champion while at Ohio State, to take second place, with Leslie MacMitchell, a freshman at N. Y. U., making a good showing by placing fourth in his big time debut.

Herbert Runs 5th.

But while Cunningham and Lash scored handy but expected triumphs, Wesley Wallace turned in an upset in the 500 meter event, which he won in world record time. He sprinted into first place at the starters' gun, opened up a five yard lead on Mortimer Alnwick of Georgetown university, and then beat back a fine closing bid by Lou Burns, former I. C. 4-A mile and half mile champion, to win by three yards. His time was 1:04.4.

The former world record of 1:05 was shared by Alan Helffrich of the United States and Phil Edwards, rangy Canadian negro star.

Wallace's triumph was so decisive that it overshadowed the complete failure of Jim Herbert, world record holder and national champion at 600 meters. Herbert had won this event the last two years, but tonight he never was better than fifth, and was last at the finish. Behind Wallace and Burns in third place came Dick Squires of the 69th regiment A. A., New York, with John Borican of the Shore A. C., Elberon, N. J., the National Pentathlon champion, fourth.

Glickman Wins Series.

Herbert Weast, Ben Johnson's successor as Columbia university's star sprinter, and Marty Glickman, former Olympian from Syracuse, tied in the great American sprint series with five points each as Glickman won the 60-meter and 100-meter dashes and Weast the 80-meter test, while Weast was runner-up twice and Glickman once. Glickman scored in 6.8 and 10.9 seconds, respectively. The Columbia ace won the 80 meters in 8.8.

U. S. G. A. CHIEF SAYS CHANGES IN BALL OVER

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Archie M. Reid, reëlected president of the United States Golf association, announced today golf ball manufacturers finally have agreed to adhere to definite specifications designed to limit the ball to its present distance qualities.

The U. S. G. A. has felt for several years that an increasingly "lively" ball was a hazard, since it enabled even the poorest duffer to hit long drives and threatened to make par a joke as far as tournament golfers were concerned.

Reid told the association at its annual meeting the stymie rule introduced for a one year trial in 1938, would be continued for the present.

The rule permits lifting of the nearer ball when it is within six inches of the cup as well as when within six inches of the other ball.

Reid was reëlected unanimously. Other officers who served with him in 1938 were continued. They are: Vice presidents, Harold W. Pierce of Brookline, Mass., and R. Arthur Wood of Highland Park, Ill.; secretary, Frenk M. Hardt, Haverford, Pa.; treasurer, Jess W. Sweetser, New York; counsel, Charles W. Littlefield, Montclair, N. J.

CONN SIGNS TO BOX APOSTOLI IN GARDEN AGAIN

New York, Jan. 7.—[U. P.]—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh today signed a contract to meet Fred Apostoli in a fifteen round match in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 10. Apostoli was expected to agree to terms later.

The distance is five rounds farther than they went last night when Conn, 13 to 5 underdog in the betting, won the decision.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Purdue closed with a burst of scoring tonight to cut short a Northwestern rally and successfully launch its defense of the Big Ten basketball championship with a 35 to 24 victory. It marked the seventh triumph in eight starts for the almost completely rebuilt Purdue team.

The game marked the return to action of Capt. Gene Anderson, the Boilermakers' all-conference center, who, although used but sparingly, was an important factor in the ball handling that was responsible for the victory.

Drives under the basket gave Purdue an early 6 to 1 lead, with Dan Fisher, elongated forward, scoring twice, and thereafter the Boilermakers were not headed. Long shots by Ad Vance, Wildcat guard, in the last two minutes of the half brought the score to 18 to 11 at the intermission.

Purdue Breaks Loose.

With Anderson out of the Purdue lineup, Northwestern rallied in the second half and midway of the period it had cut the margin to 27 to 24.

Two field goals by Shepard and long shots by Melcheoir and Davis were the main factors in the Wildcat rally.

Northwestern's threat was only momentary, however, as Dan Fisher touched off another Purdue scoring spree with two field goals, and Bob Igney and Fred Beretta followed with baskets to clinch the victory. Lineup:

CHICAGO LOSES, 38-28

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Chicago's lanky basketball team has been rated one of the most improved in the Big Ten this year, and it gave first hand evidence of this to Minnesota's Gophers and 10,680 spectators here tonight. The Gophers won 38 to 28 but the Maroons gave them a stiff argument.

Especially in the first half were the Maroons troublesome. On four occasions they tied the score, and twice they were ahead. The Gophers managed to build up a 20 to 14 margin at the intermission with a late spurt.

Twice in the second half the Gophers pulled away to 14 point margins, but the Maroons kept coming back.

Lounsbury, Stampf Star.

Dick Lounsbury, with eleven points on four field goals and three free throws, and Joe Stampf, who scored seven points, led the Chicago attack. Lounsbury finally was forced out of the game on fouls.

Johnny Dick provided the points which enabled the Gophers to pull away in the first half, and Johnny Kundla served the same purpose in the second half. Kundla was the night's leading scorer with six field goals. The two Gopher guards, Maki and Dick, had nine points each.

ILLINOIS WINS, 30-20

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Leading from the outset, Illinois opened the Big Ten season tonight with a 30 to 20 victory over Michigan. It was the seventh victory of the season for the Illini.

Hapac and Wardley each scored field goals at the start, but Beebe and Smick duplicated for Michigan. Illinois immediately went ahead and led, 14 to 7, at the half. The Wolverines were unable to break through the tight Illinois defense with any consistency. Pick Dehner led the scoring with ten points and was effective on rebounds.

JOHN HENRY TO SEE IF 'PAP'S' THEORY WORKS

Father Long Ago Told Son How to Be a Champion.

Summit, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—'Way back when John Henry Lewis was just a little shaver around Phoenix, Ariz., his father handed him a theory which he expects will win him the world heavyweight championship from Joe Louis on Jan. 25.

"John Henry," pappy advised, "if you want to get somewhere fighting, always hold yours hands up, throw punches and keep the seat of your pants off the floor."

That's just the plan John Henry figures on using against the brown bomber when they tangle in Madison Square Garden's ring. Of course, this particular system will be mixed with a liberal quantity of applied science—the boys in the business call it brains or "noodle"—and a whole flock of right hands.

He'll Fire Rights at Joe.

Although he isn't talking much about it, John Henry's training sessions here at Madame Bey's camp in the Jersey hills indicate he's going to fire righthand shots at Joe all evening. As Max Schmeling once did, John Henry apparently "zees zomezings" in the Louis armor.

It's a neat punch, too, when it works, that Lewis right hand. He snaps it straight off his shoulder with an overhand delivery and you're reminded of an airplane landing when it whips across. He's giving his spar mates large doses of that blow daily, and when he finishes with them he keeps right on practicing it until the harmless little light bag howls for mercy.

John Henry is confident he can whip Joe. He's expecting the fight to go the distance, with Mr. Louis from Detroit abdicating in favor of Mr. Lewis from Poenix when the fifteen rounds are over. Lewis is so confident, in fact, that he has about decided to give up the light heavyweight championship [he's recognized everywhere but in New York] for keeps.

Listen to John Henry Talk!

"What's the use of having two titles?" he says. "One's enough for anybody. And the heavyweight one is enough for me."

"Heck," he adds, when a listener is doubtful, "you don't think I'd have taken this fight if I didn't think I could beat him, do you? I won't be giving away much weight, maybe fifteen pounds. I'll come in around 185." [He weighed 189 when he opened training last week.]

About the brains—well, John Henry won't go into that, but others around the camp will. Take George Gunther, a little Negro who admits to 65 years and spending thirty-four of them in the ring. During that time, from 1889 to 1923, he had 617 fights, among them bouts with Jack Blackburn and Joe Gans.

"Well, sir," says George, "you know why John Henry's got a good chance? This is why," and he taps his forehead. "He thinks faster in the ring than Joe does. And he'll be smarter in the infighting."

Trainer Casts a Vote.

Then there's Larry Amadee, who's training John Henry and who worked with Joe for more than a year. He insists John Henry can do it because he's the better boxer and ring general.

John Henry's plan of campaign for the fight itself has been set. His trainers tip you that he'll keep moving to Joe's right to stay away from the Louis right cross that can make dreamers out of the most wide-awake. Then he'll fire left hands to the body and those rights, dozens of them, to the head.

That sounds all well and good, John Henry, but maybe Joe'll have something to say about it.

ANNIVERSARY OF RICKARD'S DEATH PASSES UNNOTED

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The tenth anniversary of the death of Tex Rickard in Miami Beach, Fla., was permitted to pass without mention last night during the boxing show in Madison Square Garden, the arena that stands as a monument to his memory.

Not a single word of tribute was heard in the house that Tex built. However, the show was worthy of the finest traditions of the great promoter.

Burt Weeden, One-Time Boston N. L. Catcher, Dies

Northwood, N. H., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Burt Weeden, former Boston National league catcher, minor league manager, and director of the Hal Roach Studio league in Hollywood, died today of a heart attack. At one time he served as manager of the Hagerstown team of the Blue Ridge league. In recent years he operated a lunchroom here.

SOUTHLAND BECKONS NORTHERN HUNTERS—QUAIL SEASON IS ON

Time out from the quail hunt for a rest beneath a moss draped live oak. The scene is the west coast of Florida.

"Here's the covey," these pointers seem to say, as they freeze a point in Florida. Northern hunters will re-enact this scene frequently this month.

Here's that bird, boss! Cap, a Florida pointer, retrieves a quail.

These two pointers are delighted to ride in their special compartment, for they're going to find quail near Medon, Tenn.

THREE BOXING SHOWS OFFERED FANS THIS WEEK

Three shows are on this week's boxing schedule. Verne Patterson, 1937 Chicago Golden Gloves welterweight champion, and Indian Billy Lee of Milwaukee will meet in an eight round headliner in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. After a two weeks' lapse shows will be resumed in Park Casino Wednesday headed by a ten round event between Pete Lello, 1936 Golden Gloves lightweight title holder, and Leone Efrati. Umio Gen, Japanese 128 pounder, will make his Chicago debut in a ten round windup against Frankie [Kid] Covelli in White City Friday.

Marigold supporting matches include those involving Tony Motisi, Catholic Youth organization 147 pound fighter, and Tommy Pallatin, who clash for five rounds; Tony Sopka, Elmwood Park welterweight, and Johnny Rock, who meet for four rounds, and Marion Mosley and Art Pavlis, heavyweights, who also fight four rounds.

Motisi, former C. Y. O. welter ruler, remains undefeated as a professional. His victims include Owen Woods, whom he stopped Dec. 26; George White, Dec. 21, and Alex Pug, Nov. 4. Tony faces serious opposition in Pallatin. Tommy, member of the 1937 International Golden Gloves team, won the National A. A. U. 135 pound crown in 1936.

Agreed weight for the Lello-Efrati bout is 132 pounds. Efrati has not weighed more than this mark in nine appearances he has made since his arrival in this country. Efrati carried 132 pounds when he fought Eddie Dempsey to a draw in the 124th Field Artillery armory Nov. 29. He was at the same poundage when he conquered Dempsey in a previous battle in the Park Casino Nov. 9. His lowest weight was the 128¼ he scaled against Gene Spencer Sept. 30.

Lello may have difficulty reducing to the stipulated poundage. He weighed 134½ when he knocked out Varias Milling Sept. 23. Then again Lello carried 132 in his eight round conquest of Bobby McIntyre July 25.

In a five round secondary feature Nick Castiglione, Italian-American lightweight, faces George Van Der Hayden, former Golden Gloves featherweight title holder.

The Gen match will be Covelli's first start since his fine victory over Al Mancini of Providence, R. I., in the Coliseum Dec. 29. Verle Davis, Kankakee lightweight, will appear in a supplementary contest. . . . Wrestling shows will be presented in White City and Cicero stadium tomorrow and Rainbo Fronton Wednesday. Jim McMillen tops the White City and Fronton shows against Olaf Olson and Fritz Von Schacht respectively. Stanley Pinta and Pat Murphy are windup principals in the Cicero arena.

The figures include 45,500, who attended the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions Feb. 28 and March 1 and 2, the 21,500 at the finals March 11, and the 21,000 at the international tournament May 18.

10,000 See C. Y. O. Finals.

One of the next largest crowds is the 10,000 who purchased tickets to the finals of the C. Y. O.'s annual tournament in International Amphitheater Dec. 9.

Other big attendances include the 10,468, who paid $45,000 to see Joe Louis successfully defend his heavyweight title against Harry Thomas in the Stadium April 1, the 8,040, who gave up $18,040 to watch Henry Armstrong score a technical knockout over Everett Rightmire in the Amphitheater Feb. 25, and the 11,000, who paid an estimated $35,000 to see Davey Day stop Harvey Woods in 124th Field Artillery armory Nov. 29.

Marigold Draws 86,271.

Increased attendance also was due in a large measure to Marigold Gardens, weekly neighborhood fight club on the north side. Fifty-one Marigold programs offered under the co-promotion of Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun drew 86,271 spectators. Gross proceeds amounted to $101,599.

In addition sixteen cards in White City, held under the auspices of Sam Abruscato, attracted 25,811, who were responsible for aggregate receipts of $24,062. Eight shows in Park Casino, sponsored by Harry Hannin and Izzy Kline, drew 13,131, who responded to tune of $15,569.

WILLARD SAYS HE'D TAKE JOB FROM DEMPSEY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[U. P.]—Big Jesse Willard isn't broke, but he's willing to work for Jack Dempsey, the man who whipped him and took the heavyweight title in 1919.

Willard admitted today that he had been a bit short on luck, "but I'm not broke or going hungry."

Dempsey had heard earlier this week that Willard, the white hope who won the heavyweight title from Jack Johnson in 1915, wasn't doing so well. Friends said Dempsey hoped to repay Willard for giving him his first break in the ring.

"I'd be tickled to death to work with Jack," Willard said.

"Jack is a first-rate fellow and I certainly appreciate the offer. But I haven't received his letter yet and don't know all the details. I'll be glad to join Jack, if we can work out something to suit us both."

Willard was puzzled about reports that he was broke.

"I've had business reverses," he said, "and things haven't been too good lately, but I manage to do all right. I still have my ranch in west Texas and a home in Glendale."

Ken O'Dea Returns Signed Contract to N. Y. Giants

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The New York Giants today received the signed contract of Catcher Ken O'Dea, obtained in one of the winter's outstanding deals. O'Dea, Outfielder Frank Demaree, and Shortstop Bill Jurges were traded to the Giants by the Chicago Cubs for Outfielder Hank Leiber, Catcher Gus Mancuso, and Shortstop Dick Bartell.

Gophers Beat Illini Again in Hocky, 5-2

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Minnesota's hocky team gained its second victory in two days over Illinois today, winning 5 to 2. The Gophers won last night, 6 to 0.

Tommy Jaworek, substitute wing, sparked the Illini to a better offensive showing today after Minnesota had scored three times in the first period on a penalty shot and goals by Capt. Ken Anderson. Jaworek picked up a rebound from Maurice Thompson's long shot and slammed it home.

Loyola Faces Hardest Test in Villanova

The Loyola university Ramblers will be put to their severest basketball test of the season tomorrow night in the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 West Madison street, where they play the Villanova Wildcats from Philadelphia, following a game between the De Paul Blue Demons and Duquesne. The De Paul-Duquesne game will start at 8:15 p. m.

Villanova has won six games this year, using four of the players on its 1937-1938 team. Guard George Duzminski scored 296 points last season and Center Jim Montgomery made 268. Both will play against Loyola, Montgomery serving as the key man in Coach Al Severance's offense.

Villanova Wins 25 Last Season.

The running mates of Duzminski and Montgomery will be Art Vigilante and Mike Lazorchak, seasoned veterans from last year's squad. Lloyd Rice, John Krutulis, Chuck Lund and Paul Nugent also will see action. Villanova won twenty-five out of thirty games last season, beating Temple among others.

De Paul's worry tomorrow night is a team that has won all its five games this year. Duquesne has two complete teams to send against the Blue Demons.

Coach Chick Davies will start an all-sophomore shock troop unit, five players who worked together as an undefeated freshman team last season. The varsity team is composed of all juniors, fellows who played most of last season on the first team.

De Paul Coach Heartened.

While Tom Haggerty, De Paul coach, is concerned over Duquesne's record he is confident the Demons will match them in all departments of play. De Paul lost a 57 to 51 struggle to the Santa Clara Broncos last Monday. Haggerty was heartened by the scoring punch of his team, but a little discouraged with the defense.

HUNTERS FLOCK TO SOUTHLAND FOR BOB WHITES

Tennessee Season Is On Until Jan. 24.

BY BOB BECKER.

The southern migration of upland game hunters now is under way. The boys who consider quail hunting the most thrilling outdoor sport are hustling over the Mason-Dixon line with their shotguns to have some fun with the bob whites in Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida and other states which have open seasons during January.

Tennessee, which started its quail season at Thanksgiving time, has given upland game shooters all of December for their "bird huntin'" and will continue the season until Jan. 24. The bob whites had an excellent breeding season in the south so there has been fine shooting this year. Other states in the sunshine belt also have plenty of birds, and in addition to quail there will be chances for northern hunters to bag a wild turkey if they do their hunting in certain sections of the south where heavy timber still gives these big game birds ample food, isolation and nesting cover.

Northerner Gets Real Thrill.

A southern quail hunt invariably gives a northern hunter more thrills than he gets in his own neighborhood when he's trying to find coveys. The first novelty of a southern hunt is the transportation. Instead of trudging around all day to keep up with the dogs, the southern boys bring out horses, mules, or even light cars for hunting parties, the type of transportation depending on the state where one hunts and the character of the country.

In Georgia quail shooters with whom we hunted trotted out light buggies hauled by mules for some of our trips. A colored boy went along with us to look after the outfit when we got out to shoot. On another occasion a buckboard wagon was used to transport our party along with dogs and lunch. In many parts of the south you're given a riding horse so you can follow the dogs over a big stretch of country.

Country Flat and Open.

Much of the Florida quail country that we have visited is so flat and open that the boys rely on light cars to travel through their favorite hunting country. We have found this system of gasoline buggy transportation a combination of a cross country tour and a sight-seeing trip that gives us an opportunity to see much bird and animal life, plus all the hunting one could ask for. Sometimes it's rough going in the little car but one covers a lot of ground in a day. It's not unusual to find ten or more coveys in the course of a day's leisurely hunt by car. And one rarely works the dogs between 11:30 a. m. and 2:30 or 3 p. m. when the birds are "noonin" as the guides say in Florida.

MAJOR LEAGUE PLAYER BOOST MAY BACKFIRE

Youngsters Still Won't Get Chance Under Rule.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Every one appeared to be pleased when the major league magnates emerged from the annual joint meeting last month and announced, among other items, that they had voted to boost the player limit from twenty-three to twenty-five.

It seems to have been accepted, at least by the baseball writers and fans who don't have to meet the club pay rolls, as a move in the right direction. Possibly the hiring—if the extra players actually are taken on—of two more men by each of the sixteen major league teams might cut down the nation's unemployment rolls.

Expanding the limit to twenty-five, in effect, means nothing except opportunity to increase player manipulation which now goes on despite rules to the contrary. Permission to retain twenty-five men will not mean an increase in the supply of youngsters. It will not help weak clubs to strengthen.

Eye Changes with Suspicion.

Baseball magnates eye with suspicion any suggestion of a drastic change, so it probably isn't worth pointing out that if they really want to nourish the game at the roots and make for better balanced races, it can be done.

There aren't enough players of real major league ability to make it possible for each of sixteen teams to have twenty-five men on their roster. The New York Yankees, who own an extensive farm system, spend freely and hang on to what they get, probably are an exception to this statement. Hence any increase of player limit makes them that much stronger.

So if a twenty player limit were established it would tend—barring the aforementioned manipulation which is hard to detect—to spread the talent over more big league territory. At the same time it would lessen the possibilities of a player getting into the control of a club and spending years on the bench because that particular club had a better man for his particular position.

25 Limit Unimportant.

The twenty-five limit is unimportant because there will be more than a few of the sixteen major teams conducting their affairs next season with anywhere from twenty to twenty-three players. Some of the clubs simply can't afford to carry second rate players just for the satisfaction of being up to the limit. Some of the clubs, even those with fat bank rolls, don't care to clutter up the bench with players of doubtful worth. The Cubs, for instance, have been under the limit at various times in recent seasons and yet have done fairly well in games won and lost.

The claim has been made that the boost in the limit will make it possible to keep youngsters for development. Who is going to develop them? Managers' jobs depend on where they finish. Managers don't want to invite severance from a pay roll, so they employ all the experienced players at their command and the young phenomenon sits on the bench unless he is sent to a minor league.

Should Raise Limit to 40.

If the majors really believe they should [finally] do something about building up the depleted player supply, why can't they raise their limit to thirty or even forty? They wouldn't have to use all these fellows. Those considered as mere possibilities for the future could be segregated and ordered to attend daily morning classes at which the coaches would act as instructors. This sort of tutoring along with what the rookie could pick up while observing the championship games in the afternoon would be far more effective than the present system of shipping them to a minor league club where, in many cases, they receive little attention because the manager is trying to win, not experiment.

The trouble, of course, is that most major league clubs want to grab a finished product of which there are few, and yet will do practically nothing to hurry the rookie into this pleasing state.

WESLEYAN TOPS NORTH CENTRAL FIVE, 35 TO 32

Illinois Wesleyan university won its first Illinois college conference basketball start at Naperville last night, defeating North Central, 35 to 32, in a rough game. Wesleyan led at the half 20 to 14. The game was won at the free throw line, the victors making seven free shots in eleven attempts while North Central missed twelve free throws in twenty-four tries. RUSSIA'S CONTRIBUTION TO HAWKS IS ADEPT AT OTHER SPORTS

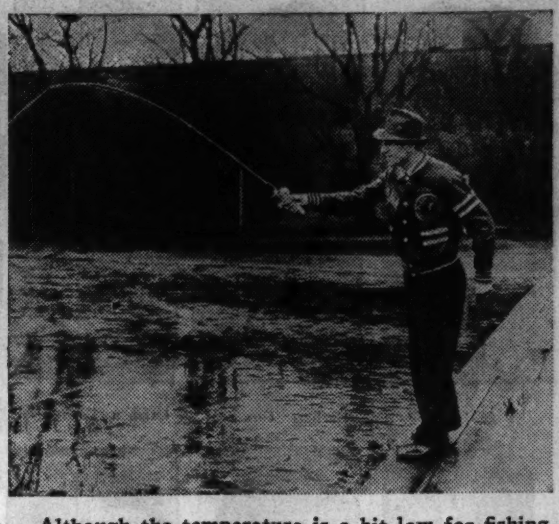
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Russian champions go for a walk. Gottselig visits the Glenwild kennels in Morton Grove and walks Borisovitch (left), world champion Russian wolf hound, and Valdai (right), eight months old puppy.

Gottselig, an excellent target and skeet shooter, varies the procedure in an indoor assault on an electrically operated shooting device.



Although the temperature is a bit low for fishing, Gottselig, an ardent angler, tries his hand at casting, just to prove he's still accurate.

OHIO WINS, 45-38

Columbus, O., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Ohio State opened its Western conference basketball schedule tonight by defeating Indiana, 45 to 38, before 7,344. The Buckeyes took an early lead and had a 30 to 15 advantage at the half.

Jimmy Hull, Ohio State forward and captain, led the scorers with fourteen points on six baskets and two fouls. William Johnson trailed with six baskets and one foul. Ernest Andres of Indiana, high scoring player of the 1938 season, was held to two baskets, one in each period. He also sank a free throw in the last half.

Indiana scored fifteen points in the last ten minutes. It was the Hoosiers' first loss in eight games.

WISCONSIN, 28; IOWA, 24

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Wisconsin opened its Western conference basketball season with a 28 to 24 victory over Iowa before a crowd of 9,600 in the fieldhouse tonight. Off to an early lead, the Badgers never were behind although the game was as closely fought as it was ragged. Capt. Ben Stephens led the Hawkeyes with 13 points, dropping in three of Iowa's five field goals. Acting Capt. Dave Dupee led Wisconsin with nine points.

The Badgers held a 14 to 9 lead at the end of the first half. Brief spurts in the second half increased the scoring tempo, but the game was marred by frequent ball handling errors. Two Wisconsin players, Andy Smith, forward, and Bob Weigandt, guard, were ejected on personal fouls. Iowa lost Erwin Prass, guard. Score:

It's Only a Few Steppes from Russia to Hocky for Gottselig

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The life story of Johnny Gottselig, veteran left forward of the world champion Blackhawks, properly may be divided into two chapters. One may be called a press agent's version, or "My Boyhood in Darkest Russia," and the other the less dramatic or more factual which might be called, "My Life as I Have Lived It."

Johnny currently rates a life story more than ever before. He led all scorers in the Stanley cup series last spring and in the first half of this regular season has been constantly at the top of the list of the National Hocky league's leading scorers.

Just a Touch of Russia.

Having no desire to hold out on any of the Old Subscribers, Taxpayers, or just plain hocky fans, we propose here to give you a touch of Russia then veer, with great dexterity, to Canada, the United States, and Chicago.

Johnny and the Blackhawk press agent, Joseph C. Farrell, who has outlived an even dozen Blackhawk managers as an employé of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Hawks, are here at our deskside, Johnny wearing a rather honest mein and Mr. Farrell with two magnificent Russian wolfhounds which he says are just a couple of the pack of fifty which Johnny keeps in his room in a west side hotel—he's that crazy about anything that springs from his native Russia.

Here Comes the Interview.

We now are about to interview Gottselig:

We: Were you really born in Russia, Johnny?

John: Yes, sir, 25 or 31 or 32 years ago.

We: Where in Russia, Johnny?

John: Near Odessa, but I never can remember whether there are two dees or two esses in Odessa, so I always say I was born in Omsk.

[At this point Press Agent Farrell is beaming widely. It was indeed he who found out there is a town in Russia named Omsk.]

We: What is your real name, Johnny?

John: Ianovich Nicholai Lipescu Gottsoff.

We: Ah, just a touch of the Rumanian. Well, anyhow, Ianovich, tell us something of your life in Russia.

John: Vell, you zee it was dees way ——

We: Just leave the Russian accent to Farrell, John. Give it to us in straight Canadian and we'll supply the color later.

His Pa's a Vodka Boatman.

[With this reply Johnny shot a quick glance at Press Agent Farrell, who grinned his approval.]

We: How did you happen to take up hocky, Johnny?

Johnny: Well, it was late in the fall and I was sitting one evening on the front steppes watching the Czar's soldiers march by. I tell you it was maddening. Boots! Boots! Boots! sliding up and down again. The monotonous roll of the Czar's doldrums sickened me. I was very, very unhappy for that day I had been fishing and the caviars weren't biting.

We: You were about to tell us about how you happened to take up hocky in a section which has plenty of ice but no hocky, Johnny.

John: After I had come in with no caviars on my string I went into our Russian bath and, after shoveling coal and peat to one side, washed out a samovar, or sprinkling can, which had been placed there by my dear aunt, Petrushka. I can see Aunt Petrushka now—her clear blue eyes, sparkling with kindness, yet reflecting a shadow of the suffering suffered that time she went to Siberia to work in a comb factory.

We: Very interesting, Johnny. But about the hocky start.

Those Steppes Are in Again.

John: After I had finished my bath I slipped on my little silken cossack, pulled on my little lether droshkies with the red tops and the hobnailed soles, and then, noticing that I still had on no pantaloons, I wrapped a balalaika about me and went out to sit on the front steppes.

We: Which, Johnny, brings you to exactly where you were just thirty-seven minutes ago. Now, please, about the hocky start. If you don't snap into it faster you're going back to the rink and find you are working for another new manager.

[With this crack the Russian wolfhounds which Farrell was holding became restless and enmeshed the Hawk press agent in a hopeless tangle of leashes.]

John [ignoring Farrell's plight]: I sat on the front steppes until I saw my father approaching. At first, I could not make out what he was carrying, but he was carrying something. As he got nearer I perceived it was an ikon, or broken oar, from his Vodka boat. The way pappy's whiskers were bristling I thought at first he was sore about something.

We: For goodness sake, what happened then, Johnny?

John: Well, as my old man came up to the steppes where I was sitting dressed in my little silken cos—

We: What did the old man do with that broken oar?

John: He tossed it to me, saying in purest Russian of the Romanoffs, 'Here son, be whittling out from this a hocky stick.' So every day I whittled and whittled, some days longer than others. At last the stick was finished. The rest is an old, old story. How a Russian coffee taster heard about the little boy in darkest Russia who practiced and practiced for 20 years with no one to practice with. How that old coffee sipper, Boris, cabled Maj. McLaughlin about me. Need I now repeat how the major signed me and how I have played only for him during my entire major league career?

Call Off Those Dogs.

[The dogs still are playing hell with Farrell and now Gottselig is trying to help him. Which gives us a chance to set down some lines on that second chapter.]

John Gottselig's father, Albert, of Baden, Germany, and his mother, a Weber from Bayern, Germany, "took up land" in a German settlement near Odessa, called Klosterdorf. They tried to make a living out of a vineyard but later learned of a more promising frontier, in Regina, Sask. So two months after their son John was born, they left Russia and set sail for Canada. For more than 30 years the Gottselig home has been in Regina, where Johnny, like all the kids in Regina, grew up with a hocky stick in his hand. Johnny's mother lives in Regina, and he writes her regularly, in German. And in the summer time they live under one roof and converse in German only.

We: And now, Mr. Farrell, don't you think it's about time for you to get them rushing woof hounds out of here?

TRICK FOOTBALLS ARE OUTLAWED BY RULE MAKERS

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Coach William A. Alexander of Georgia Tech, football rules committee member representing the southeast, disclosed today rigorous regulations insuring uniformity of footballs were adopted at the annual meeting last week in Colorado Springs.

Alexander said henceforth the home team will be required to furnish not only the ball, as at present, but to have at hand a pressure gauge, accurate scales, a steel tape, and a template.

Thirty minutes before game time, Alexander said, the referee will be required to test the ball with the gauge as to air pressure, weigh it, measure it, and put it in the template, a metal device into which a correctly shaped ball will fit snugly.

Alexander said the rules committee, in deliberating the matter, had before it a collection of balls which had been submitted by coaches who thought they had suffered unfairly from use of them. Some, he said, were almost cigar shaped, some looked like pumpkins, and others were either overweight or underweight.

ROBIN LEE IS AGAIN WINNER IN MIDWEST SKATING

Other results were:

SENIOR PAIRS—Won by Miss Ruth English, St. Louis, and Louis Pitts, Chicago; Miss Angeline Knapp and Dr. J. N. Pike, St. Paul, second.

MEN'S JUNIOR CLASS—Won by Robert Upgren, St. Paul; Harry Martin, Detroit, second.

LADIES' NOVICE CLASS—Won by Janet McGean, Cleveland; Jane Zeiser, St. Louis, second.

LADIES' SENIOR FREE SKATING CLASS—Won by Shirley Bowman, St. Paul; Nancy Meyer, Chicago, second.

BROTHER, SISTER WIN.

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Jane and Arthur Vaughn, sister and brother, made the eastern figure skating championships a family affair today by capturing both the women's and men's senior singles titles.

Hall Takes Two Blocks to Increase Billiard Lead

Allen Hall increased his lead over Johnny Layton at Bensingers, Inc., 131 South Wabash avenue, yesterday, taking both afternoon and evening blocks of their pre-championship three cushion billiard series. Hall won the matinee block, 60 to 44, in forty-nine innings, and took the evening game, 60 to 37, in forty-four innings.

North Central Swimmers Edge Out Beloit, 39 to 36

North Central college won a 39 to 36 decision over Beloit college in its first swimming meet of the season yesterday in Naperville. Henning of North Central and Morton of Beloit each scored two firsts, the former in the 50 yard free style and 100 yard backstroke and Morton in the 100 and 200 yard free style events.

Ramblers Beat Evanston Polo Team, 10 to 9

The Chicago Ramblers triumphed over the Evanston Polo club, 10 to 9, in the Metropolitan Polo league senior division game last night in the 124th Field Artillery Armory. The contest was tied six times.

A goal by Steve Hammond just as the final gong sounded proved the deciding point for the Ramblers, who had previously overcome a two point lead by Evanston in the closing chukker. A pair of goals by Jim Hannah, whose total of six made him high scorer, put the Ramblers back in the game when it appeared Evanston was certain to win.

It was the third league victory for the Ramblers and gave them a strong grip on second place, with only one defeat. The 124th Field artillery team now leads the senior division.

Capt. C. B. Hutchinson's goal in a sudden death overtime period, his seventh of the game, gave the Fort Sheridan polo team a 12 to 11 victory over the 122d Field Artillery in the first contest.

By winning, the army trio remained the only undefeated team in the Metropolitan league junior division, and ran its string of victories to three straight.

The 122d Field Artillery took the lead early in the first chukker and widened the gap as the game progressed, untin the third period, when three goals by Capt. Hutchinson and two by Capt. Jernigan enabled Fort Sheridan to take the lead for the first time. Lineups:

GIANTS HARD AT WORK FOR GAME ON PACIFIC COAST

Meet Fans' Squad Next Sunday in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—New York's Giants, 1938 champions of the National Football league, and an all-star team, selected by a fan poll from rosters of other league teams and the two local squads, the Los Angeles Bulldogs and the Hollywood Stars, are hard at work preparing for their combat.

The game, the only post-season game permitted under league rules, will be contested Sunday, Jan. 15, in Wrigley field, which has been enlarged to accommodate 30,000 customers for the occasion.

Henderson Is Pleased.

The All-Stars, under the direction of Gloomy Gus Henderson, newly appointed coach of the Detroit Lions, and Ray Flaherty, coach of the Washington Redskins, have been working out daily at Griffith park since last Tuesday. The Giants, with Coach Steve Owens in command, are training at the Rivera Country club. They also assembled Tuesday.

Henderson is well pleased with his squad's progress and confident the team has enough stuff to beat the Giants. "Coach Flaherty and I feel that our squad is strong enough to whip the Giants," Henderson said. "The team has speed, size, power and all around passing, running and kicking ability in the back field. Our big problem is to coördinate our talent into a unit."

Have Plenty in Back Field.

In the back field the All-Stars will have the sort of players that every coach dreams about but seldom sees perform together. Ace Parker, pro quarter back from Brooklyn, will pilot the All-Stars. Parker gave Los Angeles a tipoff on what can be expected from him by performing brilliantly in practice against his alma mater—Duke—before the Rose Bowl game.

Sammy Baugh, Washington's pass star, who has shaken off the injuries that hampered him during the season, will alternate with Parker. Cecil Isbell, Green Bay's triple threat star, and Gordon Gore, leader of the Bulldog attack, will also perform for the All-Stars. Clark Hinkle, Green Bay full back and the league's leading scorer, is also expected to join the team.

In addition, such crushing blockers as Ernie Pinckert of Washington; Lloyd Cardwell, Detroit Lion star, and John Drake, Cleveland full back, are also available for duty.

Big Men at Tackles.

A quartet of big men, headed by Ernie Smith, former Green Bay and Trojan star, will man the tackles. Joe Stydahar and Del Bjork of the Chicago Bears and Bruiser Kinard, Brooklyn, will share tackle duty with Smith.

Byron Gentry of Pittsburgh; Bill Letlow, Green Bay's All-American; Bill Radovich of Detroit, and Pete Mehringer of the Bulldogs will take care of the guard posts.

WILDCATS' MAT TEAM DEFEATS BADGERS, 20 TO 8

Northwestern university's wrestling team won six out of eight matches to defeat Wisconsin, 20 to 8, in the opening match of the season at Patten gymnasium yesterday. Both teams scored one fall each. Joe Gluckman of Northwestern threw Joe Halada in the 121 pound division in 5:32. Ken Newberry of the Badgers tossed Tauber of Northwestern in the 145 pound class in 5:11.

Joe Vavrus, Northwestern football tackle, moved out of his weight division to win a decision over Merry in the heavyweight bout. Outweighed 35 pounds, Vavrus gained a 9 to 7 point advantage over his 220 pound opponent. Summaries:

121 POUNDS—Gluckman [N.] threw Halada [W.]. Time, 5:32.
128 POUNDS—Taylor [N.] defeated Knoll [W.]. Decision, 21 to 5.
136 POUNDS — Taecker [N.] defeated Wright [W.]. Decision, 7 to 5.
145 POUNDS—Newberry [W.] threw Tauber [N.]. Time, 5:11.
155 POUNDS — Anderson [W.] defeated Sarett [N.]. Decision, 22 to 6.
165 POUNDS — Ferguson [N.] defeated Arawinko [W.]. Decision, 9 to 4.
175 POUNDS—Weiss [N.] defeated Platiewicz [W.]. Decision, 13 to 9.
HEAVYWEIGHT — Vavrus [N.] defeated Merry [W.]. Decision, 9 to 7.

PINS ARE FALLING ALL OVER TOWN THIS WEEK-END

Men and Women Hold City Title Events.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Chicago bowlers are having their biggest week-end since the A. B. C. tournament in the Coliseum last March and early April.

First of all there's the thirty-fifth annual men's city tournament, which has been going on since Friday evening in the Stack & Ryan Recreation, 1133 Milwaukee avenue. Then there is the twenty-second annual city women's meet, which had its inaugural last evening in the Bowling Moderne, 7350 North Clark street.

Traveling back toward the loop, any one looking for first class bowling could find it in the Congress Recreation, 31 East Congress street, where the eighth annual state Knights of Columbus tournament began last night. Any one trying to make the circuit just had to speed out to 95th street and Ashland avenue, where Ray Schalk's third annual holiday team sweepstakes got under way in the Beverly Recreation. A majority of the 60 star teams from the middle west were accommodated on the two squads last night. The rest will be out there shooting for the $700 first money at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

All three tournaments will continue today and for some time to come, since each has a record entry. The men's city tournament will not wind up until Feb. 19.

Last night's leaders were:

Schalk Sweepstakes—Birk Brothers, 4,145.

Men's City Meet—Office team, Mercroid corporation, 3,061.

Women's City Meet—McDaniels Peaches-Gross, 2,526, 567 handicap; 1,959 scratch. Doubles, Mayme McKinley and Mary Cantillon, 1,113—180—933. Singles, Bertha Sundmacher, 599—123—476.

Knights of Columbus meet — Brown Plumbers Damen Council—2,815.

North End League.

Rolling games of 1,144, 1,062, and 1,043 to total 3,249, the Sid and Mikes carried off honors in the North End Traveling league. They lost the last game, however, when the Kruse Stations came through with 1,070. Mel Kriete contributed 686 to the big total, Wally Sandquist was next with 679, the veteran Al Sallander had 649, Claire Edinger contributed 640, and Herman Wenholz was low with 595.

With Joe Traubenik shooting a 290 game and a 688 total the Birk Brothers battered out 3,184 for a clean sweep over the Keeleys. George Notz also helped the Birks with a 676 series, which included a 278 game. After losing the first game to the Farwals by seventeen pins, the leading Fox De Luxe took the next two to maintain their four game lead over the second place Joseph L. Gills.

On South Side Alleys.

The Bill Rands supplied the fireworks in the Stevenson Major league when they won three games from the Stevenson Recreation. The Rands helped themselves to a first game of 1,172 and completed the mop-up with a 3,210 total. Joe Kulik led with a 277 game and a total of 722. Steve Anzak helped with 661, and Jerry Skovie and P. Konopka each contributed 621. Eden Insurance now leads by five games, with forty-three won and fourteen lost.

Classic League.

After a three week layoff the Sunday division of the Classic league will go into action in the Garden Recreation, 4074 Milwaukee avenue, tonight at 8 o'clock. The tie for first place between the Monarchs and Schlitz probably will be broken. The Monarchs will meet the Baby Ruths and Schlitz will bowl the Thompson Restaurants. In other matches the Pragers will oppose Power House and Ambrosias will face the champion Pabst Blue Ribbons.

On North Side Alleys.

Led by Joe Sinke with 657 and Ray Leick with 642, the Joseph L. Gills totaled 3,022 while sweeping their series with the Williams Jewelers in the Gold Coast Major league. Meanwhile the second place Triangle Shirts lost one of their three games to the Oscar F. Nelsons. Joe Heinreich had 656 and Pete Petersen 651 for the Triangles. Joe Janis' 692 led the Nelsons and the league as well. . . . While shooting the season's second high game of 1,113 in the Samuelson Major league, the Fritzi Scheffs won two out of three from Mee & Ramme. The Michelobs beat the leading Wallace Coals twice and shaved the latter's lead to three games over Samuelson's Kids, who swept their series with Father & Son Shoes. Ray Blanck was high individual with 655.

Randolph League.

Eli Maricich's 300 game topped the action in the Randolph league. The Nonebetter leadoff man gained a 698 series as a result of his perfect game and now is averaging 219, high for the league. In the team race the Gills pulled a game in front of the Burlington Routes by winning three while their closest rivals were taking two. The Budweisers and Birks remained in a tie for third place by sweeping their series. Despite Maricich's perfect game, Emil Landman of the Budweisers had high series with 710 on 221, 221, and 268. Next Thursday's schedule will be featured by the Gill-Birk match.

Petersen Classic.

Entries will close next Saturday for the annual Petersen Classic, one of the country's richest individual sweepstakes, which will be rolled on Jan. 27, 28, and 29 on the Archer-35th Recreation alleys. It is estimated that $2,000 will be first prize for the competition, eight games across 16 alleys.

Here and There.

The Windy City Major league will start the second half of its schedule tomorrow night. . . . The Pabst Blue Ribbons are eagerly awaiting their match next Saturday with the sports stars in the Congress recreation. They'll have to be hot to win with five men against six. . . . Officers of the National Italian-American league will be installed Jan. 21 in St. Agatha's auditorium. Michael A. Marino is president.

lent chances are Andy Bayler, Dave Hafner, and George Reneau in the intermediate Derby; Katherine Pieri, in the girls' junior class; Art Johnson and Jim Ebert in the men's senior Derby, and Red Hansen and Ted Tilden in the boys' juvenile race.

George O'Connell, coach of the Austin High School Skating association, has submitted the names of thirty-three boys for the junior, intermediate, and senior Derbies. The club is handicapped in the bid for the team championship, since it cannot be represented in the other age divisions, but Coach O'Connell has high hope that some of his skaters will finish in the prize list in these races.

Preliminaries Saturday will be held in four age classes, the boys' midget, boys' juvenile, boys' junior, and girls' junior Derbies. These skaters must report for their racing numbers between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. The first preliminary race will start at 2 o'clock. On Sunday the first of the preliminaries in the other classes will start at 1 o'clock. Racing numbers will be passed out in the Garfield park boathouse by the clerks between 10 a. m. and 12 noon. Following the completion of the preliminaries, semifinals will be held in those divisions in which it is necessarily required and then will come the climax of the Derbies, the championships.

The officials who will conduct the Derbies next Saturday and Sunday include several men who have been associated with the races since their inception in 1917. The list has been augmented from year to year with the result that the preliminaries and finals are conducted fairly and with an efficiency which has no equal in any meet.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, former chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, again will referee the meet. Earl W. Solem, president of the Illinois Skating association, is chief of the judges.

Capt. Davis Chief of Starters.

Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee, again will be chief of the starters, and J. J. Lipp, prominent Western conference official, long identified with The Tribune A. A., will head the group of timers. Nicholas Malloy and Harry Berz will head the groups of clerks who will assign the contestants to their preliminary races and see that they are sent to the starting line on time.

Dr. Edward H. Rategan, member of THE TRIBUNE staf of physicians which annually examines all contestants in the Golden Gloves boxing tournaments, will supervise physical examinations of the skaters and will be in charge of regulations safeguarding the boys and girls.

Marquardt Is Chief Scorer.

Fred Marquardt is chief scorer, Frank Kalteux will be chief of the announcers, and Roy McWhirter, winner of the Senior Silver Skates Derby in 1920, is chief of the inspectors of the races. Paul Staff will survey the courses.

The list of officials follows:

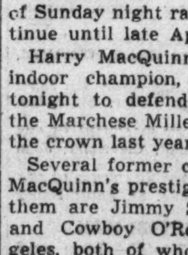
Indoor Midget Auto Racing Starts Tonight

The indoor auto racing season will open tonight in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, where drivers from six states will race for prize money and title points. The first race will start at 8:30 o'clock following ninety minutes of time trials.



Jimmy Snyder.

Tonight's meet, which has attracted one of the largest entry lists in the history of armory racing, will inaugurate a series of Sunday night races which will continue until late April.

Harry MacQuinn, 1937-'38 midwest indoor champion, will be on hand tonight to defend his title, driving the Marchese Miller in which he won the crown last year.

Several former champions threaten MacQuinn's prestige tonight. Among them are Jimmy Snyder of Chicago and Cowboy O'Rourke of Los Angeles, both of whom will drive new cars. Tony Willman of Milwaukee, the 1934-1935 champion; Duke Nalon of Chicago, Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, and Art Hartsfeld of Toledo are others entered.

Many drivers will pilot cars with new four cycle motors as cars powered with outboard motors are barred from armory competition.

The main event tonight will be a forty lap race, for which drivers will qualify under the Gilmore handicap system. The plan lines up the cars inversely to the speed of their time trials in the qualification heats. In the main event, the drivers are placed according to their time trial speeds.

Illinois Fencers Rally to Down St. Louis Team

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Illinois fencers won the last four bouts on the card to nip a strong fencing club of St. Louis here today, 9 to 8. Dick Frye and Floyd Traynham won two bouts each to lead the Illini, while Harold Abrams, former Illini, led the losers with four victories.

MANHATTANS AND SPARTA PLAY IN TWO CUP GAMES

Meet Detroit and St. Louis Teams Today.

BY OFFSIDE.

Chicago's two remaining contenders play today in the third round of national cup soccer competition. Sparta Garden City, defending national champion, meets the Lindell Trust Sport Club of St. Louis in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Manhattan Brewers, Chicago Peel cup champion, yesterday went to Detroit to oppose the Chrysler soccer team in Keyworth stadium.

Since its last visit to Chicago, when it lost to the Manhattans, the St. Louis club has added several former Shamrock players to the team. These include J. Rodriquez, goalie; D. Murphy, full back, and L. Kickham, outside left.

Sparta, without a defeat since losing the Peel cup to the Manhattans, has not had a player out with injury since winning the national title. The only addition to the team is W. Hamous, amateur half back from the Olympias. Sparta stars include T. Scott, J. Nudera, J. Vlcek, and J. Munro. The Sparta Seconds will meet the Slovaks in an exhibition game at 1 p. m. The cup match is scheduled for 3 p. m. R. Jones is the referee. Lineups:

SPARTA.		LINDELL TRUST.
Silovsky	G.	Rodriquez
Scott	R.B.	Murphy
Myrnka	L.B.	Lyons

Pearson	L.H.	LaPosha
Munro	O.R.	Kickham
Trimmell	I.R.	Moore
MacDermott	C.	Murphy
Vlcek	I.L.	Nash
Wolf	O.L.	Zimmerman

Three hundred fans, including Arthur E. Lueder, president of the club, accompanied the Manhattan team to Detroit. The Chrysler club is one of the best to represent the city in years. Johnny Nelson at center half is outstanding. Robert Williamson and William Dunlap, full backs, are two of the best in the country. Leading the Manhattans is Billy Gonsalves, called the greatest shot in soccer, who has played for the United States in world and Olympic title games. Fabri Salcedo and Art Garci, two Spanish born players from New York, are others upon whom the Manhattans count. With the exception of Eddie Begley, center half from St. Louis, the remainder of the Manhattans are Chicagoans. Lineups:

MANHATTANS.		CHRYSLER SPORT.
Griffith	G.	D. Nelson
Henney	R.B.	Williamson

Substitutes: Brewers—Rarity and Halquist. Chryslers—J. Watt and R. McConnel.

The Olympias, who meet the Oak Park Acorns next Sunday in a national amateur cup match, have arranged a game today with Wisla of the International league in Olympia stadium, 19th street and Kilpatrick avenue. The game starts at 2:30 p. m.

A week from today the International league will hold its annual indoor tournament in the 132d Infantry armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. Thirty-two teams will compete in two classes. The first match starts at 10 a. m. The miss-and-out system will be used.

Today's schedule:

NATIONAL CHALLENGE CUP.

[Third Round.]

Sparta Garden City vs. Lindell Trust Sport Club of St. Louis, Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. Referee, R. Jones. 2:15 p. m.

RIGNEY, WEBB WILL BOWL IN C. Y. O. BENEFIT

Two members of the White Sox baseball club will be in the lineup of the Sports Stars team which will face the Pabst Blue Ribbons in a special bowling match Saturday night in the Congress Recreation alleys, 31 East Congress street.

The two members of the south side club are Billy Webb, coach, and John Rigney, promising young pitcher. Webb and Rigney have been doing quite a bit of bowling the last few months to keep in condition. Arrangements are being made to obtain a leading golfer, football player, and basketball player to complete the Sports Stars' squad.

Proceeds of this special match will go to the Catholic Youth Organization blind children's fund. The funds will be used to obtain Master Eye dogs for blind children.

110 TEAMS WILL PLAY TODAY IN C. Y. O. LEAGUE

Following the customary holiday lull, 110 teams in the Catholic Youth Organization Basketball league will resume sectional competition in 26 gymnasiums in the city and suburbs this afternoon. A total of 204 heavyweight and lightweight teams will see action.

Headliners on today's schedule are the heavyweight clash between the defending champions, St. Elizabeth, and St. Columbanus, at St. Sabina's gymnasium and the lightweight meeting between the defending lightweight title holders, St. Dorothy's, and St. Elizabeth, also in St. Sabina's gymnasium.

Girls teams will resume action on Wednesday night.

Seven Sections Resume Walther League Play Today

Seven sections will resume play in the Walther league basketball game this afternoon. Zion of Lyons meets St. John of Forest Park in the west suburban zone; Jehovah plays Christ of Chicago in the Portage section, and St. Matthew's meets Grace of River Forest in the west sector. The southwest zone will resume play next week.

CALIFORNIA AND FLORIDA WINTER TRACKS WELL SET

High Class Fields Assured for Major Stakes.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The decision of W. E. Boeing to send Porter's Mite to Santa Anita shows what a long way winter racing has come since those years when it was struggling for respectability. When Porter's Mite won the fashionable and historic Belmont Futurity, richest prize for 2 year olds, he became a horse which carried prestige wherever he went. He will now go ahead to set a new fashion by being the first Belmont Futurity winner to enter winter racing.

With the big money earners of Hollywood throwing their resources behind Santa Anita, and the wealthy winter resort folks backing Hialeah, both California and Florida racing are well set financially. Moreover, a number of the officials of these tracks are also owners of the country's best horses, so high class fields are assured for the major stakes.

Two Tracks Do Pioneering.

Both Santa Anita and Hialeah are doing some pioneering which may be of permanent value to the sport. The California track, for instance, has brought to a head the controversy over early 2 year old racing by barring these immature animals from its program. Although Joseph E. Widener, president of Hialeah, is personally opposed to winter competition for the youngsters, the Florida officials have decided to schedule 2 year old events.

Another innovation at Santa Anita is the posting of stewards at intervals around the track instead of grouping them in the judges' stand. At the end of every race the stewards confer about the conduct of the jockies and the horses as observed from their points of vantage.

Hialeah Stresses Identification.

Hialeah's big contribution to the betterment of the sport will be a thorough test of the system of identification and examination of horses which was started toward the end of the New York season. This system is designed to put a complete stop to the doping of horses and to the use of ringers.

Santa Anita and Hialeah each will have its quota of great horses, Seabiscuit heading the cast in California and War Admiral in Florida. The $100,000 Santa Anita handicap and the $50,000 Widener handicap will be the season's big prizes on the west and east coasts, respectively. Both events are scheduled for March 4.

In addition to providing an elaborate stake program Santa Anita has set a purse minimum of $1,500. The condition book provides that the lowest claiming price in a six furlong race shall be $3,000 and for events of a mile or over $1,200.

$10,000 Saturday Features.

Three stakes of $10,000 already have been run at Santa Anita. This will be the minimum for the Saturday features throughout the meeting. Some of the big events coming up in addition to the $100,000 handicap are the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby Feb. 22 and the $25,000 San Juan Capistrano handicap March 11.

Both Santa Anita and Hialeah have put a great deal of their earnings back into the tracks, increasing purses and making improvements designed for beauty or convenience.

OHIO GRANTS A CHARTER TO NEW TROTTING GROUP

Columbus, O., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The state of Ohio granted a nonprofit charter today to the United States Trotting association, marking the final step in the merger of three of the country's largest harness racing parent bodies.

The United Trotting association, the National Trotting association, and the American Trotting Register association consolidated under the new name. Incorporation papers bear the names of 33 directors representing various sections of the United States and Canada. Twenty-six attended today's meeting.

Only the American Trotting association, with headquarters in Chicago, did not participate. The new group plans to invade the American's territory, however, directors to supervise racing in every state having been selected.

E. R. Harriman of New York, president of the former American Trotting Register association and one of the grand circuit's leading backers, described the merger as the "most forward step ever taken to help the harness sport."

Under the new setup only one registration card for owners and drivers will be required. For two years the groups had operated under the same rules and classifications, but Harriman said the merger would permit closer supervision of racing, and make rule changes easier to approve and enforce.

Pittsburgh Pirate Five to Play Hammond Today

Paul Birch, star forward for many seasons with the New York Celtics, leads the Pittsburgh Pirates into the Hammond Civic center this afternoon for a National league game with the Hammond Professionals. Birch is eighth high scorer in the league. Hammond's lineup will include Eddie Campion, Lou Boudreau, Vince McGowan, Nick Hashu, and Joe Sotak.

NAZIS DIG DEEP INTO TRICK BAG TO HOLD TRADE

Schemes to Operate Without Credit.

The German Nazis have been forced to pull all kinds of jokers out of their bag of trade tricks to run a near bankrupt country without credit from foreign countries and with no gold to spare. They have devised the world's most ingenious system of foreign trade, because they need to buy basic war materials and foodstuffs.

Germany's drive for self-sufficiency has not left her independent. Like other powers, she must buy goods abroad if her people are to continue to eat, and her war machine is to continue its arming process. But the struggle is growing more difficult.

How has Germany been able to buy cotton, oil, iron, beef, and grains, when she lacks gold and credit and is putting almost all man power into a drive to keep arming and to keep from starving? How was Germany able in 1938 to buy $150,000,000 more goods than she sold and still keep her small war chest of gold intact?

Sells Unwanted Mouth Organs.

How could Germany send Greece a hundred thousand mouth organs, which the Greeks did not want, in exchange for Greece's tobacco, which the Germans desired? How could she unload typewriters on Rumania and Mexico and get much needed oil in exchange? How can Germans barter their machines for American cotton, when Germany is on the foreign trade "black list" of the United States? How can Germany, despite the fact that she has debt balances with most countries and lacks gold, obtain foreign exchange to buy American products?

Germany has done and is doing these things. She has bought coffee in Colombia and paid for it with a device called "aski marks." But she purposely bought more coffee than the Germans could drink, and proceeded to crowd Colombian exporters out of their market in Copenhagen with what had been the Colombians' own coffee.

Based on Clearing Agreements.

The basis of Germany's complicated system of trading tricks is a series of "clearing agreements" in effect with principal countries where the Nazis buy and sell—except in the United States. These agreements, which are bilateral treaties, are used in some 90 per cent of German trade, and transactions under their provisions are supplemented by other devices to promote trade. For example, to make the buying of German goods attractive to foreign importers, the Nazi government reduces the price below cost and makes up the difference to German exporters from government funds. These are "export subsidies."

How clearing agreements and export subsidies have been used by the Nazis to keep their economy going is best shown in Germany's trade drive to the southeast—for Hungarian wheat, Jugo-Slav timber, Rumanian oil, and Turkish tobacco. Germany has used clearing agreements as a lever to force her exports of mouth organs, typewriters, aspirin, and "last year's models" of guns on her southeastern neighbors. They have foodstuffs and basic industrial raw materials which she lacks.

Here's How Nazis Do It.

Nazi trade with Jugo-Slavia is a good example of the manner in which a "clearing agreement" operates—or, more accurately, the way the Nazis operate one. The central banks of the two countries set up a clearing account. German importers pay for Jugo-Slav goods by depositing German money [marks] in the Reichsbank clearing account. Jugo-Slav buyers of German goods pay their own currency [dinars] into their own central bank. German exporters are paid for their sales to Jugo-Slavia out of the Reichsbank, which charges the sum against the clearing account. Jugo-Slav exporters are paid from funds in the Jugo-Slav bank's clearing account.

Germans, however, have been buying more goods from the Jugo-Slavs than the Jugo-Slavs have bought from the Germans. By offering attractive prices for raw materials, sometimes higher than the general world price levels, Germany has stepped up its purchase from Jugo-Slavia and other Balkan states. Governments of these countries at first did not dare to make themselves unpopular at home with producers or wheat, tobacco, and other products by refusing to let them sell to Germans at fancy prices.

Germany Builds Up Debts.

The catch came, however, when the countries looked at their books and totaled up the clearings balances with Germany. By buying more than she sold Germany has built up substantial debts in the clearing accounts. A basic principle of a normal clearing arrangement is that no sizable balances either way shall be left unliquidated for any length of time.

But Germany refuses to "unfreeze" her clearing debts by paying cash, because she has so little gold. The Nazis furthermore refused to settle by the relatively simple process of shipping to their southeastern neighbors goods that those nations want.

Realizing the strength of their bargaining position, the Germans have refused in many instances to sell to

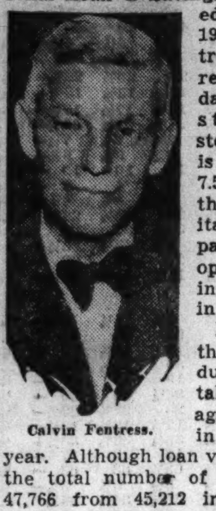
Personal Loan Bank Earnings Slightly Lower



Calvin Fentress.

Net operating income of the Personal Loan & Savings bank amounted to $267,392 in 1938, Calvin Fentress, president, reported yesterday in his annual statement to stockholders. This is equivalent to 7.55 per cent on the invested capital, and compared with net operating earnings of $280,100 in 1937.

Fentress said that loans made during 1938 totaled $11,693,980, against $12,282,112 in the preceding year. Although loan volume declined, the total number of loans arose to 47,766 from 45,212 in 1937, he explained. The average size of loans last year was $244.82, while in 1937 the average loan was $271.66.

Delinquencies at the end of 1938 was somewhat lower than in 1937, Fentress said.

Larger Losses Charged Off.

Losses which were charged off, however, were larger than those in the preceding year. Fentress explained that all known losses and all paper questioned by the officers or classified as doubtful by either the federal or state bank examiners had been charged off.

"Taxes continue to be one of our heaviest expense items," Fentress said. "Taxes for 1938 amount to $5.61 on each share of stock and are equivalent to 60 per cent of the total amount paid to all officers and employés during the year—a matter of concern to our stockholders, to our employés, and to our customers, since it affects the welfare of all of them."

Fentress called attention to the decrease in the interest rate on savings accounts to 2 per cent, effective Jan. 1, this year. Previously the bank paid 2½ per cent.

Merchants Bank Earns More.

The Merchants National bank had net operating earnings of $70,652 in 1938, President George R. Boyless reported yesterday. This was a sharp gain from net operating income of $41,309 in the preceding year. Boyles said $50,000 was transferred to surplus from 1938 earnings, increasing this fund to $125,000. Another $10,000 was set aside for a special reserve fund, and $8,000 was reserved for dividends.

A dividend of $2 a share, the first ever paid by the Merchants National, was distributed yesterday to stockholders of record Dec. 31, Boyles said. It represents half of a $4 dividend recently voted against last year's earnings. The second $2 payment will be made July 7 to stockholders of record June 30.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS FALL TO 286 MILLIONS

Chicago bank clearings declined to $285,900,000 for the five business days which followed Monday's New Year holiday. Clearings were $287,100,000 in the preceding five day week and $377,000,000 in the corresponding week a year earlier.

The Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday as follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Tuesday	$ 65,000,000	$ 2,900,000
Wednesday	71,900,000	9,900,000
Thursday	54,100,000	2,400,000
Friday	49,400,000	5,200,000
Saturday	45,500,000	4,400,000
Total for week	$285,900,000	$ 24,800,000
Corresponding last year	$377,000,000	$ 43,800,000

The New York Clearing House association reported clearings for the five day week were $3,680,818,863, compared with $3,506,900,628 in the preceding five day week.

INT. HARVESTER WILL MODERNIZE ITS CHIEF PLANTS

The International Harvester company will spend $6,000,000 in 1939 on expansion and modernization of two of its principal plants, executives of the big farm implement corporation said yesterday. Work will start in March or April.

The Farmall tractor works at Rock Island, Ill., will be expanded at a cost of approximately $5,000,000, it was said. New machinery will be installed, the tractor assembly line brought up to date, and a new building constructed. Completion of a new foundry at the motor truck engine plant at Indianapolis will cost another $1,000,000.

Industry Keeps Older Men, Survey Shows

Howard Coonley.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A larger proportion of workers over 40 years old in industrial employment than before the depression was reported today by the National Association of Manufacturers to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

The report was based upon 2,485 questionnaires from representative industrial units employing 2,334,538 persons. It was sent to Mrs. Perkins by Howard Coonley, New York, president of the association and chairman of the Walworth company.

"A new factual picture of workers 40 years old and over emerges from this survey," the report says.

Report Age Is No Barrier.

"Contrary to substantiated opinion, employment statistics as reported in this survey, compared with previous surveys of industrial workers for 1923 and 1928, show no decline in the proportion of industrial employment at the age of 40.

"It is apparent that workers 40 and over constitute a vital and dynamic part of industry, their skill and strong loyalties being of inestimable importance in the industrial unit."

The survey also showed the following:

1. Less than 1 per cent of companies in the survey indicate that they give preference to younger workers when it is necessary to make lay-offs.
2. No companies discharge workers when they reach 40.
3. About 89.1 per cent of companies have no maximum hiring age limit; 7.5 per cent have such limits; 3.4 per cent do not answer this point.

Other Statistics Analyzed.

4. About 38.3 per cent of companies give preference in hiring to workers below 40, principally because of the training and apprenticeship requirements, and because of the physical demands made by certain tasks.
5. The results of this survey show no lessened proportion of employment of workers between 40 and 50, but do indicate a slight decrease in industrial employment after age 50.
6. A substantial portion of employés hired in 1938 are 40 or over.
7. A larger percentage of employés was 40 or over in 1938 than in 1937.
8. About 10 per cent of respondents have retirement plans. Sixty-three per cent of the replying companies provide group insurance.

Older Workers Retained.

"Employment figures reported for 1937 and 1938 reveal the fact that the proportion of older workers in 1938 is 19.9 per cent higher than it was in 1937, which would indicate that employers have given preference in retention of workers to those forty and over," the report continued.

It said that another important question—that of whether industry hires and re-hires older workers—was also answered in the survey. From an analysis of hiring statistics submitted by 750 companies, it was revealed that the number of workers 40 years old and over hired and re-hired by them in 1937 constituted 8.4 per cent of the total employment of those companies for the year.

BRITISH MONEY VALUE CLIMBS AS RESULT OF DRIVE ON SPECULATION

The British treasury's drastic move to bolster sterling sent the pound sterling up 11-16 cent in terms of the dollar in New York yesterday. This follow a sweeping advance of 2¾ cents on the preceding day, when the British government announced a war on speculators who for months have been undermining the pound.

The drive to prop up sterling was made known Friday when the Bank of England announced transfer of $1,500,000,000 in gold to the equalization fund. This fund, used to stabilize the price of the pound, is reported to have lost $674,000,000 between Sept. 7, 1937, and Sept. 30, 1938. In launching the sterling rescue effort, Britain invoked coöperation of the United States, France, Belgium, and Holland.

Other foreign currencies were strong yesterday in relation to the dollar. The French franc rose 0.00375 cent to 2.64125 cents.

The only gold engaged abroad yesterday for shipment to New York was $1,320,000 in Holland. The week's arrivals at New York totaled $20,541,000. Of this $16,942,000 was from England, which has had to ship gold to even up an unfavorable balance of trade.

CHICAGO STEEL MILL OUTPUT TO SAG THIS WEEK

Chicago steel mills will start this week with operations scheduled at 48.7 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, the Dow-Jones service said yesterday. This rate will be 4.9 points below the indicated output a week ago and 11.5 points lower than a month ago. At this time a year ago the rate was 24.4 per cent.

Two blast furnaces, one at the South Chicago works and the other at the Gary works, will be closed by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation this week. This will leave five out of the eleven at South Chicago and four out of the twelve at Gary in operation.

Ingot production in the Pittsburgh steel district this week is scheduled at 44 per cent of capacity, unchanged from a week ago's indicated rate. A month ago the mills worked at 42 per cent and a year ago at 25 per cent. Output last week reached 46 per cent.

Aviation Hits Record High in 1938 Output

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The American aviation industry had its greatest year in 1938. Manufacture of civil and military airplanes, motors, and accessories for both domestic and export markets reached an all-time peak. More passengers and more mail than ever before were carried by the air lines with greater safety and at the highest average speeds ever attained.

While final figures are not yet available, estimates based on eleven months reports now in the hands of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, indicate that nearly $150,000,000 worth of business was done by the country's manufacturers. This includes motor and propeller makers, the aluminum industry — source of most of aviation's raw materials— airplane instrument manufacturers, and rubber, steel, and small parts makers.

Of this total approximately $70,000,000 represented export orders for military planes including long-range reconnaissance bombers, single-seat fighting planes, trainers, and airplane motors, instruments, propellers, and accessories. The largest single orders were from England, France, and Australia. These alone accounted for 550 airplanes and nearly 1,000 military motors.

Popular in South America.

The rest represented military and civil planes—chiefly high speed transports—built to domestic and export orders. American craft were sold to twenty-four countries, including every nation in Europe except Germany. South America was an important source for orders of American aircraft.

Four of the country's largest manufacturers, Douglas, North American, Lockheed and Curtiss, cornered the bulk of the export business. The Wright engine company and Pratt & Whitney motors sold most of the military engines for export.

The year's total production of airplanes will reach nearly 3,500 machines of all classes, the chamber's records indicate. This is a substantial increase over the 2,757 airplanes built during 1937. Slightly more than half these machines were for domestic use. The industry now is working with orders already on hand that will keep all existing plants busy for at least two years.

Mail Business Is Heavy.

The Air Transport association, reporting for the commercial air lines, announced that 14½ billion pound-miles of air mail were flown during the year. And in each month of 1938 the lines carried more mail than during the corresponding month of 1937. The 1938 total is a new high in mail flown, the association reported, but the figures, because of their form, are not comparable to those of 1937.

During the last year a total of 478,500,000 passenger-miles were flown as compared with 407,531,000 in 1937, an increase of about 15 per cent. This

VIEW ROOSEVELT SPENDING PLAN AS A CHALLENGE

Up to Congress, Says Business Group.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The federal budget for 1940 is a direct challenge for congress to heed overwhelming American sentiment against public spending and recurring public deficits.

This is the pointed opinion of President Roosevelt's 1940 budget expressed today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its Washington review for the week. Of the President's estimated deficit of more than 3 billion dollars for 1940 and expenditures of 9 or 10 billions, the chamber says:

"Such figures can only be portentous. They are the more disquieting because of the underlying implications. Public spending and borrowing are made a virtue.

Spending Under New Name.

"Despite all the experience to the contrary, there seems to be acceptance of the doctrin that the only way to restore prosperity is by lavish government borrowing and spending."

Concerning the President's new budget making formula of "deficit investments," as suggested in his message to congress, the chamber says that now the old slogan of "pump priming" has been abandoned in favor of a new term, "investing."

"Such a philosophy for dealing with other people's money certainly does not square with the personal experience of American citizens. They know only too well that they themselves get into trouble, and plenty of it, when they pursue a course of spending more than they earn," the review continues.

It then points out that a popular poll of American sentiment shows that Americans far and wide are overwhelmingly against the vast public spending and deficit-building.

Cites Interest on Debt.

"This sentiment can only be heightened when it is understood that next year the cost to the country of the public debt will be over 1½ billion dollars in interest and sinking fund charges alone. The budget and all of its implications are a direct challenge to congress, representing the people of the country who must pay the bills. Congress never had a more important task."

Interest on the debt next year is officially estimated at $1,050,000,000. This means, says the chamber, that in twenty-two years the United States will have passed from a billion-dollar country in the total of all expenditures of federal government to a billion-dollar country alone in the item of interest paid annually on the public debt.

Sees Capital Diverted.

This public debt is financed mainly through sales to banks, insurance companies and other institutional investors, and has the effect of diverting capital from use in developing and expanding enterprise.

The finance department of the chamber estimates that more than 75 per cent of the direct obligations of the federal government are held by banks, reserve banks, insurance companies and nonfinance companies. The remainder is held by governmental agencies, trust estates, individuals, and various other holders.

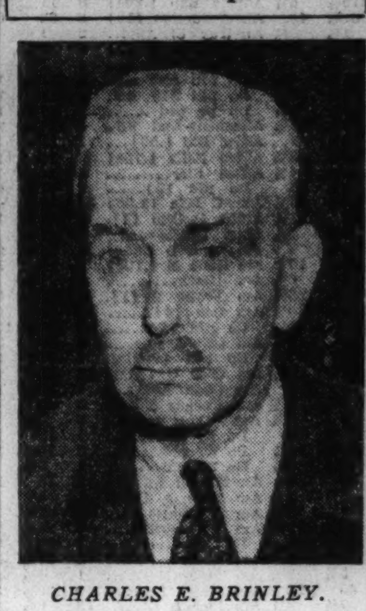
LOW PRICE RAIL BONDS DECLINE; TRADING SMALL

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A sinking spell in low priced rail issues marked a mostly steady bond market today. United States government loans also were mostly lower. Most industrials and high grade issues were steady to a shade higher. The foreign division was steady.

Down fractions to more than a point were Baltimore and Ohio convertibles at 12⅜, Greot Northern 4s of '46 "G" at 99, New York Central 5s at 64, Southern Railway 4s at 58¼, and Nickel Plate 5½s at 62½. New York Central 3¼s retraced practically all of Friday's sharp decline to close up 6⅛ points at 66½.

Turnover was $4,365,000, face value, the quietest short session since Dec. 3.

Was He Surprised!



CHARLES E. BRINLEY.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Others may have been surprised when Charles E. Brinley was elected president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, but none, he probably would tell you, more than Brinley himself.

Glancing today about his quarters, he said, "I had no idea that I would ever be sitting in this office."

Brinley was elected head of the far-reaching Baldwin enterprises three weeks ago. His first direct connection with the company came only last spring when he was named a voting trustee under the financial reorganization program Baldwin recently completed.

Brinley fills the vacancy caused by the resignation last August of George H. Houston,

Fifth Musica Brother Sought in Coster Case

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Investigation of the McKesson & Robbins scandal today disclosed the existence of a fifth Musica brother. He masqueraded under the name of Herbert J. Dietrich and was linked with the exposure of Philip Musica [F. Donald Coster] as an arch swindler. Herbert is reported missing.

At the same time it was revealed that Coster-Musica apparently was responsible for his own exposure as a swindler.

Herbert's unwitting rôle of messenger of death to Coster-Musica [who killed himself] was played on Dec. 5, according to Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall. He picked up 2,000 shares of the McKesson & Robbins stock, part of the Coster family's big holdings, to turn over to Connecticut politicians. They, in return, arranged the suit to put the 105 year old firm into receivership, thereby bringing Coster-Musica's entire fake $18,000,000 crude drug empire crumbling down around him.

Revealed by Coster's Widow.

Herbert's name, declared McCall, was revealed by Mrs. Carol E. Coster, widow of the suicide, when she authorized her broker to turn the stock over to the missing "brother." The same day the stock found its way into the hands of Benjamin Slade, a New Haven attorney who gave it to Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy of Hartford. Spellacy, according to McCall, gave it to the city's corporation counsel, Vincent W. Dennis, with instructions to start an immediate suit to put the company in receivership. That suit, presumably inspired by Coster to avert the disclosure of his fraudulent financial transactions and his criminal past as Philip Musica, exposed the whole story of his spurious international profits with non-existent foreign agents, McCall declared.

"Discovered" Four Years Ago.

Meanwhile federal authorities discovered that Leon Danco, a McKesson vice president in charge of a perfume company subsidiary, came within a hair's breath in 1934 of learning of Coster's unsavory past as the "human hair swindler" of a generation ago.

Danco, who will be questioned next week by Acting United States Attorney Gregory F. Noonan, discovered four years ago that assets carried on the Bridgeport plant's books were fictitious, it was said. Delving further, he learned that the Canadian warehouse of W. W. Smith & Co., Coster's supposed foreign representatives, were nonexistent, and that offices of Manning & Co., Coster's financial agents, were mere mailing addresses.

INDUSTRY PICKS UP SPEED AFTER HOLIDAYS' LULL

Gains Made by Most of Chief Indices.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business forces of the nation swung back to the task of making and selling goods with renewed energy last week after devoting Monday to observance of the New Year's holiday. Meantime the banks issued their yearly reports, and President Roosevelt in messages to the new congress gave business an insight into his program.

Of the leading indices of business and industrial activity, only new financing and railroad freight loadings declined. Textile manufacturing, automobile and steel production, residential and engineering construction, and retail and wholesale trade all showed gains. In the case of steel and automobile output, and residential building, the rate of increase was not sufficient to leave the indices higher after allowance for seasonal factors.

Power Production Expands.

Electric power production was reported to have increased last week, but the figures will not be available until next week. In the latest period reported upon — the week ended Dec. 31—the volume was 2,120,555,000 kilowatt hours, or slightly below the all-time high level reached in the preceding week. The output was 6.1 per cent above the volume in the corresponding 1937 week.

When the steel mills went into the first week of the new year their operations were at 50.7 per cent of theoretical capacity. This was an increase of 11.9 points over the preceding week's rate of 38.8 per cent. The rise was slightly less than the normal rebound from the holiday lull.

Rail and structural steel buying showed some signs of quickening, the American Iron and Steel institute said. It reported 14,000 employés were added to the industry's pay rolls in November, raising the total to 450,000.

Predicts Larger Steel Output.

Iron Age, trade journal, predicted ingot output in 1939 will be forty million tons, compared with 28.5 tons produced in 1938. Meantime, the Inland Steel company lighted a big new blast furnace at its Indiana Harbor works. The furnace has a daily capacity of 1,000 tons of pig iron. The traditional fire lighting celebration was held. Hundreds of steel workers cheered and whistles blew. Lighting a furnace means more jobs.

Automobile output was 76,685 units, compared with 75,215 in the preceding week and 54,084 in the corresponding 1938 week.

Freight loadings in the week ended Dec. 31 were 499,895 cars, 13 per cent less than in the preceding week but 9.9 per cent more than in the 1937 week. The decline was less than is usual at this season. Shippers of the nation estimated loadings in the first 1939 quarter will be 9.3 per cent in excess of 1938 first quarter volume.

New Financing Shrinks.

New financing in the holiday week ended Jan. 5 was only $6,426,500, compared with forty millions in the preceding week and seven millions in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Retail and wholesale buying last week was reported to be running 2 to 6 per cent above the dollar volume of a year ago. Reporting for an earlier period, the last 1938 week, the federal reserve board said department store sales were 2 per cent above a year ago. Bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities rose sharply, reflecting first-of-the-month settlements.

Engineering construction awards for the holiday week ended Jan. 5 were nearly 87 million dollars, compared with 59 millions in the preced-

STOCK MARKET TURNS LOWER IN LAST HALF HOUR

Utilities Extend Gains Before Reacting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—The stock market turned downward in the last half hour of trade today. Losses ranged from fractions to 2 points in leading shares. Turnover was 632,910 shares, with more activity on the late decline.

The only feature of the early market was the utility section which extended yesterday's rally. The group backed down with the rest of the market, however, to an irregular close.

Public Service of New Jersey, Pacific Light, and Pacific Telephone were among the utilities to hang on to fractional gains. Commonwealth Edison and United corporation managed to finish unchanged. A majority of others closed fractionally lower.

Industrials Hardest Hit.

Among the industrials some leading issues were hardest hit. Bethlehem Steel fell 1¾ and Crucible lost 1⅞. Republic and United States Steel held losses to ½ point each.

In the motor group, Chrysler dropped 1¾ and General Motors sank 1⅝. The rubbers held better than average, representative members of the group losing no more than fractions.

Although Anaconda gave up only ¾, both Kennecott and Phelps Dodge fell more than a point in the metals section. Oils were mainly fractions lower, although Phillips registered a 1 point decline.

Among other leading stocks, Westinghouse slumped 2¼, General Electric ¾, International Harvester 1½, du Pont 2, United States Gypsum 1, Loew's 1½, and International Business machines 1¾.

Aircraft Group Uneven.

Aircraft issues were somewhat mixed. Aviation corporation, Curtiss-Wright and North American lost minor fractions. Douglass sagged ¾, and Sperry declined 1⅛. Consolidated and United finished with fractional gains.

The rails followed the general downward trend. Fractional declines were recorded by Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, and Union Pacific. Chesapeake and Ohio lost ⅞, but Chesapeake corporation held even.

WINTER WHEAT CROP MENACED BY NEW DROUTH

Experts Fear Repetition of 1933-6 Disaster.

Drouth conditions have developed over a large part of the winter wheat belt, rivaling in parts of the southwest the disastrous conditions in 1933-'36. The United States was forced to import millions of bushels of Canadian grain during that period to meet domestic requirements.

Reports of dust storms and soil drifting have become almost a daily occurrence in parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. The four states seeded 26,204,000 acres of winter wheat for the 1939 harvest. This is about 55 per cent of the 46,173,000 acres seeded last fall in all states.

Department of agriculture and grain trade experts are expressing considerable apprehension regarding the size of the 1939 wheat harvest.

Expect Large Abandonment.

On Dec. 1 the department estimated 20 to 25 per cent of the seeded acreage would be abandoned. No rain of consequence has fallen since that date.

Chicago crop experts yesterday expressed the belief that the condition of winter wheat had deteriorated as much as 5 per cent from the 72 per cent of normal estimated in the December report of the department of agriculture. They qualified their statement, however, by calling attention to the fact that the wheat plant is dormant at the present time and so opinions are of little value at this season. The average condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1 in recent years has been 80 per cent of normal.

Condition Abnormally Low.

The current condition of winter wheat, after allowing for possible deterioration since Dec. 1, is believed by traders to be the lowest on record with the possible exception of 1932. On April 1 that year the condition was only 59.4 per cent.

Rainfall in Kansas in the last five months, according to weather bureau reports, averaged the smallest for the sixty years during which records are available. Only 0.20 inch of rain fell in December, or about 25 per cent of normal.

The drouth condition over a considerable part of the winter wheat belt has a counterpart in the American northwest. Official reports indicate there is a decided lack of reserve moisture over a large part of the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Montana. This will result in the spring wheat crop being more than usually dependent on spring and summer rains. A shortage in the subsoil reserve moisture is also said to exist in parts of the main corn belt.

WHEAT REACTS FROM ADVANCE TO CLOSE LOWER

Failure of predicted rains to fall in the winter wheat belt led to professional buying of wheat futures early yesterday. As a result, prices advanced ½ to ¾ cent a bushel. Outside buying failed to follow the upturn. Early buyers then turned to the selling side and closing trades were ⅜ cent lower.

Corn showed a firm undertone early, but eased later with wheat and closed ⅜ to ½ cent a bushel lower. Early buying was induced by reports that 165,000 bushels had been sold for shipment from Chicago. Country offerings were again light.

The government announced it had granted loans to farmers last week on 18,000,000 bushels of corn. Including 1937 corn which was resealed, about 78,000,000 bushels of grain are pledged to the government for loans.

TRUCKERS FIGHT RESTRICTIONS TO AID RAILROADS

Keeshin States Position to Roosevelt.

The nation's big trucking industry will not sit by quietly if congress imposes new burdens on it in a program to relieve the financially pressed railroads, it was indicated last week. J. L. Keeshin, one of the leaders in the industry, made public a letter he had sent to President Roosevelt urging consideration of the truck operators in any national transportation program.

The trucking industry has been assuming greater importance as a political entity. The latest figures of the Automobile Manufacturers' association place the number of truck drivers at 3,100,000. Back of them there are many hundred thousands of workers and office employés. And back of the truck companies are the many large industries, with thousands of employés, that supply them.

Keeshin Presents Argument.

Keeshin, who is leading the fight for his industry, is a Chicagoan. He is chairman of the board of the Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, Inc., and head of numerous truck operating subsidiaries.

"The problems of transportation are vital to the national welfare in many respects," he said in his letter to Roosevelt. "Foremost among such problems are those relating to economical and uniform domestic distribution and national defense. The circumstances surrounding the existence of our railroads today are recognized as being very acute and demanding attention in the interest of every one, including other agencies of transportation.

"While considering the problems of the railroads, airways, and waterways, I would like to call to your attention the problems of the motor carriers of the country.

Trucks' Importance Told.

"From the standpoint of domestic distribution, I would like to point out that foodstuffs to and from small villages of our land, as well as metropolitan areas, are largely handled by motor carriers operating on a for-hire basis.

"It is now recognized and so indicated by the report of the federal coordinator of transportation that in many ways motor vehicles can operate more economically and more satisfactorily, for both shipper and receiver, in the handling of less than carload shipments and relatively small bulk quantities in truckload lots.

"From the standpoint of the national defense during the critical times of war, rapid, flexible transportation is indispensable, and can be attained only by motor vehicles.

"I wish to impress upon you that in any attempt to alleviate the transportation problem of our country, particularly as to the railroads, that nothing be done that would unjustifiably injure or handicap the natural development of motor carrier transportation."

AVIATION SOARS TO RECORD HIGH IN 1938 OUTPUT

Estimate Business at 150 Millions.

added business was carried out with greater safety, for the air lines had only twenty-five passenger fatalities during the year as compared with forty during 1937.

The airliners carried 1,460,000 passengers during 1938, according to estimates, as compared with 1,269,000 in 1937. Each passenger flew an average of 470 miles.

They're Still Losing Money.

In spite of the trafic increases, however, the air line operators with few exceptions, still are losing money. Costs of equipping fleets with the newest and latest safety devices, high depreciation of equipment, mail pay that they say is inadequate and unfairly calculated, cut away profits that might otherwise have been recorded.

The operators, however, unanimously hail the creation of the new Civil Aeronautics authority as their salvation. The authority, given final powers for fixing mail, passenger and express revenue rates, determining safety regulations and generally for fostering and encouraging the industry, is expected to adjust mail pay so that most of the operators will be able to show a small profit at the end of 1939.

Old Craft Are Retired.

Technical advances during the year were important. The last of the obsolete, slow transport planes in service in the United States were retired. As a result, average speed of all the country's operators was increased from 145 miles an hour in 1937 to 164 miles an hour in 1938.

These average speeds are calculated by determining the average speed of a plane from the moment it rolls away from a depot on the field where a trip starts to the time it rolls to a stop in front of the passenger station at its destination. Thus time lost climbing to cruising altitude and in circling a field preparatory for landing are included.

Most of the larger operators also adopted the new hydromatic full feathering propellers during the year. This device enables a pilot to stop an engine in flight, halt vibration, prevent fires, and generally is regarded by the industry as one of the foremost safety measures taken in years.

CHICAGO STOCKS DRIFT LOWER IN SLUGGISH TRADE

Chicago stocks drifted lower yesterday in sluggish trading. During the two hour session 24,000 shares changed hands, compared with 27,000 on the preceding Saturday. The Tribune average of twenty stocks finished at 11.58, compared with 11.64 on Friday and 11.61 a week ago.

Several utilities were among the volume leaders. Midland Utilities 6 per cent prior lien shares were off ⅛ at ⅝. Commonwealth Edison closed at 27⅝, up ⅛. Middle West Utilities was off ⅝ at 7⅝, and Central and Southwest Utilities was unchanged at 1⅜.

Marshall Field closed ¼ lower at 13, and Great Lakes Dredge and Dock was off ¼ at 26.

Chicago Banks' Stocks Mostly Higher in Week

Chicago bank stock prices moved mostly higher last week, dealers reported yesterday. Advances ranging from $1 to $10 were made by the Merchandise National, Terminal National, Harris Trust and Savings, Lake Shore Trust and Savings, Lake View Trust, and Northern Trust shares. City National Bank and Trust company slipped $3 and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company eased $1.

COTTON

American cotton markets were unsettled yesterday. Liquidation developed early as the result of weakness in Liverpool and easiness in securities. Mill interests absorbed the offerings on the decline and a good rally followed. Closing trades were .06 cent higher to .04 cent a pound lower.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .04 cent higher with New York, 8.91 cents; New Orleans, 8.60 cents; Galveston, 8.41 cents and Houston at 8.40 cents a pound. Prices follow:

LARGER RAISING OF LIVE STOCK AIDS MANY LINES

Meat Production Highest in Four Years.

Benefits resulting from increased live stock raising on the farms are extending far beyond the meat industry itself. Many businesses which suffered from the derth of live stock receipts in 1935, 1936, and 1937, caused by drouths and decimation of animals by government mandate, are feeling the effects of the upswing in production on farms.

Data compiled from records of the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday that meat production throughout the country during recent months has been the largest in four years. It also is substantially above the output during the corresponding months of 1937. The upswing in meat production became most pronounced since last May.

Packers Employing More.

Employment in packing companies and some other industries closely associated with the live stock market during recent months reached the highest levels in several years. Wages per hour are the highest on record.

Most outstanding of the benefits flowing from the increased farm production in recent months follow:

1. Consumers have willingly swung back to meats and away from competitive foods which enjoyed a good trade at the expense of meat during the scarcity and high live stock prices in 1937. The per capita consumption of meats now is running the highest in four years.

2. Employment in the live stock industry, one of the largest employers in the country, has been stepped up parallel with the increase in supplies. The per unit cost of handling has been lowered.

Regain European Customers.

3. Packers have recovered some of the European customers that were lost to them when this country did not produce enough to feed itself. Now the United States is selling more meat abroad than is imported, the reverse of conditions in 1937. In the latter year this country imported more than it exported for the first time in history.

4. Because of the large surplus grain supply built up by farmers during the two years of good growing weather, their net profit per animal during recent months has been larger despite the lower level of prices of live stock than it was in 1937. The corn-hog price ratio in the last few months has been about the most favorable on record.

Transport Agencies Benefited.

5. Railroads and truck lines are hauling considerable more live stock and meat than they did prior to last May. From May to date it is estimated that 5,400,000 more animals were hauled to plants under federal inspection than during the same period a year earlier, an increase of 14 per cent.

Price trends in live stock last week were mixed. Some classes rose nearly to the 1938 peaks, but others declined. The week's averages for the three principal classes, steers, hogs, and lambs, were all below the preceding week's prices.

Steers averaged $10.35, off 30 cents. The hog price at $7.25 showed a loss of 10 cents. The lamb average at $8.90 was down 10 cents.

*All above receipts include direct shipments to packers. This is the system of reporting live stock receipts followed by The Tribune and until last week was the method of reporting receipts used by the government. During the last week there were 575 cattle, 31,946 hogs, and 5,501 sheep received direct, which are included in the above week's totals. Beginning this year the department of agriculture is excluding all direct receipts reporting only the salable supply. Consequently, the above receipts differ from those reported by the government. This explanation is offered to avoid confusion with the government's smaller totals.

INDUSTRY PICKS UP SPEED AFTER HOLIDAYS' LULL

ing week and 49 millions in the week ended Jan. 6, 1938.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity was unchanged last week at 92.5 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A year ago it was at 74.1 per cent. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	92.5	92.5	74.1
Automobile Prod	82.3	83.2	78.9
Steel Mill Act.	75.1	75.2	36.8
Cotton Mfg Act.	114.6	113.9	87.7
Electric Power Prod.	116.3	117.1	111.8

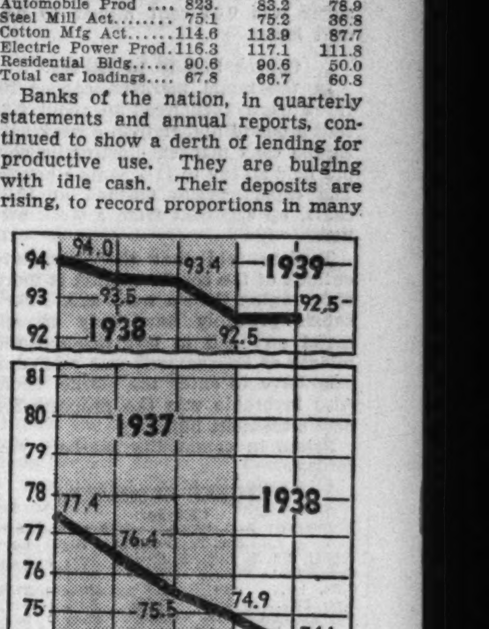
Total car loadings	67.8	66.7	60.8

Banks of the nation, in quarterly statements and annual reports, continued to show a derth of lending for productive use. They are bulging with idle cash. Their deposits are rising, to record proportions in many cases. Reports of the Chicago banks were typical of those in New York and elsewhere.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, in its annual report, said member banks in the district are not borrowing now. Instead, they have vast excess reserves piled up in the "bankers' bank." At the end of 1938 bills discounted by the reserve bank amounted to only $128,957, industrial advances were $414,823, and bills purchased in the open market totaled $68,299. Such a small amount of credit for commercial and industrial use is highly abnormal.

Loans Show Upward Trend.

The large Chicago loop banks similarly reported a low level of loans to commerce and industry. However, banks of the city, including about 25 per cent of those outside the loop, reported a trend toward larger loans and discounts in the last three months.

The Chicago banks combined reported deposits had risen to $3,386,161,000 as of Dec. 31. This compared with $3,193,136,000 on Sept. 28, 1938, and $2,978,181,000 on Dec. 31, 1937. Combined loans and discounts were $619,730,000 on Dec. 31, compared with $605,970,000 on Sept. 28 and $729,313,000 on Dec. 31, 1937. Loans and discounts normally are an important source of bank profits.

Banks' Earnings Divergent.

Some banks earned more in 1938 than in 1937, and others earned less. Increased profits were reported by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and the Harris Trust and Savings bank. Among those earning less than in 1937 were the First National Bank of Chicago, the Northern Trust company, and the American National Bank and Trust company.

Laurance Armour, president of the American National, said business expansion will be retarded if congress proceeds along the lines urged by President Roosevelt. Armour said "continued spending and increasing the public debt can only be an artificial stimulant which takes us around an ever enlarging circle with doubtful results."

BEG YOUR PARDON

A Washington dispatch printed in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last Sunday read "The Tennessee Valley authority predicted today that it would show a deficit of $300,000 for the present fiscal year on its power, navigation, and flood control operations." The word "deficit" was an error and should have been "profit."

FUTURES PRICES OF COMMODITIES UNEVEN IN WEEK

Hides, Rubber, Sugar, Wool Top Advance.

Commodity futures prices moved irregularly in a comparatively narrow range last week. Hides, rubber, sugar, and wool tops recorded modest losses. Lead, zinc, and cocoa made small gains. The Dow-Jones index of eleven commodity futures closed yesterday at 48.46, off 0.40 from a week ago.

Coffee futures were uneven. Rio contracts advanced about 0.04 cent a pound in the week, but Santos coffee prices were 0.05 cent a pound higher to 0.02 cent a pound lower. Sugar futures displayed the same irregularity. Domestic sugar finished 0.02 to 0.04 cent below a week ago. World sugar was 0.05 cent higher to 0.04 cent lower.

Copper Steady to Higher.

In the metal markets, copper futures were unchanged to about 0.02 cent a pound higher than a week ago. In the cash market, electrolytic copper held steady to 11¼ cents a pound. The export prices finished at 10.59 cents, up 0.05 cent from a week earlier.

Traders said that the immediate outlook of the copper market is more encouraging than a week ago. Fabricators probably have only enough metal on hand to last through the middle of February, it was said, and may have to enter the market soon. Also favorable was the proposal for new armament building.

What Does a Balance Sheet Tell?

Disclosures of fraud by officers of the McKesson & Robbins Drug company again bring to the front the question of what is contained in a "balance sheet" prepared and signed by a reputable accounting firm. The McKesson & Robbins fiasco emphasizes the view that the balance sheet should not be taken too literally—that it should be considered largely as a guide in helping a stockholder, creditor, or customer to form an opinion as to the financial position of the company.

The most frequently asked question about McKesson & Robbins has been: "Why didn't the annual audit by the accountants show that the raw drug division was an empty shell containing none of the drugs supposed to exist?"

Accountants that we have interviewed lately explain that there are various types of audits. These range from bare examination of accounting methods used by companies to minute personal examination of every item and transaction. Minute examinations are costly.

Thus the audit becomes a matter of cost. The company which hires accountants to make an audit gets what it pays for. One accountant estimated that at least 98 per cent of the established American companies are honest and regular in the conduct of their business. This indicates that it would be unfair, unreasonable, and costly to stockholders to make minute audits mandatory in all companies, because of the irregularities of a few.

Audit of an inventory is often largely a matter of judgment. Few accountants have a thorough knowledge of the many kinds of goods in stock. For example, an accountant making a "physical audit" of a jewelry firm's stock could not personally tell whether the diamonds shown him were diamonds or bits of glass.

Consequently in reporting most audits accountants indicate that they have relied on responsible officers of the company for a statement on the condition of the inventory. In the McKesson & Robbins 1937 annual report inventories were listed at $44,254,735, and the accountants' notation read, "certified as to quantity and condition by responsible officers."

When the top officers conspire to carry on illegal practices, it is difficult to detect them at once, but sooner or later their dishonesties are bound to come to light.

It should be kept in mind, first of all, that accounting is not an exact science—the quality of personal judgment must always be important in the examination of the accounts of any corporation. By and large a financial audit gives clew as to the financial position of a company, but the audited statement should not be relied upon as a statement free from error of fact or judgment.

NAZIS DIG DEEP INTO TRICK BAG TO HOLD TRADE

Use Schemes to Operate 'Without Credit.'

the Balkan states goods which can be sold elsewhere for cash. Instead they sold them products not wanted in countries with free currencies which can pay the cash or foreign exchange that Germany needs so urgently. The Germans had a surplus of aspirin, so Jugo-Slavia now has enough imported aspirin to doctor all the headaches in Europe.

Plays Other Trumps.

But the Nazis have played other trump cards. They do not wish to liquidate their clearing debts, even by shipping surplus goods, because their foothold in the trade and economic policies of southeastern Europe would slip. England, the United States, and Italy, would do more business there. So the Germans offer to ship the Rumanians bicycles, if Rumania will consent to send the Nazis some more oil. The net result may be some reduction in Germany's clearing debt, but as small a reduction as the Nazis can make and still keep other countries trading with them.

Germany's attitude is that "we'll pay you the way we want to or not at all," and the states which have a heavy stake in the clearings balances are almost helpless. They usually consent to Germany's way. Meanwhile, their own finances are strained, because they have paid more from their clearings accounts to exporters than has been paid into the accounts by importers. This is due to the fact that their exporters have sent more to Germany than their importers have received.

Triples Trade in Five Years.

Germany in the last five years has nearly tripled her share of the foreign trade of the five countries, Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, and Greece. These states buy about 42 per cent of their imports from Germany and send 37 per cent of their exports to the Nazis.

This increasing source of raw materials close at hand is a help to the Nazis, but it does not mean that Germany can bank on her southeastern neighbors to keep her entirely supplied, even if they are willing. Although shipments from southeastern Europe are large in proportion to those states' total, they make up only 14 per cent of Germany's imports. And on the other hand, although Germany sends more than 40 per cent of the goods which the five states buy, this total is only 11 per cent of all the goods that Germany sells.

Another threat to Germany's trade expansion lies in the fact that the little contries are beginning to wake up to the part they are playing in Germany's trade devices. They are making some progress in slowly reducing the credits that Germany has been getting by not settling her clearings debts.

Debts Are Whittled Down.

In March, 1935, Germany owed eight European countries more than $220,000,000 in clearings debts. She had bought and failed to pay for that amount of goods by any remittance, either in gold, exchange, or other goods. By December, 1937, however, the eight countries had whittled this clearings debt down to about $120,000,000. If they continue to whittle, Germany will find it harder and harder to keep arming at top speed, and still have enough goods left to trade for raw materials.

[This is the first of a series of articles on Germany's foreign trade practices. The second will appear in an early issue of The Tribune.]

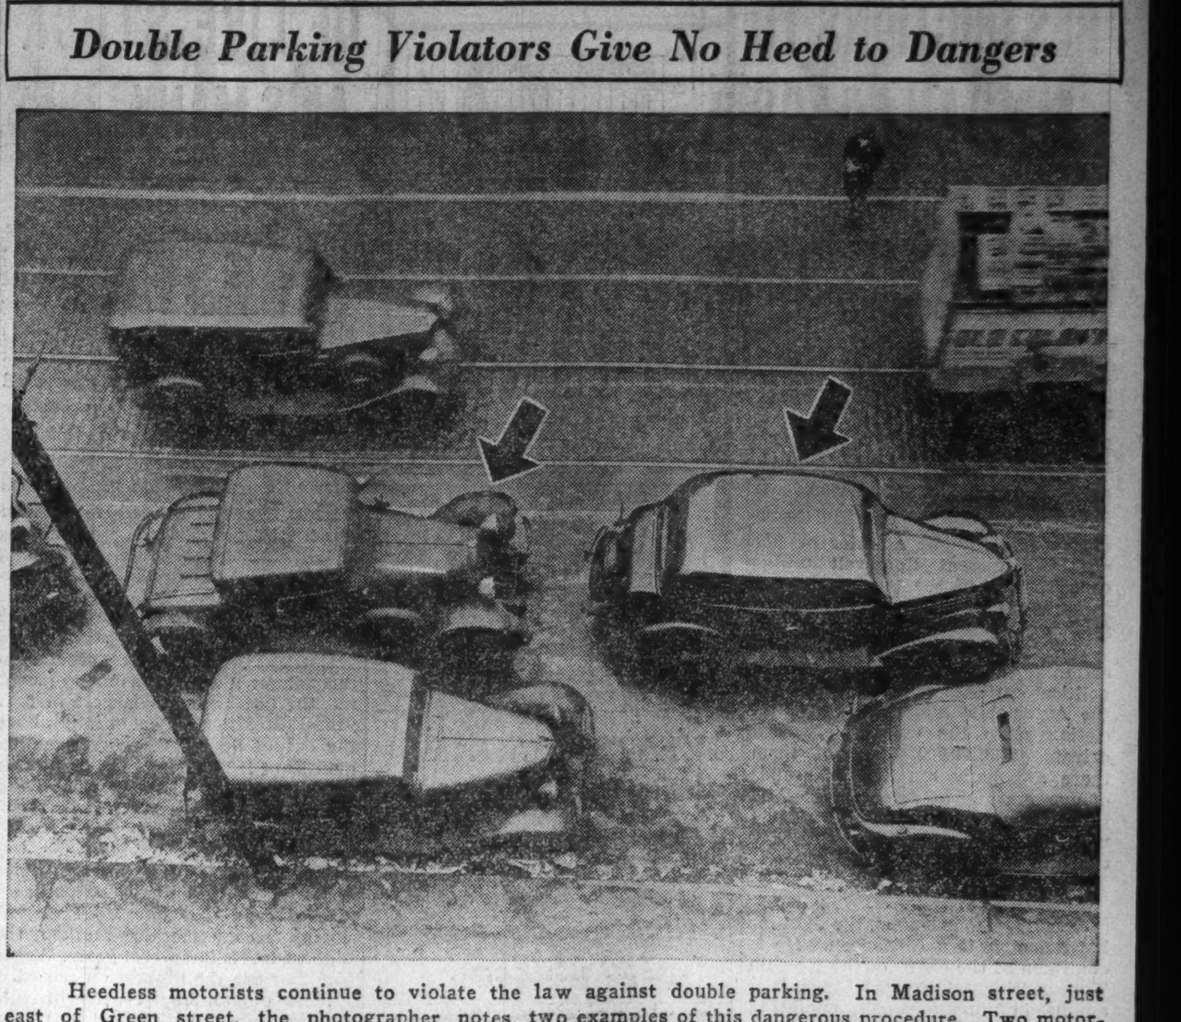
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Double Parking Violators Give No Heed to Dangers



Heedless motorists continue to violate the law against double parking. In Madison street, just east of Green street, the photographer notes two examples of this dangerous procedure. Two motorists have double parked on the north side of Madison street. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

AUTO INDUSTRY ENTERS '39 WITH FAIR PROSPECTS

With the public's reception of the 1939 models far exceeding expectations, the automobile industry is entering 1939 with fair prospects. The situation is far different from that of a year ago, when declining sales caused a sharp contraction in production.

Changes in the appearance of the 1939 cars and numerous refinements in engineering brought an immediate public response when the 1939 models were brought out last fall. Most of the factories were forced to increase their production programs. This stimulated business in the steel industry and helped many other industries that supply the materials and parts used in the automobile plants.

Expect Heavy Spring Buying.

The buying wave that started the 1939 models when first presented continued to the end of 1938, giving promise of heavy buying in the spring when automobile sales normally are largest.

The automobile industry is a vital factor in the nation's economic structure. In the 1938 model year—which officially is rated as having closed on Sept. 30—the industry produced cars and trucks having a total value of $1,683,600,000. Replacement parts were valued at $950,285,000. Hence the total value of its output was $2,633,885,000. This includes tires and other essentials.

There were registered in the United States last year 28,800,000 motor vehicles, or 70 per cent of the world total.

Consumes Fifth of Steel.

The industry consumed 21 per cent of the steel produced in this country during the 1938 model year, 80 per cent of the rubber, 5 per cent of the lumber, 17 per cent of the copper, 31 per cent of the lead, 12 per cent of the tin, 13 per cent of the aluminum, and 28 per cent of the nickel.

Automobiles, including pleasure cars and trucks, consumed 19,600,000,000 gallons of gasoline having a retail value, including taxes, of $3,840,000,000.

There were 4,200,000 trucks in use. To drive them were 3,100,000 truck drivers. This figure contrasts with the less than 1,000,000 railroad workers.

Employed in the factories producing automobiles, bodies, and parts were 337,000 workers whose weekly payroll averaged $9,200,000.

Regard Cheap Car Needed.

Although the automobile industry is a giant among world industries, so far it has only scratched the surface. One observer said recently that there is a need in the nations rated as among the more backward for a car to sell at about $100. Such a car would have to be able to travel over primitive roads in such teeming nations as China and India.

In the meantime, American cars continue to set the world standard for quality. Excellent as are American cars, new improvements are in sight which promise to make for even greater convenience of operation.

One of the outstanding developments in the 1939 line came out late in the season. It is a new type of transmission known as "fluid drive," which is being watched by the industry. This device makes gear shifting unnecessary and is said to give the gasoline powered automobile the easy driving qualities of steam or electricity without their disadvantages.

Buick's Regional Stafs Discuss Sales for Spring

Members of the regional and zone stafs of the Buick division of General Motors in the south and midwest met at the Stevens hotel yesterday to discuss sales plans for the first quarter and for the spring. The territory represented includes Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City, El Paso, Dallas, Memphis, and Atlanta. W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager, said the Buick organization is the strongest in years. During the last quarter of 1938, he said, sales records were set, and sales in the winter months are expected to exceed those of last year.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

DEFENDS WHEATON.

Wheaton, Ill., Dec. 29.—Ordinarily one can discount the squawks of disgruntled speeders about 99 per cent when they squeal "speed trap," but in the case I am about to speak of I feel that a reply should be made. I refer to the somewhat libelous letter written by Ralph Beckler and appearing in the issue of Dec. 25 concerning his arrest by the Wheaton police on a speeding charge.

The facts of the case are as follows: At about 8:30 a. m. on Sept. 22, 1938, Mr. Beckler was stopped by Officer Burkholder and given a ticket to appear in the court of Police Magistrate F. E. Herrick. Mr. Beckler was driving west on Roosevelt road within the city limits of Wheaton at a speed of fifty miles an hour. Near the eastern boundary of the city there is a sign warning motorists to reduce their speed. As the built-up section is approached there is another sign of similar nature. There is also a school warning sign. There are children who must cross Roosevelt road.

Mr. Beckler appeared in the court of Magistrate Herrick, admitted the truth of the charge against him, and was let off with a fine of $1 and costs of $3.40, a munificent total of $4.40. The $1.40 officer's costs do not go to the officer. They go into a pension fund. This could easily have been ascertained with a little inquiry.

During 1938 there were about sixty arrests for speeding made on Roosevelt road within the city limits of Wheaton. This is approximately one per week. Speed trap? Maybe. But maybe it's just an aversion to having school children mangled by autos.
HARVEY WOLFE.

ELEVATED HIGHWAYS.

New York, Jan. 4.—As a Chicagoan, of course I'm reading THE TRIBUNE while away on business. And I'm glad to read that you're getting some support from civic organizations for your "build elevated highways" plank.

I want to make a suggestion that may sound silly at first, but if you'll think it over it really isn't such a bad idea. Why don't you charter a couple of buses and take Chicago's fifty aldermen to New York for a ride over the elevated highways here. This experience would do more than all of your editorials to sell your council on the advantages of this type of design.

Any one who ever has driven New York's elevated highways is an advocate. They are safe and they are fast. After using them for ten years New York is building more. Something must be done to get Chicago moving in this direction or it will stagnate in its dangerous street congestion.
RENE DONALDSON.

PARKING VIOLATORS.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—We west side property owners surely appreciate the fine publicity you are giving the west side highways.

May the writer call your attention to the condition of Roosevelt road which was widened some years ago to relieve the congestion and now the entire area from Canal street to Ashland avenue is being used for angle parking and it is next to impossible to get through. May we suggest that you have your photographer take a picture of Roosevelt road and Halsted street and see what a dangerous and inaccessible street it is?

Another east and west situation is Cermak road from Archer avenue to Ashland avenue, which is impassable, due to no paving.

Thanks again for the interest you have shown in the west side.
ARNOLD K. MARKS.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chicago and its suburbs in Cook county led all metropolitan areas in the country in 1937 in the registration of new automobiles, according to a survey just completed by the Chicago Automobile Trade association. The county, with a population of 3,982,123, registered 126,373 new cars, compared with 109,993 for the New York City area with a population of 6,930,446. Detroit, with a population of 1,564,397, was in third place with 106,087.

A thorough midwinter checkup of your automobile is advised by W. R. Bamford, service director of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation. Calcium chloride and salt used to combat slippery ice on roads exposes certain parts of the chassis and steering mechanism to corrosive chemical action which may be rendered harmless by timely attention, he said. Drives are frequently so short that engines do not get hot enough to throw off acid fumes that collect in the crankcase in cold weather and this should be looked after. Engine lubricants should be changed to get rid of sulphuric fumes that may have an etching effect on the smooth surface of working parts.

RAIL CROSSING FATALITIES CAN BE CUT IN HALF

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—The Illinois commerce commission reported today that during 1938 there were 353 collisions between automobiles and trains in this state, resulting in 179 deaths. This compares with 383 collisions with 172 deaths in 1937 and 396 collisions with 208 deaths in 1936.

Warren Henry, I. C. C. engineer in charge of grade crossing protection, surmised from his study of these crashes that the number of fatalities could be cut in half if motorists would obey the automatic flashing signals. A section of the motor vehicle code, ignored in general trafic practices and entirely lacking in enforcement efforts, requires a driver to stop for these flashing lights and to proceed after ascertaining that it is safe to do so.

Think It Advisory Message.

"In our surveys of trafic practices," said Mr. Henry, "we have found that drivers interpret the flashing red lights as merely an advisory message that there might be a train approaching. Only 1 per cent of the motorists are making the stop required by law. Ninety-nine per cent take a quick look on the run and continue across the tracks without stopping when in their judgment it is safe for them to do so. Half of the drivers will cross within twenty seconds of the train's arrival at the crossing."

Some of today's dangerous disobedience to the modern flashing light signal might be an heritage from the many years that motorists ignored unreasonable stop signs at railroad crossings. Some of the old crossbucks read "stop, look, and listen," but didn't expect any one really to stop unless they saw a train.

Order Removal in 1937.

In 1917 the Illinois legislature authorized railroads to install semi-circular stop signs. The stop wasn't necessary at a majority of the installations and the motorists ignored the command. The I. C. C. in September of 1937 ordered the removal of these signs.

"With today's speeds of automobiles and of trains," said R. B. Thomas, safety engineer for the commission, "it is not unreasonable for drivers to be compelled to stop for the flashing red lights notifying them that there is a train near the crossing. Only after he has stopped is a motorist able to judge whether the signal is flashing solely because there is a switch engine standing nearby or whether there might also be a fast streamliner approaching from the other direction."

Not Enough Funds Available.

With 18,000 railroad grade crossings in Illinois, funds are not available for protecting all of them. Grade separations cost from $100,000 to $1,000,000 each. Automatic gates and lights cost from $4,000 to $5,000 per installation. Illinois received $2,640,000 federal funds in 1937 for grade separation and protection, $2,579,000 in 1938, and will get a little more than $1,000,000 in 1939 for this work.

In the meantime, the commission is making slow but definite progress toward inaugurating a program of closing little used grade crossings. The largest of these projects to date was brought to a successful conclusion this week. Its details are illustrative of the aims of this activity.

At a commission hearing the city of Lincoln, population 13,000, which is thirty miles north of here, agreed to the closing of fifteen of its streets at the Alton and at the Illinois Central railroad tracks. At the same time, gates and flashing signals are to be installed by the state at eleven other grade crossings where trafic will be concentrated. The improvements will cost $40,000.

Hazards Are Reduced.

"It is obvious that the hazards are reduced by such an arrangement," said Mr. Henry. "We are negotiating with other cities and villages to make similar arrangements. We want to close as many crossing as we can wherever it can be done without causing undue inconvenience to street and highway trafic."

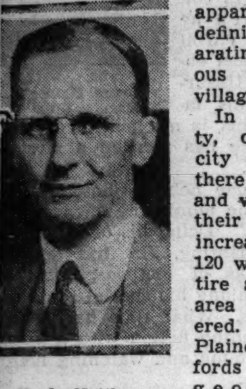
ALDERMANIC BATTLE LINES DRAWN

TELLS BENEFITS IN MERGER OF COUNTRY TOWNS

Majority Fight to Keep Identity.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.



T. A. Matthews.

Motorists passing through the Chicago suburban area sometimes are confused by the apparent lack of definite lines separating the various towns and villages.

In Cook county, outside the city of Chicago, there are 90 cities and villages, and their number is increased to some 120 when the entire suburban area is considered. The Des Plaines river affords a natural geographical boundary, but often there is no more than a street to separate one village from another.

Few Breaks Between Towns.

On the north, except for a brief break of "no man's land" and the government property at Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training station, the territory is continuously incorporated from the Chicago limits to Lake Forest. Northwest, the incorporated strip runs almost without a break to Palatine. West, corporations touch one another to Wheaton along the North Western railroad and to Downers Grove along the Burlington. Chicago Heights provides the outpost for an unbroken stretch of incorporated towns on the south.

To the outsider there is also some confusion of names—River Forest, Forest Park, Lake Forest. Names easily may be changed, following a petition by qualified electors and further action by the village council. Five Corners became Glen Ellyn when the hamlet moved itself to meet the whims of the railroad. Schiller Park was once Kolze Park, Forest Park formerly was known as Harlem. Evanston used to be Ridgeville.

Contrary to the impression of the puzzled tourist, the closely linked communities, each with its quota of commuters, vary in their backgrounds.

Once Trading Centers.

Some of the towns were isolated trading centers when Chicago itself had its beginning and long before there was a metropolitan area. Downers Grove is older than Chicago. Evanston, once a port and incorporated in 1857, welcomed sailing vessels at the foot of Davis street. Blue Island was incorporated in 1843. Des Plaines is an old town.

Mingled with the old towns, once self-sustaining in themselves, are communities of more recent origin established for residential and suburban purposes. Typical of this group are Winnetka and Kenilworth on the north; River Forest, Riverside, and La Grange on the west; Park Ridge to the northwest, and Flossmoor to the south. Park Ridge was incorporated as late as 1910, and Villa Park was laid out in 1914. Lombard dates back to 1869, and Oak Park and River Forest were trading centers in the pioneer era.

Other of the communities are industrial as well as suburban, such as Cicero and Maywood on the west, Waukegan and North Chicago on the north, Des Plaines to the northwest, and Harvey, Blue Island, and Chicago Heights on the south.

Brookfield in Three Parts.

Certain of the municipalities include postoffices and railway stations bearing other names. What started out as Grossdale, East Grossdale, and West Grossdale at the time of the 1893 World's Fair are now Brookfield, Hollywood, and Congress Park—all a part of Brookfield.

As the metropolitan area has developed, the set-up of suburban towns has become more and more fixed. Back in 1889 Austin was annexed to Chicago, Edison Park followed in 1910, Morgan Park and Clearing in 1915. Mount Greenwood also was absorbed by annexation with Chicago. The most recent vote on annexation to Chicago was taken in 1930 by Beverly.

In Cook county there has never been an instance of the uniting of one city or village to another, for, as the law stands, no city or village can be annexed to or incorporated within another without a favorable vote of a majority of the citizens of each municipality, and the same is true of school districts, park districts, and townships.

Lake Forest Rejects Merger.

The only effort in recent years to annex one municipality to another, aside from the Chicago annexations, was that to unite Lake Bluff to Lake Forest in 1930. The measure received a favorable vote in Lake Bluff, but Lake Forest voters rejected it.

In 1932 there was a proposal to create a metropolitan district covering practically all of Cook county outside Chicago, leaving present cities and villages as units, but taking from them most of their governmental power and vesting it in the newly created district. Due to the opposition of the suburban towns, the measure was vigorously fought in the state legislature and defeated.

Advocates of the measure asserted

Ready to Show Speed

"The flash of steel" has gone down in history books and romantic novels as an accompaniment to masculine glory. In this day and age it can also describe the grace of feminine skaters. Next Sunday afternoon the phrase will take on vitality at the second annual Marquette park ice carnival sponsored by the Southwest Business Men's association and local civic groups. Beginning at 2 o'clock, the carnival will be open to boys, girls, men, and women for racing events, figure skating, and novelty numbers. In case of mild weather the carnival will be held the following Sunday afternoon. It cannot come too soon, however, for these young skaters who have been practicing during the holiday vacation. Completely at home on the ice, the young ladies are (left to right) Miss Bernadine Schodrof, 6510 Washtenaw avenue; Miss Helen Donohue, 7332 Campbell avenue, and Miss Margaret Zeiger, 6626 Washtenaw avenue.

WORTH TOWNSHIP DEMANDS SAFETY ON GRAND TRUNK

Urges Flasher Signals at Crossings.

Authorizing Paul T. Klenk, attorney, to file a petition with the Illinois commerce commission, the Worth township board last week entered the campaign to obtain protection along the Grand Trunk railroad right-of-way in the Harvey, Blue Island, and Dixmoor area.

Mr. Klenk said the petition will request the installation of flasher signals at the 115th, 119th, and 123d street crossings in the township and the levelling of the steep upgrades.

Blue Island to Aid.

The city of Blue Island will work in conjunction with the board, Mayor John M. Hart said, and this petition also may incorporate demands for more protection at the city crossings.

The action of the board followed a meeting of residents of the area who asked that steps be taken and promised coöperation in the campaign, Clifford Rust, township supervisor said.

One of the greatest hazards is the steep grade which cars must climb to cross the tracks, Mr. Klenk pointed out. This destroys visibility, and often causes cars to stall.

Ask More Protection.

Another petition is under preparation also seeking increased protection at six Grand Trunk crossings in Harvey or the control of the speed of trains passing through town, Mayor Frank Bruggeman has announced.

The campaign has been intensified following the deaths not long ago of Policeman Johan K. A. Jensen and his wife at the 115th street crossing. These fatalities brought to 39 the total killed by Grand Trunk trains since 1931.

1931 PRESIDENT AGAIN TO LEAD ST. MICHAEL CLUB

John Sotak again was elected recently to the presidency of St. Michael Young Men's club, 1948 West 48th street, having held the office previously in 1931. He will succeed Paul Dolenak.

Other officers are John Minorcik, vice president; Stephen Cermak, financial secretary; Stephen Korcheck, treasurer; Andrew Gronkoosky, recording secretary, and Frank Kobilarcik, John Sorna, and Michael Socha, sergeant at arms.

The board of directors comprises Mr. Cermak, John Kubina, John Duleva, Mr. Sotak, Mr. Dolenak, Joseph Budz, and John Hrebic.

Loretto Auxiliary Plans to Offer Pantry Shower

Plans for the annual pantry shower given by the Loretto auxiliary for the benefit of the nuns will be made Wednesday afternoon in the high school, 6541 Stewart avenue. The shower is scheduled for Jan. 18. In charge of the arrangements will be Mrs. P. H. Mullarkey, 633 West Marquette road, and Mrs. O. E. Jones, 6619 Perry avenue, co-chairman. Mrs. Clara Postal, 3256 West 65th place, is president of the auxiliary.

Children in Midlothian Get an Ice Skating Rink

Children in Midlothian will be given an opportunity to skate with the establishment of an ice rink at 147th street and Abbotsford road by the village board. A measure was recently passed by the board to finance the labor needed for banking the ground. No ice skating has been possible in the village for the last two years.

Vytautas Beliajus, 6210 South Park avenue, folk dancing instructor for the park district, will present a recital of the picturesque folk and interpretive dances from Tibet, India, Palestine, Lithuania, and the Jewish Hassidic sects of Europe tomorrow evening in the Chicago's Woman's club theater, 62 East 11th street. Several hundred of his pupils are expected to attend the recital which will include the Devil Dance of Tibet and the Hindu Fire dance.

TO Harry F. Glair, Vollmer road, Floosmoor, goes the credit for having one of the best Christmas decorations. Santa Claus, his sleigh, and reindeer were perched on the roof of his home, and trees in both the first and second floor windows heightened the holiday spirit.

Miss Ruth Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Evans, 6415 Stewart avenue, was one of the many students from Chicago who shook off the holiday spirit last week and departed for school. She left for Murfreesboro, Tenn., where she will complete her senior year in the Tennessee College for Women in June. She is majoring in English and dramatics.

THE dean of the Frederick Mizen Academy of Art, 75 East Wacker drive, last week awarded Thomas Guba, 8400 Burley avenue, a scholarship for a 20 weeks' course. One of Bowen High school's outstanding art students, he won the competition open to all February graduates in the studios Nov. 19. His illustration depicted a clergyman sitting in a large arm chair reading a book.

Four Our Town couples recently celebrated anniversaries marking an aggregate of 167 years of married life. Heading the list are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pepper, 4407 South Halsted street, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hayman, 829 East 52d street, who observed their golden anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Pepper were married in Marinette, Wis., and moved to Chicago in 1917. They have ten sons and daughters and six grandchildren. Mrs. Pepper's mother, 100 years old, resides in Algoma, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Hayman came to this country from Hungary and have resided here for 55 years. They have seven sons and daughters and twelve grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Weil celebrated their forty-second anniversary with a dinner in their home, 5142 Greenwood avenue. Mr. Weil has been a bailif in the offices of the sherif and the chief bailif of the Municipal court for the last 29 years. They were married in Chicago. Among the relatives who attended the dinner were the families of their son, Edwin, and their daughter, Mrs. Henrietta Block.

The third couple are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dahl, 2119 West 121st street. Blue Island, who marked their silver anniversary. They have seven sons and daughters.

John W. Gorby, former official of the real estate board and professor of real estate in the Central Y. M. C. A. college, is the new business manager of the Woodlawn Property Owners' league, who began his duties recently.

The new regulation hocky ring in Marquette park bears testimony that Joseph Vondraska, 3359 West 26th street, is a real hocky fan. He contributed the equipment. Weather permitting, hocky league games will be played every Sunday afternoon on the new rink. James Hozelton, 3536 West 66th place, is the president of the league.

FATHERS, SONS GIVEN BANQUET AT ARMOUR TECH

The annual fathers' and sons' banquet of Armour Institute of Technology will be held Wednesday evening in the new dining room of the Student union. The lately modernized Student union building on the campus offers accommodations for 300 persons.

The banquet, sponsored by the Armour Tech Student association, is given for the purpose of bringing the students, their fathers, and members of the faculty into a closer relationship. John J. Schommer, athletic director of the institute, will be toastmaster.

Arrangements will be in charge of Richard N. Vandekieft, president of the student association; Lloyd W. Norkus, 7252 Merrill avenue, first vice president; Thomas Collier, second vice president, and Donald J. Mackey, secretary.

DRAMATIC CLUB OF PALMER PARK PRESENTS PLAY

"Man from Texas," a three-act drama, will be staged by the Palmer Park Dramatic club Friday evening in the fieldhouse auditorium, 111th street and Indiana avenue.

Character rôles will be enacted by Mary Kovarik, 11125 Michigan avenue; Geanie Bolach, 11254 Michigan avenue; Marion Rinaldo, 11139 Michigan avenue; Norman Cotton, 11136 Wallace street; John Streit, 15 East 113th street; Albert Rosner, 11125 Michigan avenue; Buena Hulett, 50 West 104th street; Karl Spannare, 11356 Prairie avenue, and Eleanor Breding, 58 West 112th street.

Robert S. Blakeslee of the Chicago Park district dramatic staf will direct the production and Stewart Richter, park supervisor, will be in charge of the house. Tickets may be obtained at the fieldhouse.

AWARD MEDALS TO CADETS IN 21 UNITS THIS WEEK

Outstanding Youths Given Honors.

Outstanding high school R. O. T. C. cadets in the city will continue to be rewarded this week as local patriotic organizations present medals at special assemblies in twenty-one schools. Ninety-seven cadets in six units received awards last week.

The awards are designed to recognize all types of military excellence. While the Chicago Tribune medals are given for superiority in all phases of the training, engraved discs for officers and noncommissioned officers' efficiency, recruiting, neatness, rifle marksmanship, and general excellence are being presented by American Legion posts, the Reserve Officers association, R. O. T. C. headquarters, and various other organizations.

Tells Value of Work.

Presenting the Tribune medals, Philip Maxwell emphasized the value of R. O. T. C. training in leadership, citizenship, and discipline.

Following is the schedule of assemblies for this week:

Monday—Von Steuben, 10:06 a. m.; Roosevelt, 1:45 p. m., and Bowen, 1:50 p. m.

Tuesday—Austin, 10:25 a. m.; Fenger, 10:34 and 11 a. m.; Englewood, 12:05 p. m., and Marshall, 12:15 p. m.

Wednesday—Senn, 8:30 a. m.; Sullivan, 9:30 a. m.; Kelly, 10:12 a. m.; Lindblom, 11:10 a. m., and Harper, 1 p. m.

Thursday—Waller, 8:30 a. m.; Du Sable, 10:12 a. m.; Amundsen, 1 p. m., and Lane, 2:30 p. m.

Friday—Calumet, 8:54 a. m. and 9:35 a. m.; Tilden, 10:15 a. m.; Morgan Park, 10:17 and 10:55 a. m., and Hirsch, 230 p. m.

Aiding Formal Parties

The young people on the southwest side are still in a holiday mood as they celebrate with formal teas and dances this week. Miss Jinni Rausch, 10812 Prospect avenue, will act as hostess this afternoon for the candlelight tea and bridge party of the Alumnae association of Mount Mary college in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive.

[Bloom Studio.]

Graduating students of Fenger High school will close their high school careers with a flourish at the annual senior prom Friday evening in the Crystal ballroom of the Medinah club. Miss Helen Wolfgram, 11713 Stewart avenue, a 4B student and a member of the Phorex society, will be on the ball committee.

[Daguerre Studio.]

For the first time in the history of the Chicago Teachers' college a prom queen will rule over the annual senior ball. As chairman for this year's dance to be held Friday evening in the Gold room of the Congress hotel, Miss Mary Therese McElherne, 8033 Green street, will be a popular candidate for the role of queen. Miss McElherne will also lead the grand march.

FIGHT TO TIE UP WITH STRUGGLE FOR MAYORALTY

Makeup of Wards Shown by Survey.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Eleven aldermen will be selected in the elections of Feb. 28 and April 4 to represent southwest side wards in the city council for the next four years.

It is only the second time members of the council have been chosen for terms of that length. Until 1935, when the present council was elected, the terms were two years.

Candidates began filing their petitions before the board of election commissioners last month. The last day for filing is Jan. 24. Battle lines, however, are already being formed along several fronts.

Illinois law provides that the aldermanic elections shall be nonpartisan. Ballots merely carry the names of the candidates. There is no party label or other factional designation. In each ward the names are rotated by precinct to give all candidates as nearly equal division of the coveted first positions as possible.

Parties Muster Votes.

Despite these precautions, the winners usually owe their seats to the backing of one party or the other. The Democratic ward groups have triumphed more often in recent elections. Only two Republicans were elected from southwest side wards in 1935.

As yet it is too early to see what factors will have the greatest influence. But one thing is certain. Mayor Kelly will be one of the most important.

His administration goes to trial as he seeks reëlection. Many of the incumbent aldermen will stand or fall on the verdict at the polls. This is because the present council has given the mayor almost 100 per cent coöperation and the members are closely identified with the administration policies.

There will be the usual attacks by reform groups and opposing party organizations. And Democratic aldermen in some wards will find it harder to hold their seats this year because of the strife in their own ranks that does not take the nonpartisan law into account. This factor and the gains of the G. O. P. in certain strongly Democratic wards such as the 17th and 19th give promise of some hard fought elections.

Character of Wards.

But before the issues and later developments can be made clear, consideration must be given to the size and character of the wards and the type of people who inhabit them. A brief description of the southwest side wards follows:

Third—Largely inhabited by Negroes. The area is 1.3 square miles; the population, 65,916. Michigan avenue and South Parkway are the main thoroughfares. Along them is unceasing bustle of activity. Tenements, shabby dwellings, overcrowded apartment houses occupy the largest area.

Dingy shops, fish markets, poultry stores, churches, and missions set up in stores, and barbecue stands are on the business streets. Generally, the living conditions are slightly better in the 3d ward than in the 2d, the other colored ward. Robert R. Jackson, colored, a Republican, is the alderman.

Ninth—Here was the setting for the novel, "So Big," by Edna Ferber. Largest industry is the Pullman company which is located in the northeast section. Lake Calumet occupies several miles in the east part and many other industrial plants have been built along its shore.

Includes Pullman Area.

In the western part are the residential sections for the industrial workers. Pullman and Roseland are the chief communities. The former began with the old town of Pullman, the first industrial community in the world. Roseland has many American families of Dutch birth or ancestry.

Arthur G. Lindell, a Republican, is the alderman.

Eleventh—Slanting through the north section of the ward is one of the most heavily traveled streets in the city, Archer avenue. This part of Chicago once was known as Bridgeport. It gained fame through the writings of the late Finley Peter Dunne. Mister Dooley's mythical saloon was in Archey road.

Largely industrial, the dwelling areas are crowded in on all sides by manufacturing plants. In the south end of the ward is the beginning of the great Union stockyards. There are only three small pieces of park land, Armour square, Mark White square, and Davis square.

A Thrifty Population.

Many Americans of German and Irish extraction are among the residents. As a class they are mostly thrifty, hard working folk. The population is in excess of 78,000; the area, four square miles. Hugh B. Connelly, a Democrat, is the alderman.

Twelfth—A population of 77,000 is divided among Americans of Polish, Lithuanian, Bohemian, Italian, and Irish descent or immigration. They live in two large residential sections, one in the center of the ward and the other in the northeast corner, and work mostly in the surrounding industrial region. Archer avenue is the main thoroughfare. The ward contains the old Brighton Park

TELLS BENEFITS IN MERGER FOR COUNTY TOWNS

Majority, However, Want to Keep Identity.

that economy and efficiency would result from consolidation through unified purchasing power and the elimination of overhead for supervisory work.

Local Pride Upheld.

Objection was based on local pride and the contention that increasing the size of any political unit decreased the influence of the unorganized independent voter.

Recalling the effort of 1932, Thomas A. Matthews of River Forest, attorney for the Illinois Municipal league and secretary of the Suburban Area and Country Towns association of Cook county, said:

"The machinery exists whereby one village may unite itself with another, and when there is a desire on the part of both villages to consolidate they should go to it if they feel they can better themselves. But I don't think they should be coerced into action.

"There has always been a feeling among the suburbs that they have as much to fear from centralized government about them as they have from too much authority applied at Washington. In small units it is possible to have the government handled by the volunteer services of public spirited citizens. Investigation will show that in many communities business men of the highest type give of their efforts as they would to a club.

More Nonpartisan Politics.

"In the smaller set-up citizens have more of a chance to get the sort of government they want and elect persons of their choice to office, and it is possible for a candidate without organization to succeed at the polls.

"Larger political set-ups require salaried executives that would replace men willing to serve as a civic duty. There is a desire in the suburbs 'to thresh out things' with one's neighbors along the early American town meeting arrangement.

"Also there is a feeling in the suburbs that practically all the advantages of consolidation can be accomplished through mutual coöperation between municipalities. Police departments stand ready to aid each other, and water departments and street departments lend each other their equipment.

Contrast in Economy.

"On the other hand, I believe that the possibilities for economy are great in the consolidation of overlapping governmental units which perform similar functions but maintain separate offices and supervisory facilities, and in elimination of such awkward machinery as we now have for collecting school taxes outside Chicago, where they are collected by old congressional townships now having no necessary relation to the present governmental township.

"There probably are instances where two villages, both small, could combine without decreasing the influence of the unorganized independent voter, because the new unit would not be too big. Villages, side by side, frequently differ in their tax rates, their building codes, their zoning laws, water rates, and bonded indebtedness. These would all call for adjustment."

School Boundaries Flexible.

Mr. Matthews pointed out that school districts in the suburban area have no necessary relation to municipal boundaries. Evanston, for instance, has two grade school districts, one covering the north part of the city, and the other the south. The Proviso township high school district includes Maywood, Melrose Park, Forest Park, and Bellwood. A large rural area is included in one Park Ridge grade school district.

Park districts are separate bodies, generally supervising only parks with a community house or swimming pool where boundaries have no necessary connection. There may be several park districts in a city, or a district may be half in the village and half out. Maywood formerly had three park districts, one of which recently was abolished.

An increase in the size of school districts or park districts, Mr. Matthews cited, would mean the necessity of paid supervision now handled by volunteers, as most members of park boards and school boards in the suburbs serve without compensation.

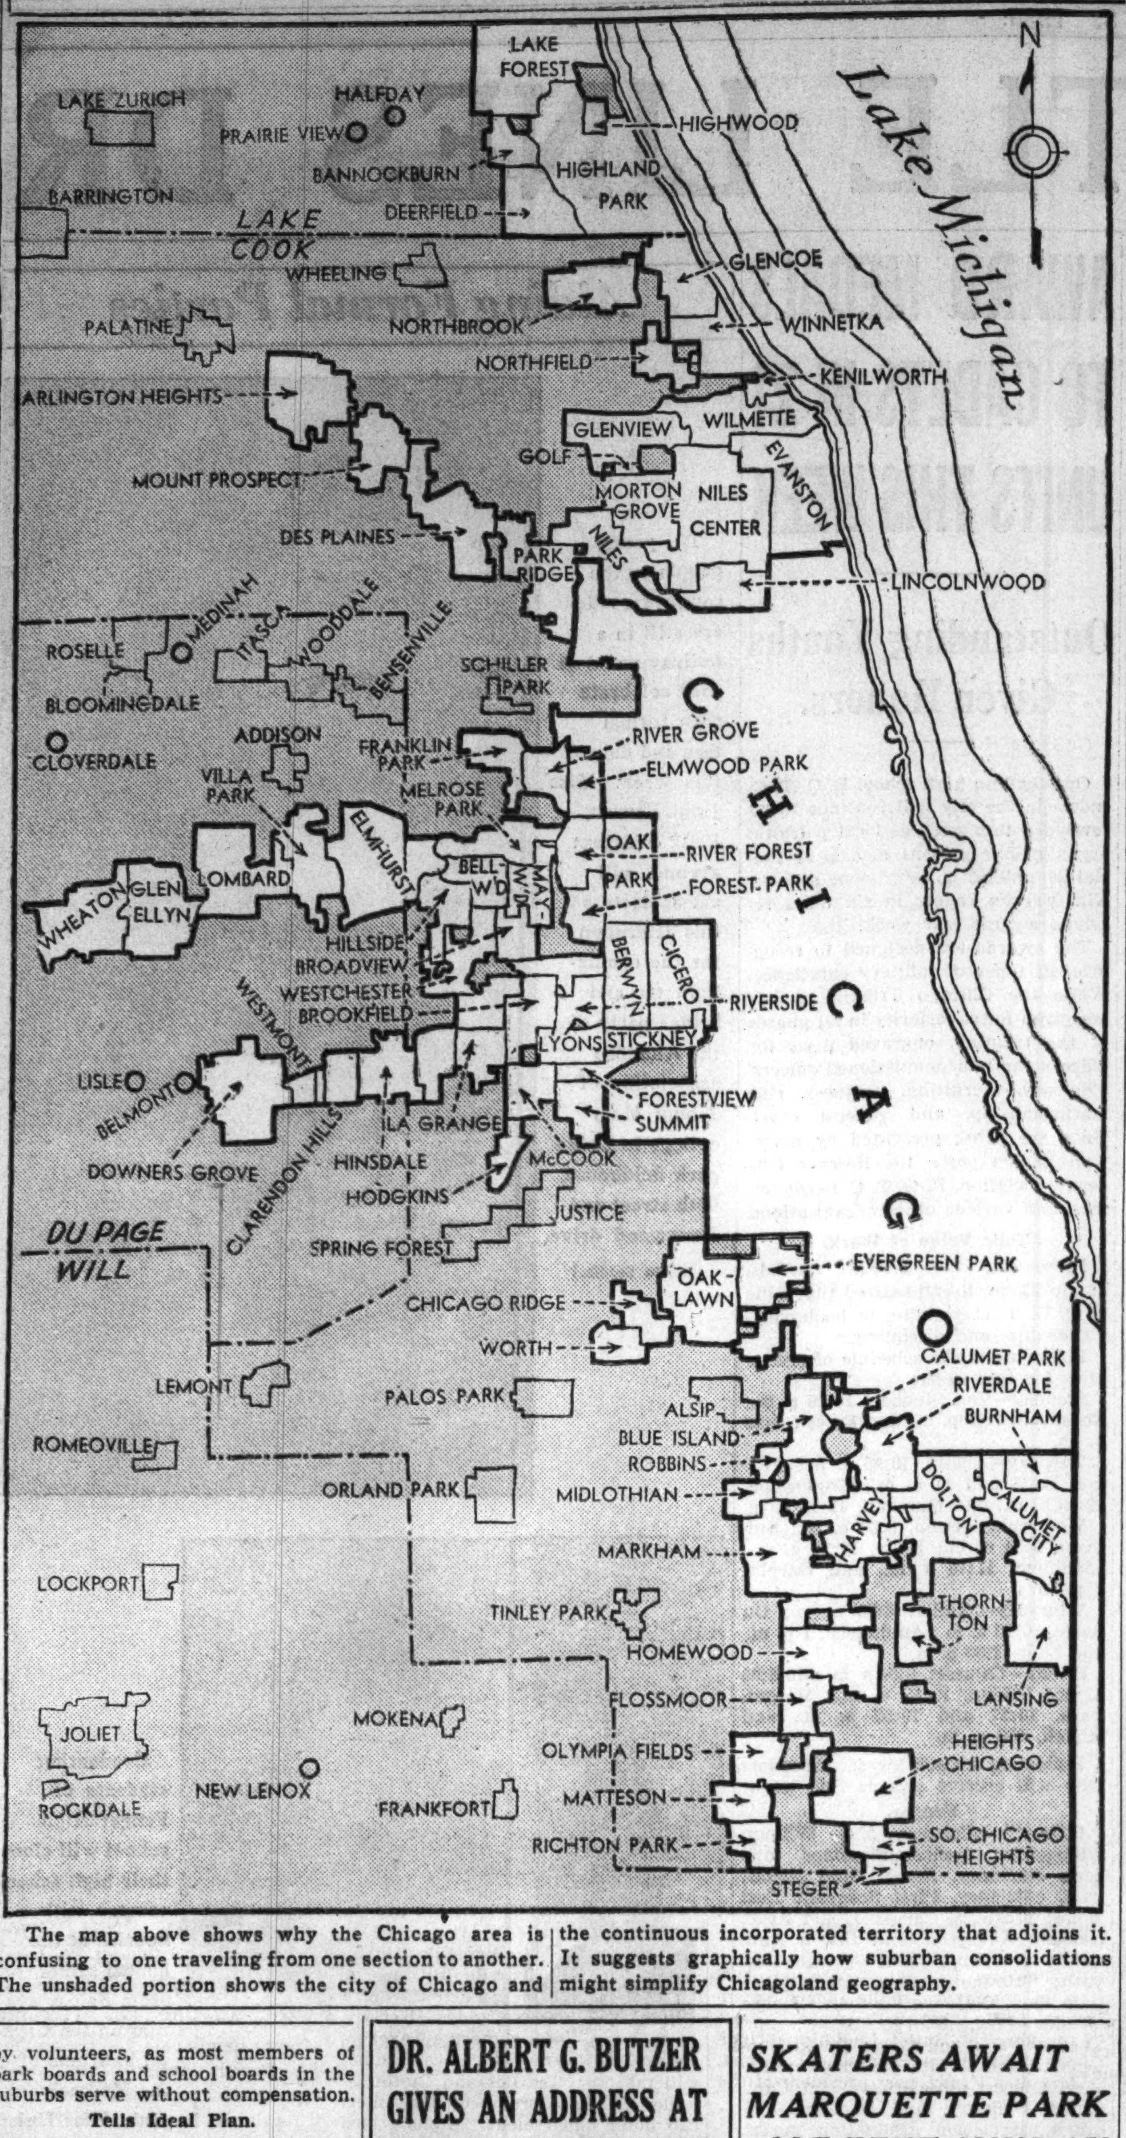
Tells Ideal Plan.

Mr. Matthews said the ideal metropolitan set-up, in his opinion, would be to utilize the benefits of the large unit, where there is benefit, and retain the benefits of local control for those problems best treated locally. This, he said, was what New York thought it was getting from Greater New York, but which did not come about.

"The movement to unite the suburbs with Boston also met with no success," said Mr. Matthews. "However, there was created a metropolitan water district, which includes Boston and twenty towns, a metropolitan park and boulevard district, including Boston and thirty-nine suburbs, and a sewerage district which comprises thirty-four municipalities besides Boston.

"Under the present law in Illinois," explained Mr. Matthews, "residents of any park district, school district, or city or village may unite with any other with the approval of a majority of the voters of each district or municipality affected. Practically all Cook county is now included in the Chicago sanitary district. The machinery for voluntary consolidations therefore exists."

Reveals Need of Suburban Mergers



The map above shows why the Chicago area is confusing to one traveling from one section to another. The unshaded portion shows the city of Chicago and the continuous incorporated territory that adjoins it. It suggests graphically how suburban consolidations might simplify Chicagoland geography.

GAGE PARK PLANNING ASSOCIATION INDUCTS NEW STAF TOMORROW

Newly elected officers of the Gage Park Improvement association will take up their official duties for the new year at a meeting tomorrow evening in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

Jerry Pech.

Charles Sagert, 5323 Maplewood avenue, will remain honorary president in tribute to his twenty-eight years as president, and Jerry Pech, 2743 West 55th street, has been reappointed attorney.

Robert W. Schulze, 2700 West 55th street, recording secretary for thirty-three years, is the new president. Henry Klinke, 5418 Artesian avenue, was reëlected vice president; and others are Steve Hijack, 2552 West 55th street, financial secretary; Harry Hehl, 5810 Artesian avenue, recording secretary; Mrs. J. K. Beers, 5632 Artesian avenue, treasurer; Martin Grabowski, 5365 Maplewood avenue, sergeant at arms, and August W. Steinert, 2550 West 55th street, reëlected chairman of the executive committee.

GARFIELD MEN'S CLUB HAS OPEN MEETING TODAY

The second meeting of the newly organized Garfield Men's club will be open to the public this evening in the Garfield Boulevard Methodist church, 717 West Garfield boulevard.

A sound movie, "The 80 Years" will be shown at 8 o'clock. Dr. James M. Yard, executive secretary of the Chicago Round Table of Jews and Christians, will talk on "The Changing Status of the Jew in the Modern World."

Officers of the club are John K. Alston, 7936 West Garfield boulevard, president; Russell Morgan, 1121 West Garfield boulevard, vice president; Wesley Menaugh, 5705 Union avenue, secretary, and George Prescott, 9424 Throop street, treasurer.

Drexel Park Presbyterians See Movie This Evening

"Wheat Can Grow with Tares" will be the subject of a sermon at 11 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. At 8 o'clock in the evening a three reel movie will depict "The Presbyterian Church in Action." The vested choir will present the musical program.

Continue Novena.

The Sorrowful Mother novena, lately introduced by the Servite Fathers at St. Basil church, 55th and Honore streets, will continue every Friday with morning masses at 6:30, 7, and 7:30 o'clock, and novena devotions at 4, 5, 7, and 8 o'clock in the evenings.

DR. ALBERT G. BUTZER GIVES AN ADDRESS AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

When Dr. Albert G. Butzer, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Buffalo, N. Y., speaks tonight in Orchestra hall on the topic "You Know Neither of These Two Things," he will be the eleventh speaker of this season to make a first appearance before the audience of the Sunday Evening club. He will be introduced by Clifford W. Barnes, who returns after prolonged absence to preside at the meeting.

Dr. Albert G. Butzer.

Dr. Butzer was graduated from Northwestern college at Naperville and shortly after was appointed a chaplain in France to an infantry division in the world war. He served in the army of occupation in Germany and then returned to America to complete his theological studies at the Union seminary. Dr. Butzer is active in civic affairs and a leader of the younger religious men as president of the Buffalo Peace council. Last year he was selected to give the Schaefer lectures at Yale university.

The informal talk at the preliminary meeting will be on "How to Get What You Want," by Dr. Charles M. Houser, minister of Pilgrim Congregational church, Fort Wayne, Ind.

FEDERAL MUSIC UNITS OFFER 7 FREE CONCERTS

Seven free concerts will be presented on the Southwest Side this week by units of the federal music project. The newest group, the Dearborn Concert orchestra under the direction of Theodore Romhild, will give three performances, Tuesday morning at Kelly High school, 4136 California avenue; Wednesday afternoon at the Clissold school, 2350 West 110th place, and Thursday evening in Englewood High school, 6220 Stewart avenue.

Pupils of the Little Flower school, 8020 Honoré street, will hear the Illinois Concert band Thursday afternoon. The band will also perform for the Peck school, 3826 West 58th street, Friday afternoon.

John Di Canio will direct a concert of the Cicero Concert band tomorrow in the Morrill school, 6011 Rockwell street. The Dixie orchestra will play tomorrow morning for the Mount Vernon school, 10540 Morgan street, and Tuesday afternoon for the Webster school, 250 West 37th street.

SKATERS AWAIT MARQUETTE PARK ICE FETE SUNDAY

Races, Dances, Skits Fill Program.

[PICTURE ON PAGE 1.]

Sonja Henie's show will have a rival next Sunday out at Marquette park, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Sponsored by the Southwest Business Men's association as well as civic and service organizations in the area, the second annual Marquette park ice carnival will be staged at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. If the weather man fails to agree with the date, the carnival will be postponed until the following Sunday.

Events of the day will consist of races for all ages, and novelty stunts including arobatics, dog sled races, comic and waltz skating to music. A queen will be selected to rule over the carnival and a parade of all contestants will be held prior to the events.

Plan Hocky Game.

A highlight will be a hocky game between the Marquette Arrows and the Planerts of the Chicago Arena. Joseph Vodraska, 3853 West 26th street, donor of the Marquette park hocky rink, will toss the first puck.

Races will be held for boys 11 years and under, 110 yards; for girls 11 years or under, 110 yards; for boys 14 years and under, 440 yards; for girls 14 years and under, 220 yards; for boys 17 years and under, 880 yards; and for girls 17 years and under, 440 yards. The senior boys will have both the half mile and the one mile races, while the senior girls will compete in the 880 yard race.

Competitions will be held in figure skating for women and men, intermediate relay over 880 yards, senior relay over a mile, dog sled races for boys of 14 years and under and for the best decorated sled entered by a child. There will be a costume contest for men, women, and children.

Drum Corps In Parade.

Participating in the opening parade will be the American Legion drum and bugle corps of Sullivan, Glendale, Schmidt, Darius-Gerenas, and Three Links Posts and Boy Scout troops.

LINES ARE DRAWN FOR ALDERMANIC PRIMARY BATTLE

Struggle Will Tie Up with Mayoralty Fight.

munity. It has an area of 4.8 square miles. Bryan Hartnett, a Democrat, is the alderman.

Thirteenth—Contains the municipal airport, the expansion of which was one of the problems that plagued the present council. In the east portions there are commercial and industrial sections. The west part consists of wide residential areas.

Middle Class Area.

The 78,984 population is made up mainly of middle class families. There is a mixture of Americans whose family trees are rooted in Poland, Lithuania, Ireland, and Italy. The residential and shopping communities include Chicago Lawn, Archer, and Garfield Heights, and Marquette Manor.

John E. Egan is the alderman. He was first elected in 1933 and was reëlected in 1935 without a contest. He is an adherent of Gov. Horner.

Fourteenth—"Back o' the Yards" district in this ward is one of the most famous parts of Chicago. The north section of the ward is occupied by the Union stockyards. Other industries extend down into the southeast corner. The rest is residential—built up by yard workers and their families. Irish is the predominating stock in the population of 69,156.

James J. McDermott, one of the city's leading aldermen, represents the 14th in the council. He won his seat in 1933 and won again in the last election without opposition.

A Cosmopolitan Ward.

Fifteenth—A mixture of many nationalities lives in the west half and in the northeastern corner. The middle of the ward is taken up by industrial plants. The property now used as Gage park, on the outskirts of the industrial section, was once owned by Hettie Green, famous woman of Wall street in the early part of the century. It passed into the possession of the city in about 1911.

Main shopping thoroughfares are 51st, 59th, and 63d streets, and Western, Damen, and Ashland avenues. Total population is more than 72,000. The area is 3.3 square miles. J. F. Kovarik, a Democrat, is the alderman.

Sixteenth—Almost entirely residential. It is one of the oldest and most densely populated in the city. The major portion of the Englewood district is within its boundaries. Intersection of 63d and Halsted streets is as busy as the loop intersections.

Houses of Middle Class.

The ward is largely built up with single and double family dwelling units. Of late years, there have been many apartments built also. It is another part of the city where substantial middle class citizens live. Most of them are of Irish descent. Terence F. Moran is the alderman. The area is 2.5 square miles. The population is 73,500.

Seventeenth—Has a population of 76,788 and an area of 3.5 square miles. It is mostly residential, with many business thoroughfares. Chief of these are 63d, 69th, 75th, 79th, and State streets, and Wentworth and Vincennes avenues. In the northeast corner is a large commercial center. Parts of Englewood and Grand Crossing are the major communities. William T. Murphy, a Democrat, is the alderman.

Eighteenth—Another large residential ward. The population is 80,498 and the area is 8.6 square miles. There are a few industries in the east half and several community shopping centers. But all the west end is built up with residences and apartment houses.

Many national groups are included among the residents. Those of Irish, German, Swedish, and Dutch extraction are predominant. Pulaski road and Kedzie avenue are the main commercial thoroughfares in this section, which is known as the Ashburn community.

Home of Courtney.

This is the ward of State's Attorney Courtney who is opposing Mayor Kelly for the Democratic nomination for mayor. Its alderman is Harry E. Perry, Courtney's spokesman on the floor of the council. Various civic groups have complained that Ald. Perry did not get the same improvements for them that other wards obtained. Observers have commented that an attempt may be made to dislodge him for a representative more in harmony with the regular organization should it be returned to power.

Nineteenth—Contains the exclusive Beverly Hills and Morgan Park residential sections. They are on the ridge which, according to scientists, was the shoreline of Lake Michigan ages ago. Longwood drive, running through the heart of the area, is one of the most attractive streets in the city.

This strip, north and south, is purely dwelling area. Further east are both commercial and industrial districts. To the west is commercial and middle class residential neighborhood. Forest preserve land provides recreation space in the north portion. The alderman is John J. Duffy, serving his first term. Population is 66,312 and the area is 14.8 square miles.

THREE SCHOOLS HOLDING SENIOR PROMS ON FRIDAY

Teachers' College Class to Elect Queen.

South and southwest side students know how to relieve the dull aftermath of the holiday season. They dress up in Christmas-present tuxedos and stylish, old-fashioned gowns and then go prom trotting.

Defying the old superstition that one should be dour on Friday the 13th to ward off the fates, three southwest side schools will hold their annual senior proms this Friday evening.

This year a queen and her court will rule the Chicago Teachers' college senior prom Friday evening at the Gold room of the Congress hotel. The grand march will be led by Miss Mary Therese McElherne, prom chairman, followed by the first prom queen in the history of the school.

Aspirants to Throne.

Candidates for the rôle of queen are Miss Eileen Maloney, 8226 Paulina street; Miss McElherne, 8033 Green street; Miss Mary McHugh, 1932 South Avers street; Miss Mary Margaret Ward, 8144 Throop street; and Miss Rose Lipschultz, 5526 Drexel avenue. The queen will be crowned by Miss Marion Clifford, class president.

In keeping with the school colors, bids for the Calumet High school senior prom Friday in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel, are notched maroon folders with royal blue inner-folders. The color scheme will be carried out in the decorations.

Patrons and patronesses will be parents of the senior class officers and members of the prom committee, as well as members of the faculty. Among them will be Mr. and Mrs. Ed Swanke, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McIlroy, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lamb, Mrs. Jennie Tornga, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Grede, Mr. and Mrs. Newman Kales, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rheberg, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Carstens, Mr. and Mrs. James Piper, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Delph, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edgett, and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Kahler.

Fenger Class Dance.

Fenger High school senior prom will be sponsored by the Fenger P.-T. A. Friday evening in the Medinah club. The prom arrangements are in charge of the 4B class officers, James Van Santen, president; Leonard Wahlstrom, vice president; Lois Wiersma, secretary, and Esther Berry, treasurer.

Assisting the officers are Wesley Sizoo, orchestra chairman; Viola Du Puyt, Lorraine Keylon, Paul Wade, Leland House, hall chairman; Helen Wolfram, Shirley Main, James Dmitri, Steven Van Clay, program chairman; Dolores Spiker, Emma Linsky, Tom Howes, William Hathaway, Eugene Bergner, publicity chairman; Sam Fudge, Ed Roelle, and James Woodward.

ENGINEER'S JOB IS HARPER CADET LEADER'S GOAL

Taking Photos Is Hobby of James Manwell.

"No, nothing in particular appeals to me about the R. O. T. C.," says Maj. James M. Manwell, cadet commanding officer of the Harper High school battalion, "I just like everything about it. I really can't say why, but working in it always has been enjoyment."

James Manwell. [Bennett Studio.]

Jim intends to continue his military training for four years in college, where he wants to enroll in mechanical engineering. Unsurprisingly, his favorite subject is mechanical drawing in which he has merited a straight "E" grade.

He has one hobby—photography—on which he admits he spends "too much time." Doing his own developing and printing, Jim has accumulated stacks of pictures, most of which are along his special line, landscape shots. What time he has left he uses reading fiction with a historical background and watching historical movies.

Jim's rise in rank at Harper has been rapid, considering that he had his first two years in high school at Tilden. He lives at 6550 South Bishop street, and his other activities at school include being fire marshal and a cog in the French club and winning six ribbon bars.

SOUTHWEST CIVIC GROUP TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Delegates from local civic organizations will gather tomorrow evening in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue, to elect new officers for the Southwest Civic federation. Members of the nominating committee include Peter Theis, R. G. Crane and C. D. Lange.

Reports also will be heard on a request by the board of education for an athletic stadium at 62d street and Central avenue. The committee which recently petitioned the board for the stadium was made up of Mrs. Elsie Moore, president of the Morrill P.-T. A.; Mr. Theis, president of the Lawn Civic association, and A. N. Nilsen, president of the Southwest Civic federation.

MECHLIN D. A. R. PLANS ADDRESS ON AMERICANISM

The Rev. Pasquale de Carlo, pastor of St. John's Institutional church, will speak on "Americanism" at a morning meeting of Dewalt Mechlin chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution tomorrow in the home of Mrs. William D. Hoffman, 10316 Leavitt street. Mrs. Casper L. Mast Jr., chairman of clubs, will introduce the speaker.

The afternoon speaker will be Mrs. Homer Spencer who will talk on "International Relations." Mrs. Harold F. Wood, regent, will preside.

Junior American citizens clubs recently organized by the chapter are named for Admiral Hobson, Buffalo Bill Pioneers, Amelia Earhart, Elizabeth Griscom, Mollie Pitcher and Francis Scott Key.

—Kelly—

The annual R. O. T. C. dance sponsored by the noncommissioned officers club of the Kelly High school unit will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the gymnasium. The grand march will be led by Cadet Eugene Gasior, president of the club, and Cadet Earl Francell, chairman of the dance committee.

The dance committee consist of Second Lieutenant Stanley J. Spyien, Sergts. James Pattie, Richard Slack, and Charles Ninow, and Corps. Chester Parker and Albert Strockies.

ART, EDUCATION AND WELFARE ON CLUB PROGRAMS

Public Health Meeting Is Slated Tomorrow.

The modern clubwoman is not only a good cook but she has a finger in many current pies. For example, members of the 3d district in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs this week will weigh the problems of art and adult education, public welfare and publicity, health and club programs.

Mrs. E. W. Leggott. [Marshall Studio.]

Mrs. E. W. Leggott, district art chairman, will introduce the members of her department to two oustanding Chicago artists at a meeting Wednesday afternoon in federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. The artists will be Nan Rice, portrait painter, and Ethel Crouch Brown, landscape painter.

All district public health chairmen are scheduled to attend the state public health meeting tomorrow morning in federation headquarters to hear Dr. G. Henry Mundt talk on "Vision and Hearing."

Health chairmen, also, in addition to the district board and presidents, are invited to the Englewood Medical auxiliary Laity day Friday afternoon in the Evangelical Nurses' home, 54th place and Morgan street. Dr. W. W. Sittler will talk on "The Heart" and will demonstrate the electro-cardiograph machine.

Mrs. W. B. Robinson, district chairman of American citizenship, has announced that she will lead a delegation of her department to a state department meeting Tuesday morning in federation headquarters. The speaker will be Miss Frances Wetmore, who will discuss "The Growth of Adult Education in Chicago."

Local Park Ridge School for Girls chairmen are requested to attend a meeting of the state department Friday morning in federation headquarters. Mrs. George Kinnear is district chairman. Friday afternoon local program chairmen will pick talent for their meetings at a state program bureau addition.

Third district members interested in journalism may attend a publicity class conducted by Dr. William Slaughter of Northwestern university at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in federation headquarters.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

"Public Assistance in Chicago" will be the subject of a talk by Leo M. Lyons, city commissioner of relief, at a business meeting of the club Wednesday morning in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. In the afternoon Dr. John A. Lapp and Phil Hanna will debate on "Where Are We Going in Industry and Government?".

Brainerd Woman's Club.

One hundred dollars, raised through the club book shelf, will be set up as a circulating student loan for young men and women at Wilson junior college this semester under the direction of Mrs. E. A. Schlageter, book shelf chairman, and Mrs. Ernest Beler, chairman of the loan fund.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

During the coming month club women will assist in the infant welfare station in Marquette park fieldhouse, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Each Wednesday three club members will serve. Members of the committee are Mrs. Anton Abramic, Mrs. E. S. Farichild, Mrs. John Flaherty, Mrs. W. A. Hanson, Mrs. W. D. Lear, Mrs. W. D. Ludwig, Mrs. William Mason, Mrs H. T. Simpson, and Mrs. Marguerite Von Perbandt.

Clearing Woman's Club.

Mrs. William Wigger, district education chairman, and Mrs. J. P. Postweiler, district motion picture chairman, will be guest speakers at a meeting of the club Tuesday, Jan. 17, in Legion hall, 5700 West 63d street. Music will be furnished by the Hale school orchestra, with Norman Addie as pianist. Sarah Jean Riley will do tap specialties. The program will be in charge of Mrs. John Carl, education chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Riley, motion picture chairman.

Englewood Woman's Club.

"The Joy of Pictures" will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Carlton Palmer, art collector, at a meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon in the Englewood Masonic temple, 6730 Wentworth avenue. State and district art chairmen will be special guests.

During the morning session Mrs. W. B. Walrath, the founder and directress of the Cradle in Evanston, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Gustav Ricken, health and hygiene chairman, will be in charge of the program.

Members of the garden group will meet Thursday in the home of Mrs. C. J. Davies, 7150 Princeton avenue. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. John B. Haberlin and Mrs. Roland Foster. Mrs. W. F. Whitcomb will read a paper on "Chemical Gardens."

Mrs. David W. Johnson, fine arts tour chairman, will conduct a tour of studios Friday.

Mothers' Club Prepares for Frolic

The governing board of the Morgan Park Military Academy Mothers' club will complete plans for its third annual mid-winter frolic at a meeting Tuesday afternoon in Alumni hall on the campus. The event will be in the form of a Valentine review on Feb. 11. Members of the governing board planning the party are (left to right) Mrs. W. H. Bohnett, chairman of the ways and means committee; Mrs. John W. Devereaux, refreshment chairman; Mrs. L. C. Bowes, treasurer; Mrs. W. M. Stuart, president; Mrs. A. C. Duchossois, secretary; Mrs. Fred Welsh, 10340 Prospect avenue, lower school chairman; Mrs. G. B. Whitfield, properties chairman, and Mrs. K. R. Tefft, "C" company chairman.

PLANNING EARLY AT CALUMET FOR NEXT SEMESTER

At the close of the first semester, students at Calumet High school will be ready to attend new classes, receive their books and even homework. No time will be wasted, for according to Calumet's new system, students have already been registered for the coming semester.

Approximately two months before the new term, pupils listed the subjects they wished to take for the succeeding half year. After these were checked, the student was allowed to register in the desired classes. Since each class is limited in number, the student had to select an alternate teacher in case of an overflow. New classes will be introduced in popular courses.

The plan, which has been copied by other schools, including Harper High, will be explained in demonstration form tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the Calumet High P.-T. A. in the school auditorium, 81st and May streets. Egbert Hunter, principal, will be in charge of the program, "Our Students Register."

Forum of Greater Pullman Hears Address on Safety

"The Personal Equation in Safety" will be the topic of a talk by C. B. Boulet of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation at the third meeting of the Greater Pullman Safety forum tomorrow evening in Fenger High school, 112th and Wallace streets. OBSERVE 15TH YEAR OF UNWED MOTHERS' HAVEN

Agency Assists Girls in Problem of Future.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson.

The 15th anniversary of the Church Mission of Help, 65 East Huron street, Episcopal agency, which cares for unmarried mothers, will be celebrated on Thursday and Friday at a special conference of Episcopal social workers of the church's midwest province which includes Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Sessions will be held at St. James church house, Lawson Y. M. C. A., and the Southern tea room. The Church Mission of Help, known in social work circles as CMH, was founded by Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson and several associates, Mrs. Robinson said, because the city's agencies for the care of unmarried mothers were scant and illegitimacy was rapidly increasing.

Goes Beyond Relief.

"CMH care does not mean mere relief and clothing for the girls and their babies," said Mrs. Robinson. "It means a constant effort to aid the girl toward a real adjustment, whether it be a change of her environment, a return to school, a course in business college or vocational training along a suitable line, or expert psychiatric aid in developing a sense of self-reliance and security. "Whatever is done is done with the ideal of helping the girl help herself."

In 1938, 133 girls and their children were cared for. In addition, 379 minor services were provided for to 225 individuals, Mrs. Robinson said. She added that in the case of the unmarried mother, the policy has always been to enable the girl to keep her child if she desired and if she was mentally and physically qualified to do so. The service includes prenatal care, free hospitalization and "guidance through this trying period when the girl is lonely and afraid."

"The question of adoption must never be settled," said Mrs. Robinson, "until the girl's mind is at rest and when she herself can make the decision without coercion and when she is no longer tortured by the past nor possessed of a frenzied fear for the future."

Each Case Is Individual.

Mrs. Robinson said the whole question of adoption is controversial, but that CMH tries to treat the problems of each girl on an individual basis.

"There is no field of social work which require more technical skill," said Mrs. Robinson.

The CMH board consists of 24 members equally divided among clergymen, laymen and lay women. Among well known lay women of the board are Mrs. Marshall Batchelder, Mrs. F. C. Benson-Belliss, Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler, Mrs. Wells Martin, Mrs. P. M. Murray, Mrs. George W. Overton, and Mrs. Edwin Thurman.

Miss Genrose Gehri is the executive director of the CMH staf. She is assisted by two case workers, two office secretaries and a large corps of volunteers who render service as needed.

5 Million Investment.

The Rev. Walter K. Morley, head of the social service department of the diocese, is in charge of the convention which will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the CMH. Represented will be all Episcopal institutions of the central west province of the church. These include hospitals, homes for the aged, settlement houses, child caring agencies, Girls' Friendly society and Brotherhood of St. Andrew, city missions stafs and recreational and vocational institutions.

The Rev. Mr. Morley stated that nearly 5 million dollars have been invested in the equipment of these social service agencies.

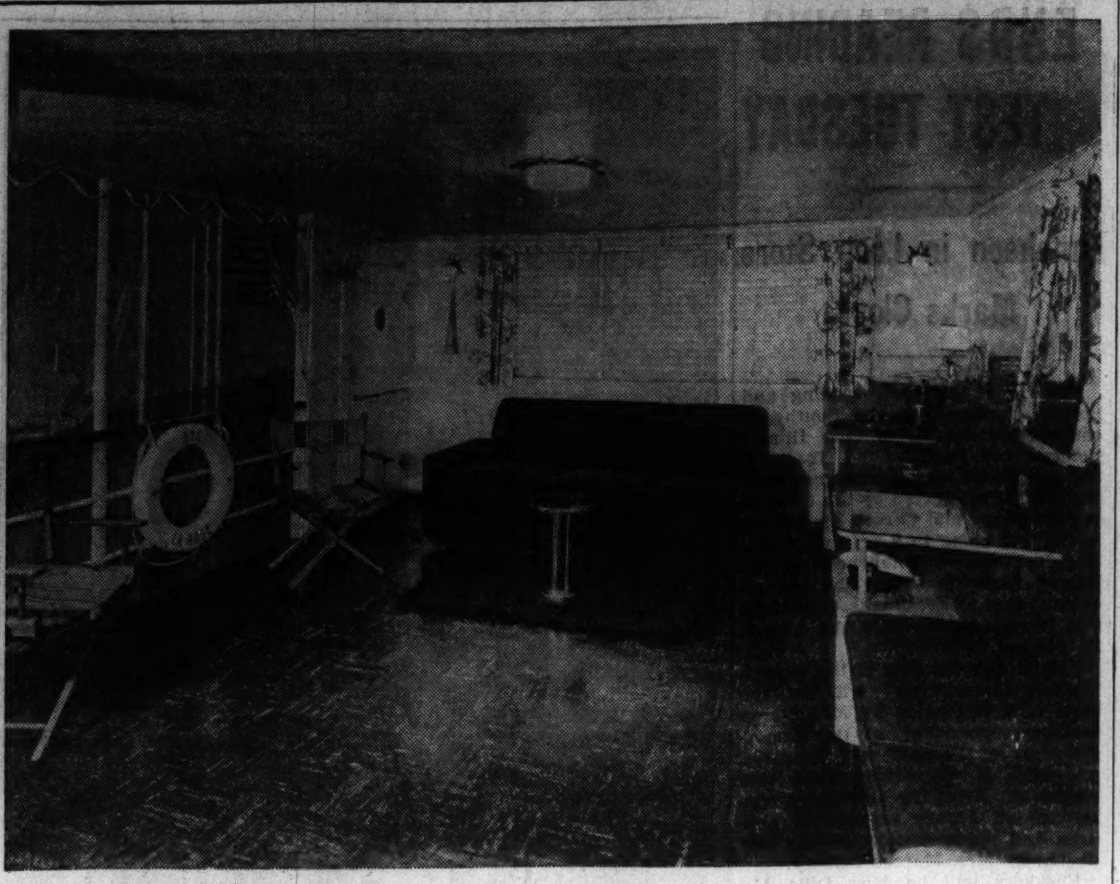
Lounging Room Below Stairs



From a typically large, wasted-space basement there came this finely fitted and decorated "nautical" room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. La Rose, 2559 North Parkside avenue. This room opens into a dining room, and besides there is a modern kitchen and bath.

BASEMENT SPACE BECOMES SECOND LIVING QUARTERS

Three Rooms Plus Bath Added to Home.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It is often rather hard on the webs and the spiders when a drastic piece of basement remodeling gets under way, but the end justifies the methods, especially when three delightfully modern and interesting rooms, plus a bath, are added to a home.

A fine basement remodeling is in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. LaRose, 2559 North Parkside avenue.

The walls and ceilings of all the rooms have been well finished with wire lath and plaster. And all the rooms are color schemed to the present mood; that is, with the general color scheme depending on one's own personal good taste, and letting all sorts of small things tie into it.

Built-in Benches.

In the living room, the walls are painted with white enamel and the woodwork is a delicate peach. On one side wall is a nautical scene, which gives the feeling of being on shipboard. On the opposite wall are built-in, cozy benches, upholstered in apricot. A convertible lounge in royal blue has a fringed rug in the same shade. The deck chairs are orange and green. Brackets and center light fixtures are nautical in type, and all four windows of this room are well weatherstripped and shaded with metal venetian blinds in cream shade.

In the dining room, the walls are painted a light peach, with cream ceiling, built-in benches have drawers below them. There is a large, natural woodburning fireplace in one corner which is painted in antique effect.

Bath Under Porch.

Besides these two rooms there is a well fitted kitchen with white walls and ceiling and an asphalt tile floor in green and red.

Not many people think of going under the porch to find some practical space for an all modern bath. Yet excavation was made under a porch for the present attractive bath with its white painted walls and tile floor.

Nor does this basement group of rooms in any way change the use of the first floor rooms. As Mr. LaRose said:

"It just adds more room to our house, and rooms that we find ourselves constantly using for informal entertainment and fun. There's a sense of freedom below stairs. It's a place where we can relax, a place which all our family and friends enjoy."

Good Use of Space.

No bit of basement overall has been left unused in the modernization. Yacht and ship designers long have been masters in the art of making every inch of space contribute its utmost in usefulness. So along with many intriguing touches which contribute to the nautical atmosphere in the recreation room, Mr. LaRose has also brought "ashore" in his remodeling, this idea of maximum convenience in a limited space.

LIONS IN AUBURN PARK FETE TWO CLUB OFFICIALS

Nelvin Jones, secretary general of Lions' International, and John Reitz, governor of district 1A, will be special guests at a birthday program conducted for them by the Auburn Park Lions' club Wednesday afternoon in Greene's restaurant, 7919 Halsted street.

"Lionism as a Community Asset" will be the topic of the guest speaker, Robert Watson of Lombard, past district deputy governor. James Butler, deputy district governor, and Guy Edgard, activities chairman of Lions International, will be guests.

The club will tour the University of Chicago Thursday afternoon under the direction of H. O. Hoeppner, assisted by two professors from the Oriental Institute.

Beverly Service Council Holds Meeting on Jan. 27

Mrs. Arthur Booth, 11138 Longwood drive, will be hostess to the Beverly Service council at its first meeting of the new year Friday, Jan. 27, in her home. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Raymond S. Knapp of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Mrs. L. H. Powell will be chairman of the day, with Mrs. O. J. Vogl and Mrs. J. S. Townsend assisting. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 9.

Examine the roots and bulbs stored away for winter to make sure they are in good condition and not too dry. Gladioli are kept in a dry state. They can be cleaned, the bulbils removed and placed in paper sacks. Each variety should be kept by itself and securely labeled. Some roots, such as cannas and dahlias, tend to become very dry, often shrinking unless stored in soil. If any bulbs show rot, the rotten spot should be cut out and dusted with sulphur. Never neglect good stocks. Bulbous plants soon will be ready to bring to the light for flowering, and when once the parade is started it should be kept up throughout the winter. Do not attempt to force the hyacinth and tulips until they are thoroughly rooted. When ready, wash the pots if necessary and place in a cool room for a few days and then in the light of a window. Water more and more as growth increases.

Tuesday, Jan. 10.

When the poinsettia is out of flower, discard it, for the chances are it will not produce good blooms next season even when properly cared for during the summer. The gardenia plant is difficult to grow and flower indoors. These plants require copious watering and a sunny location is desirable. Over-watering is very injurious; either a too dry or too wet condition will cause the buds to fall. Syringe daily with clear water and avoid burning of the foliage when it is wet.

Wednesday, Jan. 11.

When the pansies are sown, use a small box and cover with a glass. After the young plants show three or more leaves, transplant in a box and, later on, transplant again. The box should be set in a cold frame when spring comes. The Jerusalem cherry plants can be carried over, but it is better to discard them and purchase new plants when in full fruit. Seeds can be sown in early spring, the young plants lined out in the garden and kept cultivated during the summer. They are lifted and potted in late autumn and make fine decorative material for the home. Do not be too generous in watering the Christmas cactus when the buds show or they may drop. Never allow flowering plants that are obtained from the florist to become dry. Examine the plants every day and water if necessary.

Thursday, Jan. 12.

Spray shrubs and trees for scale infestation whenever the weather is suitable. It is best to do this on fairly warm, bright days. Spray with an oil emulsion or any recommended concoction. Any one having space under greenhouse benches can grow a few mushrooms. These require a low, even temperature and high humidity. Send to the seed supply houses for full information concerning these plants. They can be easily grown in a cellar if the conditions are favorable. Do not overwater the semperflorens type of begonia. These are the common pink sorts that do so well under home conditions. Use the new growths that come from around the base of the plants for cuttings, if new plants are wanted.

Friday, Jan. 13.

The sansevieria can be easily increased by taking a side shoot and potting it. Use small pots. This is one of the best of all house plants as it will stand adverse conditions. Over-feeding should be avoided or the plants will grow too rapidly. The African violet, one of the loveliest house plants, should not be watered over the foliage. After flowering, the plant may be partially rested after which it will again flower. This is a fine plant for the terrarium.

Saturday, Jan. 14.

Better examine the geraniums that are stored for the winter for they may be so dry the stems have shriveled. Placed in boxes of soil, kept moist but not wet and where there is some light, the plants can be kept without injury. Watch for mealy bugs, green fly or aphids, red spider, and white fly and take measures to combat them.

OLD WHITE CITY IS LEVELED BY WPA WRECKERS

Sound of Axes Recalls Glamorous Days.

Sounds echoed through White City, former recreational center for Chicago, again last week. But they were the crash of hammers and falling boards as a WPA wrecking crew began the demolition of this decayed ghost town on the order of Ald. John F. Healy [6th].

Condemned by city and fire officials, the barren boardwalk and rickety structures of what was once heralded as the city of a million electric lights, occupy an area extending from 63d to 67th street and from South Park to Calumet avenue.

Four of the buildings used for roller skating, dancing, boxing, and bowling have been partly remodeled and these will remain standing for a while.

No building or construction of any kind has been planned for the site, Ald. Healy said.

Holds Happy Memories.

"This grand old park holds many happy memories for all of us," commented Ald. Healy as he ordered the wrecking crew to proceed. His view was upheld by many residents who as soon as they heard the report, asked if something could not be done to perpetuate the memory of the hours of pleasure and companionship which the historic center afforded the community.

Ald. Healy has consented, therefore, to act as chairman of a White City club.

"At present the only requirement to join and participate," he said, "is that the person, young or old, man or woman, write me some anecdote or personal adventure in connection with his own recollection of White City." His address is 6120 Rhodes avenue.

The club will elect officers, hold regular meetings and bring together people who remember the "good old days."

Great Playground.

Erected about 32 years ago, White City was the million dollar playground of its day with its rides, picnic grounds, and boardwalk the scene of many love matches. Band concerts, fireworks displays, circuses, conventions, and other gala affairs were held there.

The tower, destroyed 15 years ago by fire, was never rebuilt, but an outdoor dancing pavilion was constructed in its place. This was the scene of many outdoor summer theatrical entertainments by the stars of the stage.

Vote on New Sewer.

Residents of Oak Lawn will go to the polls Thursday to vote on a proposed sewer system to be built with federal aid.

I'VE ALWAYS WANTED A KITCHEN LIKE THIS!

"But wasn't it awfully expensive to remodel?"

"Not the way we did it. Practically everything we needed we bought through the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section."

WHENEVER you plan to remodel, it will pay you to consult the offers in the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section.

There you will find offers of lumber, paints, plumbing and heating equipment, millwork, glass—almost everything you need. The low prices will enable you to effect handsome savings on your costs.

Many of the advertisers offer easy terms on the materials and equipment they sell. Review their offerings in the Building Materials column of the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in any other Chicago newspaper

SERVING CHICAGO Chicago Tribune FOR 81 YEARS

RADIO IN A RUT? IT WILL GET OUT, SAYS DR. BLACK

Expresses High Hope for Future of Music.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

There was a time—about a half dozen years ago—when radio was developing new stars by the score. But in the last season or two the broadcasting talent pattern has been little changed. The comedy acts have become higher priced each season until the best ones are getting $15,000 a week.

Meanwhile it has been increasingly difficult for new names to edge into the broadcasting field. Since Charlie McCarthy swept into that Sunday evening spot two years ago, what really big names have been added to the radio roster?

One might mention Fanny Brice and Frank Morgan, but they were well established in other fields of entertainment before. Or Orson Welles? But he has had a good reputation in radio before he became a sensation both on Broadway and in radio.

In the vocal field the story is the same. Nelson Eddy, Lanny Ross, Frank Parker, Bing Crosby, Richard Crooks, Frances Langford, and Kate Smith just about have things their way. There was a time when there were scores of vocalists that had large followings. Many of them have disappeared from radio. Jane Froman just finished a series. Lawrence Tibbett is soon to come back.

Where Are They Now?

Among the missing are John Charles Thomas, Jessica Dragonette, Connie Boswell, Morton Downey, Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer; Olga Albani, Lily Pons, Gladys Swarthout, Wendell Hall, Singin' Sam; John Carter, just to mention a few that come to mind.

Radio is better suited to transmitting song and music than any other form of artistic expression. It is unfortunate that so many sponsors have forgotten this fact and have turned so generally to quiz and interview programs.

One reason, perhaps, for broadcasters' failure to develop more new stars is this fact that sponsors fail to utilize some of the finest talent available in their rush to ape one another.

Two Comedians to Return.

Two comedians of other years are due for an early return to radio. They are Walter O'Keefe, who will be heard with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra, too long missing from the air, and Phil Baker, who will have Eddie De Lange to provide the musical backdrop.

Whether the Marx Brothers will join that new all star show which will feature Lawrence Tibbett, Carole Lombard, Cary Grant, and Ronald Colman has not yet been settled. The Marxmen want to do the show but have yet to obtain permission from their movie studio, it is said.

Few New Musical Notes.

Not many new notes were struck in the realm of radio tunes during 1938. Most popular tune of the year was "My Reverie," an arrangement of Debussy's "Reverie," by Larry Clinton, who turned out "Dipsey Doodle," also. Next to "My Reverie" on the Hit Parade was "A Tisket, a Tasket," not exactly new either. "Alexander's Ragtime Band" had a big revival because of the success of the picture, chronicling Irving Berlin's success story. Other leaders of the year were "Ti-Pi-Tin," "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," and "Flat Foot Floogey with a Floy Floy." The music of the year was much in keeping with the jitterbug antics of much of the nation's youth.

Frank Black Optimistic.

Up to now there has been altogether too little music especially composed for radio. Radio has been too content to borrow from the Hit Parade and from the composers of yesteryear. But from Dr. Frank Black, general music director of NBC, comes a most hopeful prophecy.

"Composers during 1939 will regard radio as a serious vehicle," Dr. Black predicted, "and they will really open up the field of writing original music for dramatic programs.

"Swing as we know it will be almost wholly replaced by a new popular music of elegance unless there is a war. Raucousness will disappear from music and different instrumental combinations will be developed. At least one outstanding novelty band will find high public favor. Unfortunately, practically no new vocal talent will be discovered."

Dr. Black asserted that appreciation of music is growing so fast that programs that were labeled classical five years ago have practically moved into the popular category as regards public acceptance.

Composers Eye Radio.

Composers, both symphonic and popular, he said, will pay more attention to radio in 1939 than ever before.

Dr. Black asserted that considerable experimentation has been done in writing musical transitions for radio drama and said that this year will see the flowering of this artistic endeavor.

Typical of this trend have been the musical backdrops for the Crimson Wizard on W-G-N-Mutual as provided by Henry Weber, and the musical setting for the March of Time.

One finally prophetic note from Dr. Black: Audience participation programs have passed their peak and will be definitly on the wane, come Jan. 1, 1940.

Happy Family

Elsie Janis, Woollcott Magic Key Headliners

Elsie Janis, Alexander Woollcott, and Elizabeth Schumann, the noted lieder singer, will appear as guest artists on the Magic Key program at 1 p. m. over WENR-NBC. Elsie Janis will present more of her inimitable impersonations. Woollcott, famous Town Crier, will be heard in commemoration of Stephen Foster, American composer, on the seventy-fifth anniversary of his death.

'OVER THE FALLS' IS NEXT PLAY ON 'CURTAIN TIME'

"Curtain Time" will present a three-act comedy, "Over the Falls," with Olan Soule, John Walsh, and Louise Fitch, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Friday on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Niagara Falls is the locale for this story which depicts three veteran vaudeville entertainers in a penniless period who do everything from plotting escapes from hotels to riding over the falls to elude the ignominy of joining the breadline.

Olan Soule, in the part of Mack Barton, a hoofer, suddenly announces that he is going to ride the falls in a barrel. Louise Fitch will play the part of Bebe La Belle, whose face may not have matched that of Helen of Troy, but at least it launched one vessel upon turbulent waters.

"Over the Falls" was written by Richard Hauser and will be directed by Blair Walliser.

STREAMLINED 'MARTHA' TO BE REPEATED OVER MUTUAL NET JAN. 23

The opera, "Martha," once more will be presented on W-G-N and the Mutual network in a "streamlined" version in response to the enthusiastic reception given it at its first presentation. The opera will be aired from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m. Monday, Jan. 23. A brilliant cast of operatic stars will be heard; also the W-G-N concert orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor who has appeared in "Martha" opera productions with La Scala Opera company in Milan and the Royal Opera of Rome, will be heard in the rôle of Lionel. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will sing the part of Lady Harriet, while Mark Love, basso, will sing the part of Plunkett, and Margery Mayer will appear as Nancy.

The libretto, prepared by Francis Coughlin, will be in English and will be spoken in the 1939 vernacular rather than sung. Louis Jackobson will be in charge of the program's production.

'SARI' THEMES TO BE FEATURED ON MELODY HOUR

Baggiore, Margery Mayer to Be Soloists.

Henry Weber's Pageant of Melody will present Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Margery Mayer, contralto, with music by the concert orchestra, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Baggiore will sing two old favorites, Posford's "The World Is Mine Tonight" and Speaks' "Sylvia." With the octet, Baggiore will sing themes from Kalman's "Sari."

Miss Mayer will sing a selection of waltz tunes from Strauss' "The Bat."

A wide selection of music will be presented by the concert orchestra, including the overture from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman"; Prelude and "Oriental Dance" from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite"; "Connais tu le Pays," by Charles Louis Thomas, and "La Cathedrale Englontie," by C. Debussy.

The Concert Revue will feature themes from Oscar Strauss, with the singing of Kathryn Witwer, William Miller, and the octet, from 8:45 to 9:30 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

Miss Witwer, Miller, and the octet will join with the orchestra in "Love's Roundelay," "My Hero," and "Chocolate Soldier Man," by Strauss. Miss Witwer will sing "I Love Thee," by Edvard Grieg, and Miller will do "Where My Caravan Has Rested," by Richard Lohr.

The Your Sunday Date program will be invaded at 8 tonight by three madcap comedians, Gordon and Bud Vandover and Marlin Hurt, who are Tom, Dick, and Harry.

Hurt will play the rôles of Nick Tonsillitis, Scarlet O'Herring, and Beulah, his invisible companion. Bud Vandover will act the parts of Prof. J. Boliver Twitt and No Chandu, the Great Magician, and Gordon will play a number of other rôles.

In the musical portion of the show Edna O'Dell and the W-G-N Dance orchestra and chorus will be featured. Miss O'Dell will sing "This Can't Be Love," from "The Boys from Syracuse," and will join the chorus to do "Shortenin' Bread."

WHBF WILL BE 110TH AFFILIATE OF MUTUAL NET

WHBF, covering the Tri-Cities of Davenport, Iowa; Moline, and Rock Island, Ill., and located in the latter city, will become an affiliate of the Mutual Broadcasting System on Jan. 14. Simultaneously the station will increase its power to 1,000 watts. Owned and operated by the Rock Island Broadcasting company, WHBF operates on 1,240 kilocycles.

Arrangements are now in progress for broadcast salutes to the 110th affiliate of the Mutual network from New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles on the official dedication day.

America's Rearmament to Be Round Table Topic

America's rearmament program will be the background for discussion during the session of the University of Chicago Round Table at 11:30 a. m. today over WMAQ and NBC. Under the title, "America Arms — For What?" the discussion will be featured by the appearance of Maj. George Fielding Eliot, author of the current best seller on national defense, "The Ramparts We Watch." With Maj. Eliot at the round table will be Walter Laves, associate professor of political science, and Albert G. Hall, instructor on economics, both of the University of Chicago.

Jack Benny to Repeat Version of 'Snow White'

Jack Benny and his troupe will repeat their version of Walt Disney's film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," during the broadcast at 6 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. The Benny parody will be dubbed "Snow White and the Seven Gangsters," since the grownups in the cast do not like being called dwarfs.

The Lone Ranger.

The Lone Ranger, masked agent of justice, exonerates a young man falsely accused of crime by proving to a stubborn sherif that circumstantial evidence is not always positive proof of guilt in the episode to be heard at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Get Thin to Music

[Drucker Photo.]

Start the new year right and "Get Thin and Keep Fit to Music," says Wallace, the director of the W-G-N-Mutual network's morning exercise program. Wallace presents his exercise program each morning in the studio with the help of his model, Raynette Simpson.

'Book-a-Week' Program Now Aired Over Mutual

"Book-a-Week," the literary review program conducted by Margery Graham on W-G-N, is now aired through the Mutual network Mondays through Fridays from 3:45 to 4 p. m. Each week Miss Graham takes one of the current best sellers and reads it during the five days of the week. Starting Monday, Jan. 9, Miss Graham will read "The Horse and Buggy Doctor," by Arthur E. Hertzler, M. D., the story of a typical family doctor and his experiences in the medical profession when he began practice forty years ago.

MIRIAM HOPKINS IS GUEST ON NEW HOLLYWOOD HOUR

New Movie Talent Hunt Starts Today.

Miriam Hopkins, actress of stage and screen, will be heard during the initial broadcast of "Gateway to Hollywood," supported by the first two film aspirants chosen in the R. K. O. Radio Pictures talent search, which makes its debut over WBBM-CBS at 5:30 p. m. today.

The first two youngsters chosen in this country-wide quest for new faces and talent are Miriam Camille Patti of Dallas, Tex., and Ralph Bowman of Lincoln, Neb. They will be heard enacting rôles similar to those they will play in the films should they be the lucky pair chosen as winners in the thirteen week elimination contest.

Ken Niles will head the Jesse L. Lasky training school for the candidates in Hollywood and will also act as announcer on the program.

The talent quest is being conducted under the personal supervision of Lasky, in twenty-four regional sections of the United States, with Bryant Washburn, actor of stage and screen, and Hobart Bosworth, dean of Hollywood character actors, making personal appearances as his representatives.

The talent search is open to girls between the ages of 17 and 23, and boys between the ages of 21 to 27. Applicants will be judged on personal appearance, personality, and dramatic ability. Height, weight, and stage presence are considered, and in the case of girl entrants full consent of the parents or guardians must be obtained.

The boy and girl chosen winners of the final eliminations will be presented to the film fans of America under the contract names they will adopt, "Alice Eden" and "John Archer." They will be guaranteed at least six months' work in Hollywood at $125 a week as featured players and an opportunity to win stardom and film fame.

LATEST TUNES TO BE SERVED AT MUSIC COUNTER

Harold Stokes' "Music Counter" will serve up an assortment of some of the latest hit tunes, including three from the new show, "Paris Honeymoon," with singing by Edna O'Dell and comedy by Marlin Hurt, Connie Osgood, and Jess Kirkpatrick, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The W-G-N dance orchestra and chorus will do "Joobali," "I Have Eyes," and "Sweet Little Headache," from "Paris Honeymoon."

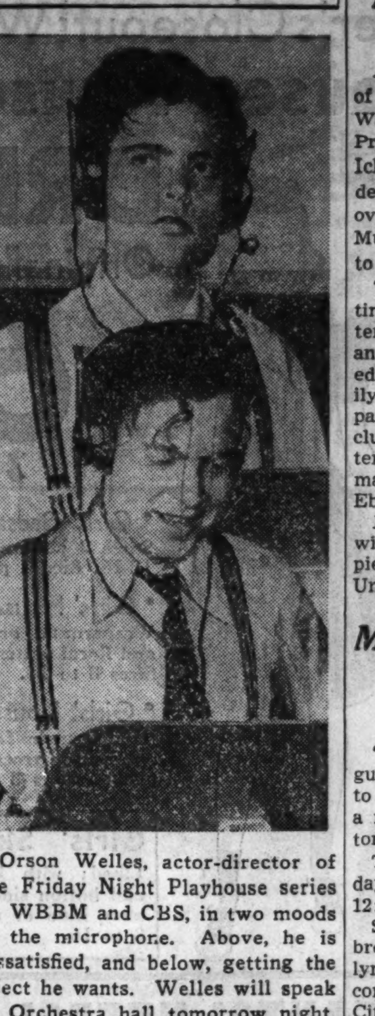
Edna O'Dell will sing "June in January," and will join the Four Grenadiers to do "It Serves You Right."

The old favorite, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," will be presented in dramatic form, with a portrayal of its origin, and a rendition of the song in the manner it was once presented in old-time theaters.

Cinderella in Reverse.

Cinderella in Reverse, a radio drama starring Irene Rich, will be heard during the weekly broadcast from Hollywood over WENR-NBC at 8:45 p. m. Gale Gordon will play opposite Miss Rich.

Two Moods



Orson Welles, actor-director of the Friday Night Playhouse series on WBBM and CBS, in two moods at the microphone. Above, he is dissatisfied, and below, getting the effect he wants. Welles will speak at Orchestra hall tomorrow night.

WORTH OF WORK TO BE SUBJECT OF MIDDAY HOUR

"The Dignity and Worth of Work" will be the general topic of speakers on the W-G-N Midday Service this week. The Midday Service is broadcast from W-G-N at 12:35 p. m. The speakers:

Monday—Prof. Samuel Kincheloe, Chicago Theological seminary.
Tuesday—John A. Lapp, labor arbitrator and counselor.
Wednesday—Walter A. Templeton, secretary of the Quaker Oats company.
Thursday—Wilfred S. Reynolds, chairman, Council of Social Agencies.
Friday—Richard W. Blackburn, secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation.
Saturday—Rev. Clare J. Hewett, First Methodist Episcopal church, Kirkland, Ill.

MELCHIOR WILL TELL OWN STORY ON RADIO TODAY

Lauritz Melchior's own story of how his voice changed from a baritone to a tenor will be told when the great star greets the young singers participating in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air at 4 p. m. today over WENR-NBC. Contestants will be Chester Watson, bass-baritone of Troy, N. Y.; Nina Quartin, soprano, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pina Bontempi, tenor, who recently moved to New York from Italy.

Tyrone Power, Lynn Bari in Hollywood Playhouse

"The Laughing Pirate," a romantic short story by Emma Lindsay Squires, adapted for radio by Jerry Cady, will be the vehicle for Tyrone Power's Hollywood Playhouse program at 8 p. m. today over WENR-NBC. Lynn Bari, sensational young screen actress, will be Power's guest.

Shadow on Devil's Island.

"Devil's Island" is the title of the next episode of "The Shadow" to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 4:30 to 5:00 p. m., today. Bill Johnstone portrays "The Shadow."

ICKES AND AIDS PLAN SPECIAL PROGRAM TODAY

A special program from the studios of the department of interior in Washington, entitled "Dear Mr. President," with Secretary Harold L. Ickes and all of the officials of his departmental family will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting System from 7 to 8 tonight.

The program will mark the first time that the secretary of the interior will dictate his department's annual report to congress, surrounded by members of his official family. In addition to Secretary Ickes, participants in the broadcast will include Undersecretary Harold Slattery, Assistant Secretary Oscar Chapman, and First Assistant Secretary Ebert R. Burlew.

Instrumental music on the program will be provided by a twenty-four piece string section from one of the United States service bands.

MOVIE CAPITAL NEWS SHOW ON MUTUAL CHAIN

"Your Hollywood News Girl," guided by Stella Unger, will return to W-G-N and the Mutual System for a new series of programs, beginning tomorrow.

The programs will be heard Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 12:15 to 12:30 p. m.

Stella Unger has been known to broadcasters for many years as a lyricist, script writer, Girl Friday, and commentator. Born in New York City on Dec. 17, 1905, Stella first won recognition as lyricist for the Shubert production of "Three Little Girls." Her next offering was "The Rhumba," pièce de résistance of Earl Carroll's "Vanities." She wrote many more song hits after that—"I'm All Dressed Up with a Broken Heart," "Love Thief," and "Memory" before turning to radio writing.

LOUISE WILCHER TO BE HEARD IN RECITAL SERIES

A series of broadcasts featuring lovely Louise Wilcher at the Musette will be heard over W-G-N and Mutual from 4:45 to 5:30 p. m., Tuesdays. The programs will be heard over W-G-N beginning Jan. 10.

Louise Wilcher is no stranger to Mutual network listeners. She has been heard playing the Musette, piano, and organ on numerous coast-to-coast programs, including the popular "Console and Keyboard" series.

CHINA OPEN DOOR QUESTION ASKED PEOPLE'S RALLY

"Should the United States insist on the Open Door in China?" is the question John B. Kennedy, noted newshawk and radio commentator, will ask listeners to "The People's Rally" from 2:30 to 3:00 p. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Listeners will hear diversified opinions on the broadcast, then mail their own votes to Kennedy. Results are announced on a future broadcast.

DICK TRACY
CHESTER GOULD
OKAY, CHARLIE, I THINK I'VE HAD ENOUGH HOT MUD FOR TODAY —GET ME OUT.
YES, SIR, MR. TRACY.
YOU SORT OF LIKE THESE MUD BATHS, DON'T YOU, MR. TRACY?
I THINK THEY'RE SWELL, CHARLIE.
WELL! YOU'RE LOOKING FIT AS A FIDDLE. HOW'RE THINGS TODAY?
GREAT! YOU'VE GOT THE SWELLEST SPOT IN THE WORLD HERE, POP! I'M GOING TO HAVE A RUB-DOWN AND THEN DO A LITTLE HIKING.
SAY, INCIDENTALLY, NO ONE HERE KNOWS MY BUSINESS, UNDERSTAND? AND DON'T TELL 'EM I'M A DETECTIVE. I'D RATHER BE JUST AN ORDINARY BUSINESS MAN—HERE FOR A REST.
WHY-SURE, TRACY, IF YOU SAY SO.
HEY, POPS! HAVE THE HORSES READY. MY BUNCH IS GOING OVER TO THE HUNTING PRESERVE THIS MORNING.
YES, SIR.
I'D LIKE TO USE THE TABLE NEXT TO THAT FELLOW WHO'S JUST LYING DOWN.
YES, SIR.
I DON'T KNOW WHAT THERE IS ABOUT THIS BIRD, BUT HE INTERESTS ME STRANGELY. HM! HE'S PUT HIS BATHROBE RIGHT AT THE HEAD OF HIS COT WHERE HE CAN REACH IT.
OH, OH!
SAY, CHARLIE, GET ME A NEWSPAPER —THINK I'LL READ WHILE YOU'RE FIXING UP THE MUSCLES.
AS THE ATTENDANT TURNS TO GET A PAPER, TRACY REMOVES THE LIGHT BULB FROM A FLOOR LAMP—
BOOM
WHO DID THAT? OH__ER__OH__ WHAT HAPPENED?
GEE WHIZ! I KNOCKED THE BULB OUTTA THIS LAMP__ GOSH__ I'M CLUMSY!
YEAH — SOME MIGHTY FUNNY PEOPLE COME TO THESE HEALTH FARMS —AND SOME OF THEM ARE GOING TO BEAR WATCHING!

THE GUMPS
I'LL SEND ANOTHER 100 PLANES TO FIND LITTLE CHESTER IF NECESSARY!!
WHO IS THE SILENT FIGURE THAT WATCHED CHESTER'S ABDUCTION FROM A NEARBY SAND DUNE?
..AND WHERE ARE THE VEILED MEN TAKING CHESTER??
W-WH-? WHO ARE YOU? FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, WHAT HAVE YOU DONE WITH THE BOY??
BE CALM, M'SIEU- I HAVE COME TO HELP-
OH!! BE CAREFUL- MY LEG- IT'S BROKEN
OUI, M'SIEU, I WEEL BE CAREFUL -YOU CANNOT STAY IN THIS DAMP, DARK CAVE-
B-BUT I DON'T UNDERSTAND-
I AM SPY OF THE FOREIGN LEGION- I LIVE AMONG THE DESERT TRIBES- I AM, WHAT YOU SAY- DESERT DETECTIVE- BUT YOU AND THE BOY- YOU ARE FOREIGNERS, NO? WHAT DO YOU DO IN MIDDLE OF DESERT?
MIKE TELLS THE LEGIONNAIRE ABOUT THE CRACKUP OF THE PLANE-
SH-H!!! WHAT'S THAT?
MIKE!! YOU'RE HURT! THROW UP YOUR HANDS, YOU DESERT RAT!!
NO-NO- WAIT, RANDY! THIS MAN IS A FRIEND! HE'S A MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN LEGION-
WE MUST GET THEES INJURED MAN BACK TO YOUR CAMP QUEEK TO FEEX HIS LEG- YOU HELP ME TO CARRY HEEM, PLEASE-
BUT CHESTER! WHERE IS THE BOY?
RANDY AND THE LEGIONNAIRE HAVE CAREFULLY CARRIED THE INJURED MIKE BAILEY BACK TO CAMP AND MADE HIM COMFORTABLE....
-YES, THE TUAREGS CARRY OFF THE LEETLE BOY- BUT DO NOT WORRY- I HAVE BECOME MEMBER OF THEIR TRIBE- IT IS BETTER I GO ALONE AND BRING BACK BOY-
HM- PERHAPS YOU'RE RIGHT-
A FEW MINUTES LATER-
MISTUH RANDY, SUH- HOW CAN WE BE SURE 'BOUT DAT STRANGER? S'POSE HE WAS LYING-
I WAS JUST THINKING THE SAME THING- WE'D BETTER TRAIL HIM! YOU STAY HERE AND TAKE CARE OF MIKE- C'MON, YOU OTHERS, GET SOME FOOD, WATER AND AMMUNITION- WE'VE NO TIME TO LOSE-
MEANWHILE- A FEW MILES TO THE NORTH, THE FRIGHTENED CHESTER IS BEING CARRIED FARTHER AND FARTHER AWAY FROM HIS FRIENDS.
YOU'LL BE SORRY WHEN MY PAPA AND UNCLE BIM FIND OUT ABOUT THIS!

TEN DOLLARS FOR A HAT? WHY, YOU ONLY PAID TWO TWENTY-NINE FOR TH' ONE YOU BEEN WEARIN' AND LOOK AT ALL THE YEARS IT'S LASTED YOU.
YES, BUT YOU'VE GOT A JOB NOW.
AND YOU WANT ME TO LOOK NICE, DON'T YOU, WILLIAM?
YES, BUT NOT THAT NICE- AND ANYHOW, IT WON'T DO YOU ANY GOOD TO GO MAKIN' A FUSS OVER ME, MAMIE, BECAUSE I WON'T HAVE NO DOUGH TILL PAY DAY
THERE! NOW, IF I CAN JEST GET A WEEKS RENT OUT OF THE SPARE ROOM, IN ADVANCE, I CAN PAY FOR THAT HAT MYSELF, WITH WILLIE'S HELP ON PAY DAY.
ROOM FOR RENT
HOW-DO-YOU-DO, MADAM, I HAVE CALLED TO INQUIRE ABOUT—COME RIGHT IN.
NICE ROOM— VERY NICE INDEED, ER- A WM P. MULLINS LIVES HERE, DOES HE NOT?
YES, BUT HE WON'T BOTHER YOU- HE'S SO LAZY I JUST DUST HIM OFF LIKE A PIECE OF THE FURNITURE.
SOME SAP GIVE HIM A JOB IN A STORE YESTERDAY- SO HE WON'T BE A NUISANCE AROUND HERE FOR A WHILE TILL THEY GET WISE TO HIM.
HUMM- MR. MULLINS IS HONEST, ISN'T HE?
OH, YES, HE'S JEST AS HONEST AS THE DAY IS LONG- OF ALL THE JOBS HE'S BEEN ON, HIS EMPLOYERS ONLY HAS HAD ONE COMPLAINT.
COMMENDABLE, QUITE COMMENDABLE. AND WHAT WAS THAT?
HE JEST WON'T WORK
WELL, I THANK YOU, MADAM. GOOD-DAY.
WAIT! DON'T YOU WANT TO RENT THE ROOM?
NO, THANK YOU.
WHY- WILLIE, YOU'RE HOME FROM WORK EARLY.
I AIN'T GOT ANY WORK- THE BOSS WENT OUT TO CHECK UP ON MY REFERENCES AND WHEN HE COME BACK, HE GIMME TH' GATE.
OF COURSE, MRS. MULLINS, IF YOU DON'T WANT THE HAT, WE WON'T SEND IT OUT— BUT WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH IT?
OH, NOTHING'S THE MATTER WITH THE HAT EXCEPT I JEST TALK TOO DADGUM MUCH.

YES, TH' "HEAD'S" TH' BIG SHOT HERE NOW--CONS OBEY HIM QUICKER THAN THEY DO TH' GUARDS OF THIS CORRUPT SOUTH SEA PRISON!
"HEAD," HOW YOU GET AWAY WITH FEATHER RACKET YOU HAVE STARTED HERE?
AS CONS MARCH TO AN' FROM TH' SULPHUR MINES, CERTAIN BRIBED GUARDS ALLOW THEM TO CATCH BIRDS--I BUY TH' FEATHERS AND OTHER GUARDS DELIVER THEM TO---- -----A MILLINERY AGENT--PLUMES ARE QUITE VALUABLE NOW THAT FEATHERED HATS ARE TH' VOGUE--I WANT YOU BOYS TO COLLECT PLUMES, TOO!
HA! YOU WOULDN'T BUY ANYTHING FROM ME---- YOUR WORST ENEMY!!
PERSONAL DIFFERENCES CAN WAIT----- VOLUME BUSINESS IS MOST IMPORTANT RIGHT NOW!
I COULD USE SOME CASH --BRIBING GUARDS IS TH' ONLY MEANS OF ESCAPE FROM THIS RAT HOLE!!
LATER
SO YOU'RE IN ON THIS TAIL-FEATHER GRAFT, TOO--EH, LIMEHOUSE?
SURE, POWDER, AND FOR BUSINESS REASONS I'LL EVEN ALLOW YOU TO CATCH BIRDS--BUT DON'T TRY TO RUN AWAY --I'LL BE WATCHING!
EVIDENTLY TH' BIRDS HERE HAVE BEEN MOLESTED VERY LITTLE BY MAN--THEY ACT SO TAME--SAY-- LOOK AT THAT TROPICAL BEAUTY!!
BY WEIGHTING MY SLEEVES WITH ROCKS MAYBE I CAN THROW MY JACKET OVER IT BEFORE IT CAN TAKE OFF!
HERE--DON'T TAKE ON SO--- I'M NOT GONNA KILL YOU--I'M JUST GONNA PLUCK YOUR TAIL---
--I HATE TO DO IT--I REALIZE IT'S GONNA UNBALANCE YOUR LONGITUDINAL STABILITY!
AWK! AWK!
YOU'LL PROBABLY NOSE OVER EVERY TIME YOU TRY TO LAND--- --IT'LL BE HARD TO FLY WITHOUT A RUDDER--DON'T LOOK AT ME LIKE THAT---I UNDERSTAND----
--I KNOW HOW I'D FEEL IF I WAS FLYING AND SUDDENLY LOST MY EMPENNAGE!

MOTHER!

LUCKY FOR YOU YOUR CHILD WANTS RALSTON, THE HOT CEREAL CHILDREN LOVE TO EAT

Ralston made from whole wheat does more for your child than ordinary cereals . . . supplies extra vitamin B essential for sound nerves, growth, appetite.

Ralston contains from 4 to 6 times as much vitamin B as these excellent foods.

4 times as much vitamin B as Spinach
5 times as much vitamin B as Orange Juice
6 times as much vitamin B as Carrots

Children get too little vitamin B in most foods they eat. Ralston makes up for this deficiency, protects your child. Made from whole wheat, it supplies valuable elements needed for energy, muscle, strong teeth and bones. Cooks in 5 minutes. Costs less than 1¢ a serving—so little to give your child what no ordinary cereal can give. Order Ralston tomorrow.

BOYS! GIRLS! I'LL SEND YOU MY POCKET KNIFE FREE! FOR TWO RALSTON BOX TOPS OR ONE RALSTON BOX-TOP AND 10¢ IN COIN

Little Orphan Annie
SURE- THE WEAK AND HELPLESS HAVE RIGHTS- JUSTICE PROTECTS THEM---AH, YES- AND WHERE MAY THE OPPRESSED AND HUNTED FIND JUSTICE? WHY, IN THE DICTIONARY- IT'S AS SIMPLE AS THAT FOR YOU AND ME, PERHAPS--- BUT HOW ABOUT LITTLE ANNIE, FRANTICALLY FLEEING FOR HER VERY LIFE?
OH! THEY'VE SEEN US! THEY'RE RUNNIN' STRAIGHT FOR THIS BOX CAR- I THOUGHT AT LAST WE'D GOT AWAY, BUT WE'RE TRAPPED-
OH!
WHO'S SEEN YOU, LITTLE SISTER? WHO'S GOT YOU TRAPPED?
DON'T BE SCARED, KID LET'S GET IT STRAIGHT---AND QUICK!
THOSE MEN-- THEY WANTA KIDNAP AND KILL ME--- AND NOW THEY'VE CAUGHT UP WITH ME-YEAH?
FINE THING!
LOOK, "FRESNO"- ON TH' OTHER TRACK- HEADIN' T'OTHER WAY-HERE, SIS- MAKE OUT YOU'RE A FOOT BALL DOIN' A FANCY LATERAL-YEAH- EMPTY RIGHT OPPOSITE-
DON'T WORRY-TH' POOCH GOES 'TOO!
OH-H! THANKS!
HAVE A NICE TRIP!
FORGET THE OTHER GUYS, KIDDO-
BON VOYAGE, SIS-
CHEEZE! HERE THEY COME-
SO LONG- GOOD LUCK-
QUICK! SHE ENTERED HERE- WE SAW HER- WHERE IS THE CHILD? PRODUCE HER- DO NOT EXHAUST MY PATIENCE-WHAT CHILD?
YOU'RE BALMY!
HAW! HAW! "GIMME TH' PAPERS OR I'LL TEAR UP THE CHEE-ILD!"
AH! THE OTHER DOOR- PERHAPS SHE SLIPPED OUT THE OTHER SIDE- STAND ASIDE, BUM-
WHO YOU CALLIN' A BUM, YOU BUM?
WHO ASKED THEM GUYS INTO OUR CAR, ANYWAY?
TAKE IT EASY, WHISKERS-
BAH! LIFE IS CHEAP- NO ONE STANDS IN THE WAY OF AXEL! HERE! I GIVE YOU ALL A LESSON--- E-E-E----
NOT SO FAST, LITTLE MAN --- LESSONS HE LIKES! O.K., BOYS--- LET'S PUT 'EM THROUGH TH' FIRST GRADE!
OH, BOY!
POW! AS THEY SAY!
WHEE!
WE HATES SNATCHERS! ZINGO!
SA-A-AY- THAT BIG GUY'S PANTS FIT PERFECT- AM I THAT FAT?
CHEE! LOOK AT TH' DOUGH!
THROW THEM GATS OUT- WE AIN'T GUN MEN-THROW THEM OUT, TOO-
WAIT'LL WE'RE A HUNNERT MILES FROM HERE, AN' HITTIN' SIXTY- THEN UNLOAD 'EM--- ON A CINDER BANK-
GEE, SANDY! IT ALL HAPPENED SO QUICK I'M STILL DIZZY- WE'RE GOIN' ONE WAY- AXEL AND HIS PALS THE OTHER- GEE! THOSE GUYS IN THAT CAR--- THEY SURE WERE KIND AND GOOD- HOPE THEY DIDN'T GET INTO ANY JAM OVER US-

YOO HOO YOO!
WHAT'S ON YOUR NOODLE, TOPS?
I BET GOOTCH AN' WHIMP A BUCK THEY COULDN'T STAY IN THE OLD HAUNTED HOUSE UNTIL MIDNIGHT.
WE CAN HAUNT THE HOUSE OURSELVES AN' SCARE THE 'LIVIN' DAYLIGHTS OUT OF 'EM!
BOY, IT LOOKS DESERTED!
I HOPE IT'S DESERTED BY THE SPOOKS!
GOSH, IT'S UNCANNY! IT GIVES ME THE CREEPS!
SH!
LOOK! A LIGHT!
THEY'VE BEAT US HERE!
I'M NOT SCARED BUT I THINK WE'D BETTER GET OUT OF HERE!
ME TOO!
STEP ON IT, TOPS!
THERE GOES OUR CAR!
DO YOU BELIEVE IN GHOSTS, TOPS?
NO, BUT I BELIEVE OUR BEST FRIENDS WILL DOUBLE-CROSS US.

CORKY, YOU DIDN'T DO THE THINGS I ASKED YOU TO.
GEE, MOM, I FORGOT.
WHAT I TELL YOU GOES IN ONE EAR AND OUT THE OTHER.
WHAT DID YOU SAY TO DO?
BRING IN SOME KINDLING, SWEEP THE HALL, PUT AWAY YOUR TOYS AND WATER THE FLOWERS.
BRAVO! HOW DID YOU REMEMBER IT ALL?
I PLUGGED UP THE OTHER EAR.

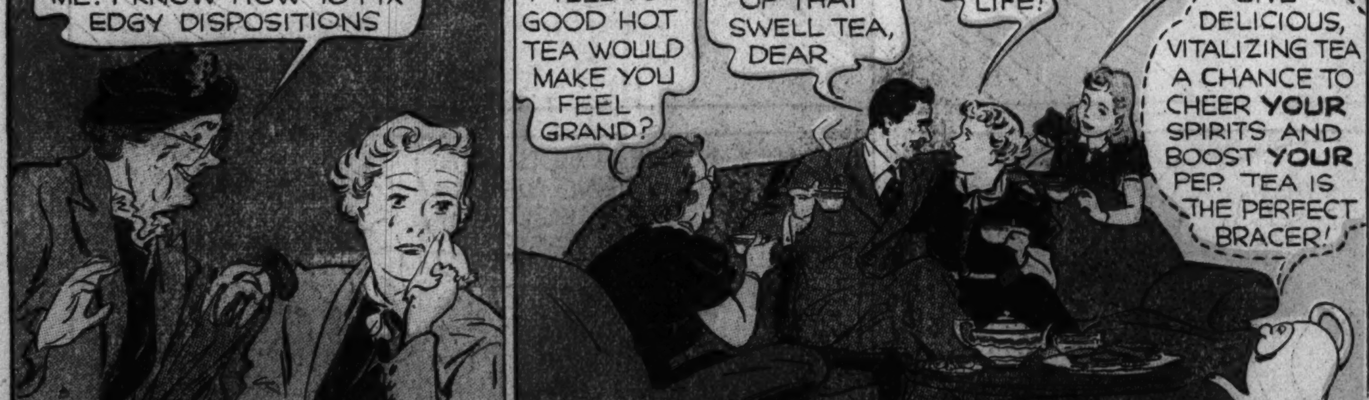
"PUT THE SUNSHINE BACK IN LIFE -IT'S SO EASY" SAYS MR. T. POTT
STOP BANGING THAT PIANO - YOU'RE DRIVING ME NUTS!
WELL THAT HAMMERING OF YOURS IS NO LULLABY- AND FURTHERMORE, LET ME TELL YOU !!!
AFTER ALL-- HOWD'Y'S'POSE I CAN STUDY FOR MY EXAMS WITH YOU TWO MAKIN' SUCH A RACKET?
I'M SICK OF THIS MADHOUSE. I'M GOING TO THE MOVIES. GOOD-BYE!
CAN I DEPEND ON THAT?
WHAT A JOB TEA COULD DO HERE!
WHERE'S THE FIRE, MRS. BENSON?
OH, I'M AWFULLY SORRY
OH DON'T CRY, MRS. BENSON, IT WAS JUST AN ACCIDENT
OH, IT'S NOT THAT. I'M SO UPSET. JOE AND I JUST DON'T GET ALONG ANY MORE. I COULDN'T STAND IT A MINUTE LONGER



OH, SO THAT'S IT! NOW YOU JUST COME UP-STAIRS TO YOUR APARTMENT WITH ME. I KNOW HOW TO FIX EDGY DISPOSITIONS
LATER
NOW DIDN'T I TELL YOU GOOD HOT TEA WOULD MAKE YOU FEEL GRAND?
I HAVEN'T FELT BETTER IN YEARS. ANOTHER CUP OF THAT SWELL TEA, DEAR
TEA SURE PUTS THE SUNSHINE BACK IN LIFE!
HEY, MORE TEA FOR ME, YOU LOVE BIRDS!
GIVE DELICIOUS, VITALIZING TEA A CHANCE TO CHEER YOUR SPIRITS AND BOOST YOUR PEP. TEA IS THE PERFECT BRACER!

THEIR STANDBY-
"TEA FOR MORE VIM!"

GLEN DAWSON,
DARING MOUNTAIN CLIMBER, SAYS:

" SCALING A PEAK ALWAYS MEANS A LONG, WEARING GRIND. BUT VITALIZING TEA GIVES ME A HAND OVER THE TOUGH SPOTS. MOST CLIMBERS PRAISE TEA FOR STIMULATION--- AND GRAND FLAVOR!"

VITALIZING TEA'S GOT WHAT IT TAKES TO BOOST MY PEP-- EVEN IN THE COLDEST WEATHER, AND I MEAN TASTY QUALITY TEA--THAT'S MY DRINK FOR MORE PEP!

KEN JOHNSON
PILE-DRIVER OPERATOR

TEA IS SO DELICIOUS AND REFRESHING, YET IT'S NOT AT ALL FATTENING. GOOD TEA COSTS LESS THAN ½¢ A CUP--- THAT'S VALUE! I RELAX WITH TEA TOO. IT LETS ME SLEEP

MRS. RICHARD MARTIN
BUSY HOUSEWIFE AND HOSTESS

IT'S AS EASY AS A-B-C TO GET A REALLY GOOD CUP OF TEA

A. Always use bubbling boiling water and pour it on the TEA.
B. Use 1 teaspoonful per cup, plus one for the pot.
C. Steep to any strength you prefer. (Most people who use cream or milk choose a 5-minute brew.)

GOOD TEA COMES FROM India
Ceylon
Java-Sumatra

These good black teas are especially suited to the American taste. For economy and full enjoyment, buy quality tea.

As BURNHAM'S
Trained Others
Now Making
$50 a Week in Beauty Culture
—Burnham's Will Train You.

There's money—BIG MONEY—in Beauty Culture if you're trained right and are started right. For instance; within a hundred yards of Burnham's there's a graduate whom we trained in 1936 who now earns over $50.00 a week regularly. And we can name you many others doing as well.

To Make the Most Money Out of Beauty Culture.

—You should get into a smart shop where the established operators frequently make $50.00 a week and up. Burnham's is in a position to help you. For months we have been unable to supply demand for our graduates. With such a large number of shops to choose from we place our graduates in the choicer spots. That means more money from the start, greater prestige, faster progress.

Investigate the Exclusive Advantage Causing More Students to Enroll AT BURNHAM'S Than Any Other.

You owe it to your future to learn about the Burnham methods of training—the result of 67 years of knowing how to teach. Of how you're trained under ACTUAL BEAUTY SHOP CONDITIONS on living models under supervision of experts. Of how you not only become a skilled all around operator, but also an artistic Hair-Stylist. Of how you're drilled in the psychology of pleasing selling customers. The reputation of our gradutes for always being superbly trained and always profitable for the shop is why Burnham trained operators are in such demand, why we can place our graduates to such splendid advantage.

Only $5 Enrolls You
Complete Beauty Outfit Given if You Act Now.

Every future student who mails coupon below or who phones or visits school is eligible for splendid beauty kits without extra cost. Don't let lack of money hold you back. If you are in earnest you can practically write your own terms. Mail coupon below, phone, or visit the school any weekday or any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday evening. Night and day classes.

INVITES COMPARISON
Within the Space of
ONE BLOCK
You will find four of Chicago's leading beauty schools. While in the loop we suggest that you visit all four and decide yourself as to which school you want to attend.

Every sincere and earnest De Lee student is sure of success and immediate employment because all training is supervised by Madame Louise

Mme. Louise, the Educational Directress of De Lee, is recognized in the profession as the world's foremost woman hairstylist, all around beautician and teacher.

At DeLee University

the following advantages are immediately apparent when the merits of various schools of beauty culture are investigated

At De Lee more living models are provided to give De Lee students ample practical experience in De Lee's beauty clinic.

At De Lee more graduates, owners and operators receive postgraduate and "brush-up" training. There must be a reason.

At De Lee you will find a certain something that can best be described as a "University Atmosphere."

At De Lee there are no extras. Your tuition fee covers cost of tools, uniforms, textbooks, cosmetics, supplies, laboratory fees, and your own beauty work.

Lifetime Employment Service
A lifetime employment service is maintained for De Lee graduates. De Lee graduates are placed only in the better salons.

FINANCING YOUR COURSE
Only a small down payment is required and the balance can be paid in convenient weekly or monthly installments. It is even possible to arrange to pay for part of your training after you are graduated and working in a shop.

Phone, Write, or Come In.
Phone or write and you will get full information about De Lee immediately. Better still, come in, see the school itself. You are invited to spend a day in our classrooms. You are under no obligation when you investigate De Lee. Come in or send for FREE 40 page photo booklet.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Vacation Visitors.

January 7, 1939.

A BIRD that spends its summers in the Hudson bay country, Alaska, and other distant lands visited at the farm last week. It is the redpoll, a trim, friendly bird little more than five inches long. It has a bright red cap on its head, its breast is suffused with pink, and it has an abundance of rich brown tints on its back and sides.

If this bird stayed north in its nesting territory it would be facing temperatures of 40 and 50 below zero during the cold months as well as the serious problem of procuring food supplies. Northern Illinois, by comparison, is a summer resort for this hardy little songster, which consumes countless numbers of weed seeds while it is in this state.

Twenty in Flock.

A flock of twenty redpolls visited the farm. They fed on weed seeds near the big pond. Behind the fringe of willows which grow around the bank of the pond there are many dried yellow stalks of the daisy fleabane, boneset, and other weeds still standing above the ground. Some of the weed stalks are three feet high. Most of them are loaded with tiny seeds. The redpolls, whose soft notes resemble the goldfinch's, were scattered among the stalks . . . each bird busy eating seeds. They kept up a continuous conversation. Some would cling to a stalk to get at particular clusters of seeds. Several juncos, attracted by all the activity and noise, soon joined this seed hunting party.

The Colorful Redpoll.

Pass Summer in Arctic.

The redpolls pass the summer in the Arctic north of the timber line. Ornithologists report that the nests of the birds are made of spruce twigs and always are lined with ptarmigan feathers. The scientists also have commented on how tame the redpolls are when around their homes in the north . . . just about as tame as these beautiful birds are at this season when they come south to find food. At the farm this week we stood quietly for about ten minutes while the flock of redpolls ate weed seeds within fifteen feet of us.

Local Loan Gives You the Service You Want

The easier we make it for you to borrow the more we save you in time and money. Our aim is to offer you whatever plan will enable you to borrow most easily. We make liberal Furniture and Auto Loans, but most of our loans are to employed men and women on their signature only because the average employee is entitled to this service. If steadily employed you are entitled to—

$25 TO $300
SALARY LOANS

On Your Signature Only
WITHOUT CO-MAKERS OR ENDORSERS.

You may make your own repayment terms [repaying any time within 20 months] and you are charged only for the actual time you have the money. We cannot tell you all about our service in an advertisement. Just phone or call at one of the following offices.

Your loan request can be taken over the telephone so you can obtain the money more quickly when you call in person. You'll be surprised to find how rapidly the money is advanced.

RADIOS, SUPPLIES, AND SERVICE.

TWO REAL CAPEHART BARGAINS

One, in an eighteenth century period case, possessing 19 tubes, a powerful all-wave radio and the famous Capehart record changer that plays 20 records intermixed on both sides in order. Although this instrument has been used for a short time in one of Chicago's finer homes it is indistinguishable from new, has all new tubes and carries our new Capehart warranty. Priced for immediate sale at $520. Terms.

The other, a beautiful walnut Adam style Capehart, possessing two amplifiers and 21 tubes. This instrument also contains the reversible record changer playing 20 records on both sides in order as well as a superb short-wave radio. As the new Adam sells for $1,045, we consider this instrument a great opportunity at $565. Terms and new instrument guarantee.

Mr. W. R. Blend
Manager, Classified Advertising
Chicago Tribune
Chicago

July 18, 1938

Dear Sir:

I think you will be interested to learn of the results we have had from our advertising in the Tribune.

In February last year, the National School of Mechanical Dentistry was opened in Chicago for the purpose of training young men to qualify for highly paid jobs in mechanical dentistry and to help the dental profession acquire better mechanical workers than could be produced by the old apprentice method.

From September 1 to January 1, 1938, we used want advertising in four Chicago newspapers to carry our announcements to prospective students.

At the end of this period a check-up of the results showed that Tribune want ads were far superior to all others. Accordingly, when we started advertising again in March this year we used the Tribune exclusively.

From September 1, 1937 to May 1, 1938 we spent $406.05 for advertising in the Tribune which produced 462 inquiries and 47 enrollments. This is a cost per inquiry of 88 cents, and per enrollment, $8.64. This brings our sales cost down to approximately 2.5 per cent.

Naturally we intend to continue in the future with the program of advertising in the Tribune which has been so successful in the past.

Yours very truly,

S. T. Jonas D.D.S.

● Fresh evidence of the high productivity and low cost of Tribune want ads is to be found in the accompanying letter. It should be read with interest by every advertiser seeking economical methods to find prospects for highly specialized services and products.

The ability of Tribune want ads to produce inquiries and enrollments for trade schools and similar advertisers reflects the close interest with which the huge Tribune audience follows Tribune want ad columns.

Now read by more than 710,000 families in Chicago and suburbs seven days a week, the Tribune makes it possible for want advertisers to address Chicago's largest constant audience at economical cost.

In addition, the Tribune is read regularly in the homes of thousands of thousands of families living in the five states adjacent to metropolitan Chicago. It is the Chicago newspaper read and followed by other thousands throughout the United States.

Tribune readers are accustomed to review Tribune advertising columns in a frame of mind receptive to buying suggestions. They seek out the advertiser's offer, looking through hundreds of want ads for the opportunities which from experience they know they will find there.

Are you looking for prospects for what you have to sell? Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. If you prefer, a Tribune representative will call on you at your request.

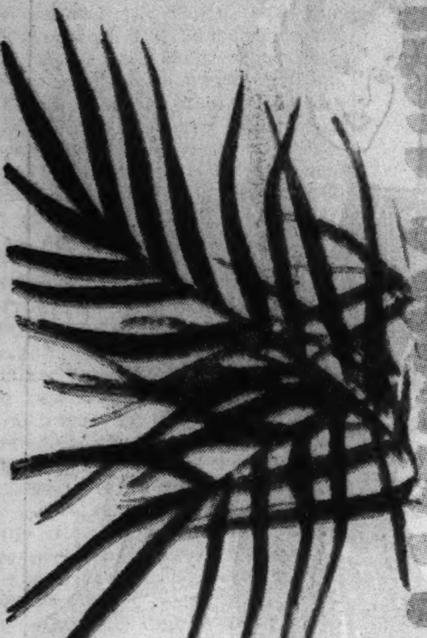
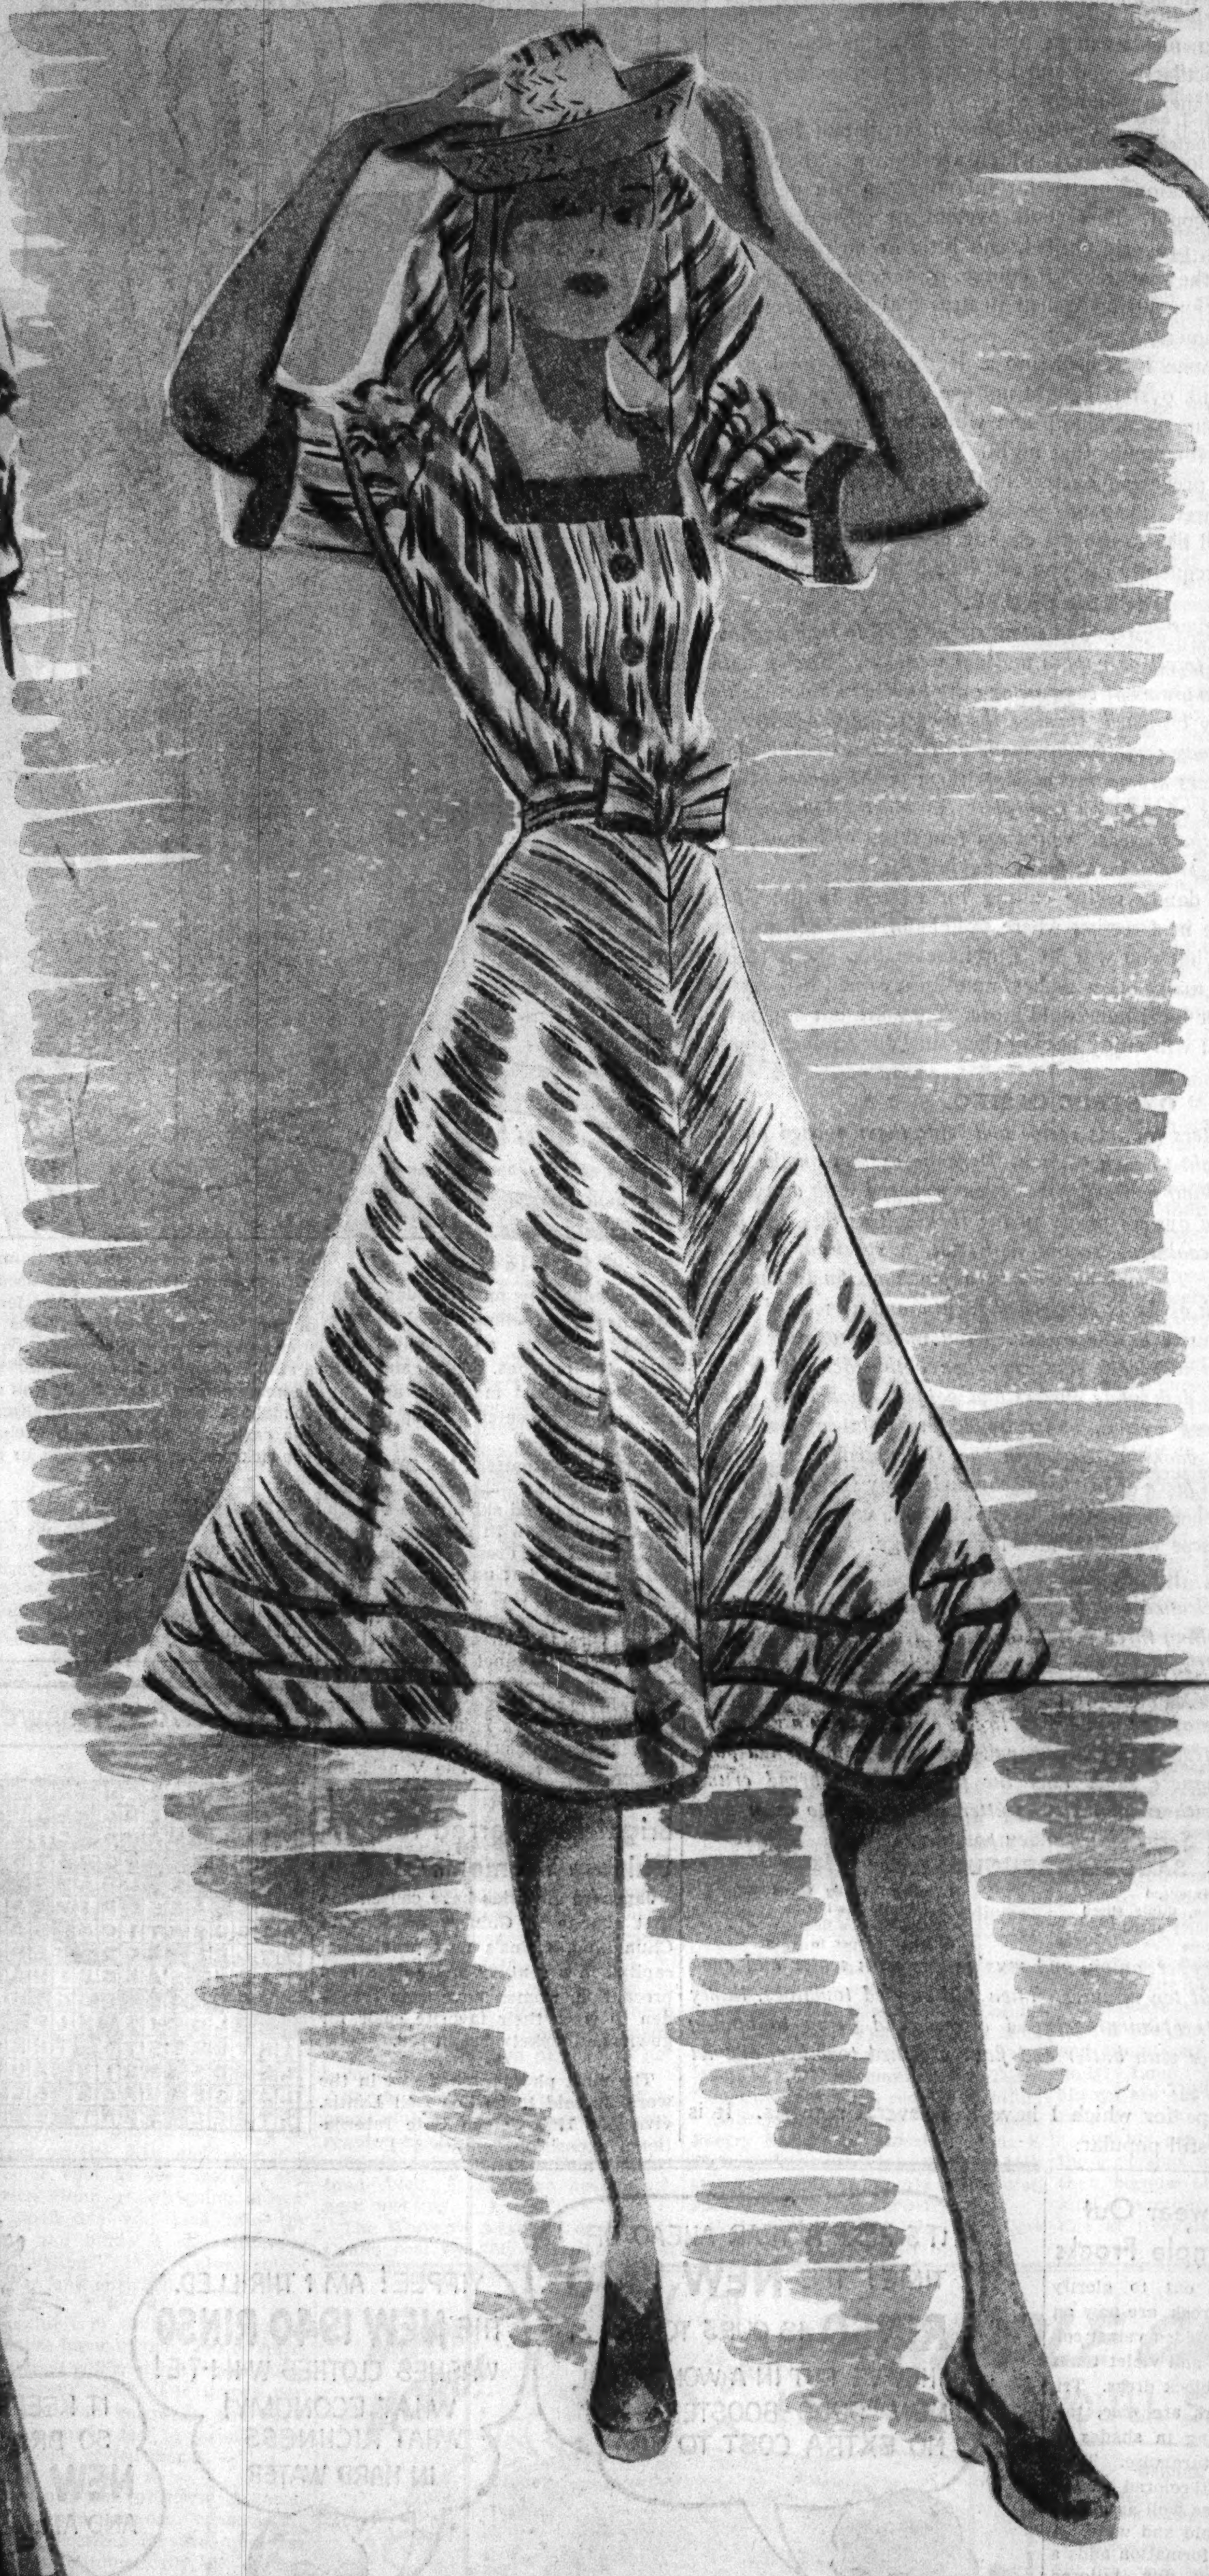
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

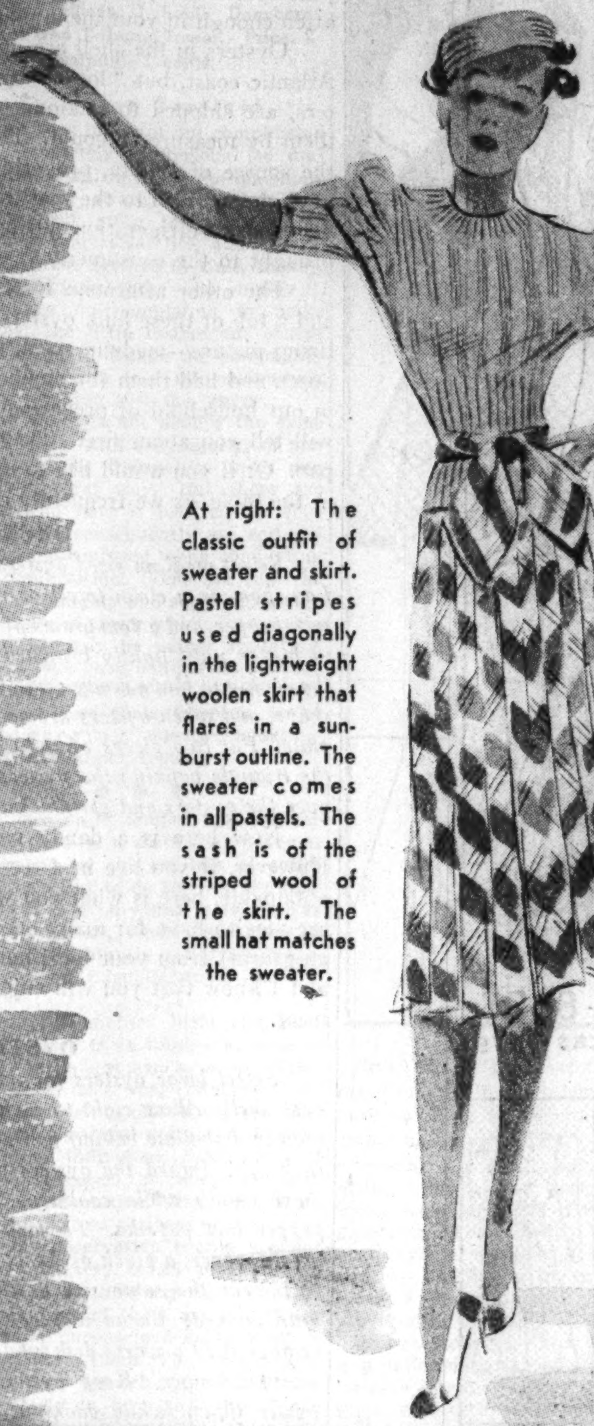
Part 6 Clubs Fashions

JANUARY, 8, 1939

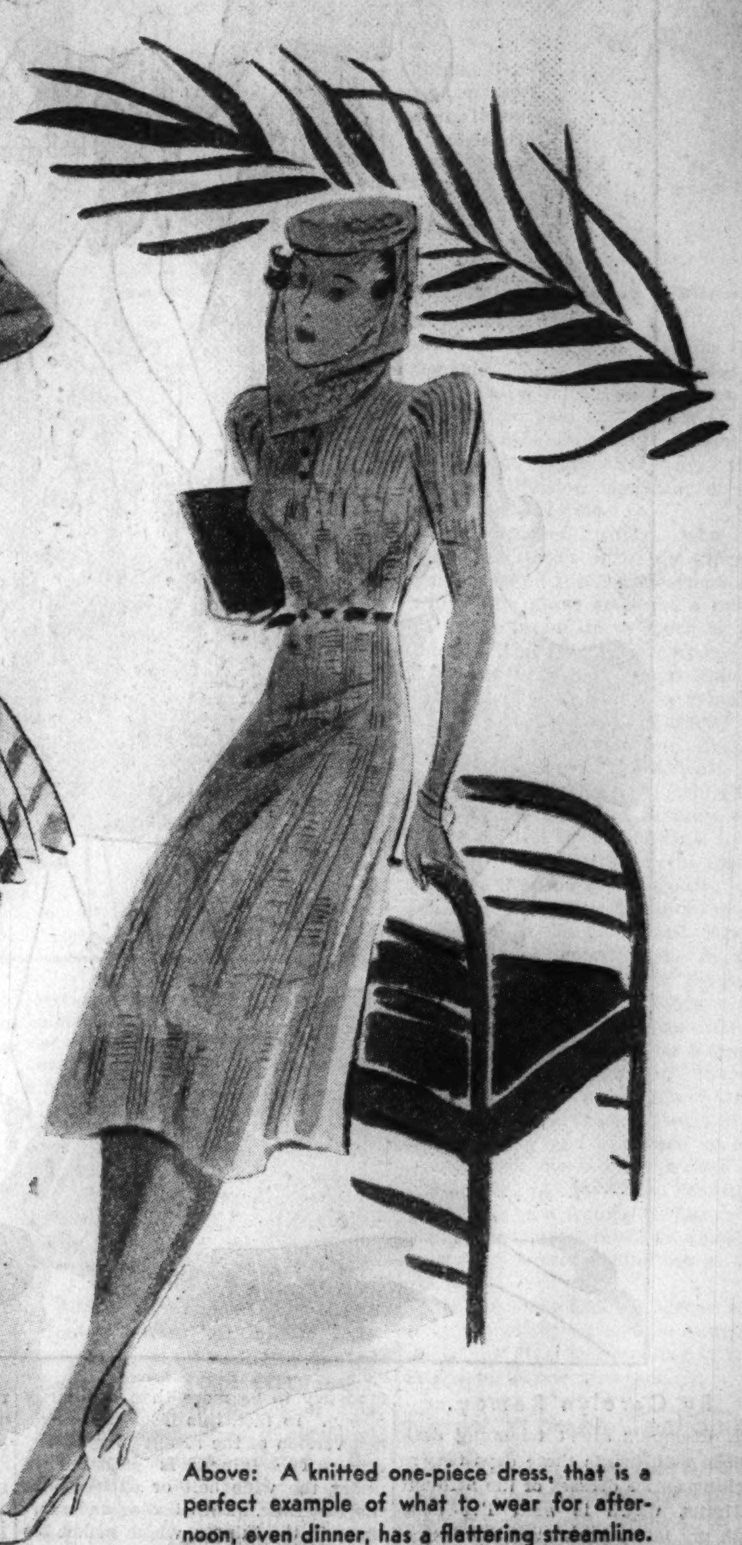


At right: Swedish cotton daytime dress in bright colored narrow stripes against a dark background. The very short skirt is cut in four gores that form a smooth, flared outline. A blouse buttons demurely high at the neck. Contrastingly colored footgear and a funny although smart straw hat complete this exotic costume for days under the sun. The hat has a pointed scarf of the striped cotton of which the dress is made. These Swedish clothes are the essence of crispness.

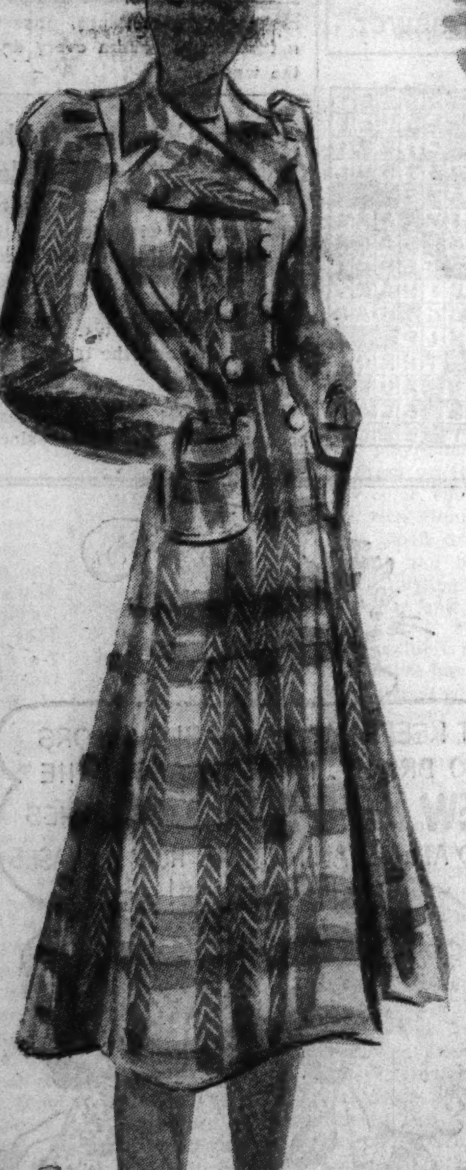




At right: The classic outfit of sweater and skirt. Pastel stripes used diagonally in the lightweight woolen skirt that flares in a sunburst outline. The sweater comes in all pastels. The sash is of the striped wool of the skirt. The small hat matches the sweater.



Above: A knitted one-piece dress, that is a perfect example of what to wear for afternoon, even dinner, has a flattering streamline.



Above: Big pastel checks form an eye-catching plaid pattern in this effective reefer coat for resort wear. This model reveals the figure with its fitted outline and buttons snugly with a double row of white buttons. The hat, of contrasting colored soft suede, has a shadowing brim and a high crown. This is a bright coat for southern vacation wear.

Breezy Clothes for Vacations Under the Sun

By RHEA SEEGER

DASHING out of town to escape cold weather, or indulging in what's becoming more and more popular, a winter vacation, means a shopping expedition first. New summer-time outfits, the brightest, breeziest things in town, are shown in all the stores and shops that are presenting such good looking loot that even the most enthusiastic winter stay-at-home will weaken and buy to pack just for the fun of having the latest clothes. These new collections are tremendous factors for that urge to follow the sun, as well as significant trends of what we'll wear next spring and summer. The very best of the latest fashions are launched now—the newest colors, the newest fabrics, combines, hats, and accessories.

Play clothes and beach outfits alone are spotlight stealers anywhere the shows are staged. Next come the daytime dresses, clever, obliging affairs that are deceptively simple in general aspect but tellingly new and virtually irresistible to all who view them. It's a well proved statement that a lot of these midwinter-midsummer fashion firsts seldom repeat later on when you trustingly start out to find them. So go shopping now, snatching that superflattering color, that dream hat, those clever costume accessories while they're available. It isn't the rather startling purchase it seems! Whether you really pack and get away from slush, snow, and more winter, or whether you very shrewdly shop and pack the stuff away for an early appearance when the first robin chirps next spring, it's a good time to buy new outfits.

Generally the present showings stress simplicity with soft, clever dressmaking details. Skirts are short. All the clothes are extremely young looking, the streamlines revealing and flattering, sleeves short, bodices molded and shirred, and skirts either full with restrained outlines or flared. Colors also are considerably softened, much easier to wear, and almost universally becoming to all. Fabrics are soft, drapable, spongy, and dull. Shirt silks make smart one and two piece dresses. Plaids and stripes are going along in a merry race for popularity. Cottons are especially attractive, and soft, thin woolens make grand ensembles with printed silks in combination.

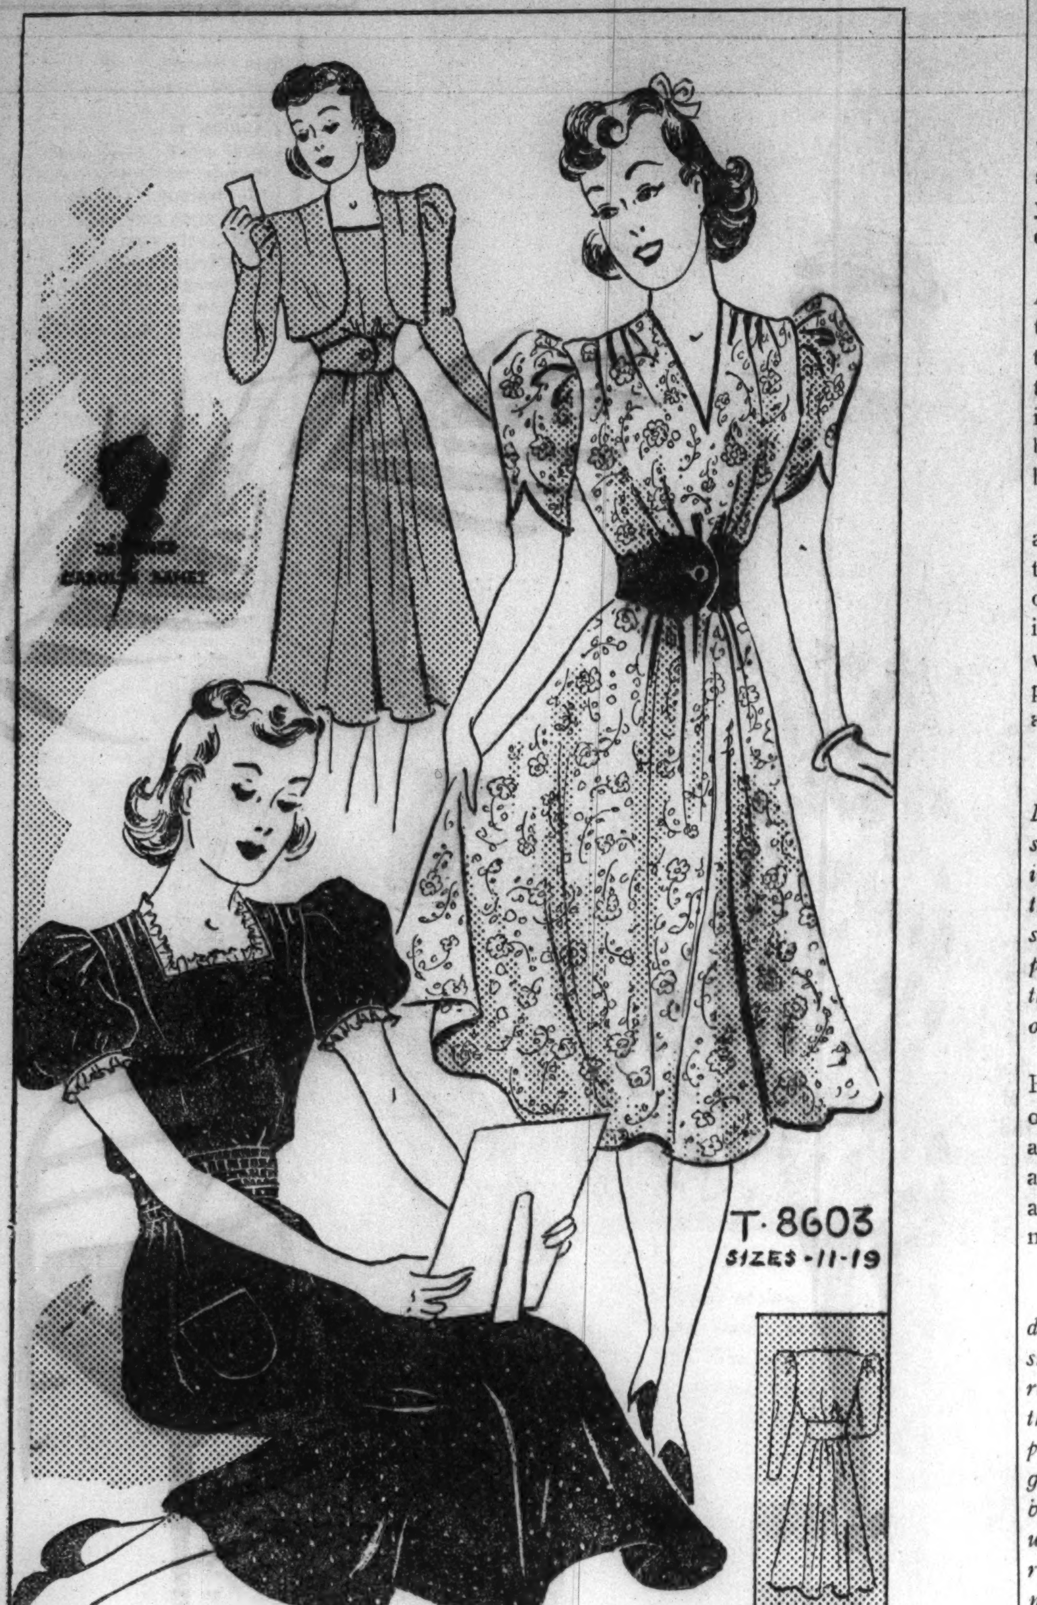
One of the most exciting showings features knits, superknits, the kind of clothes that are classics no matter where and with what you wear them. Knitted one-piece dresses have plenty of snap and are the kind that do not sag or stretch. Knitted cardigans in the new manner are softer in outline. Short sleeves are fitted in at the waistline, and unusual knitted insets are used for decoration as well as contrast and fit. Separate knitted skirts are extremely wearable, and the colors are luscious—all the soft yellows, mint greens, gold, putty, gray, white, and the pastels in blue and pink. Belts usually provide the decorative contrast. Sleeves are simple and elbow length, and the skirts are slightly flared. These are the best finds of all the knitted collections, and the color-mixing possibilities are unlimited.

Knitted headgear also is something to check, for some of the smartest small hats, the joy of all travelers, are available in the current collections, pill boxes and turbans with wind-around-the-neck scarfs.

One outstanding midwinter collection sponsors a knockout assortment of some Swedish cotton spectator and active play clothes. They're the essence of naive charm and crisp, fresh cleanliness. The striped cotton is soft, colorful, smart, and lends itself particularly well to play and informal daytime clothes. Plain-colored material contrasts as well as trims. Skirts are cut to flare smartly, and the stripes are used skilfully for contrast and trim. Shorts, shirts, separate skirts, and blouses are made of this effective striped cotton. All this Swedish cotton is new, high fashion, and featured exclusively in dresses and play outfits. It's inexpensive, practical as well as colorful, and particularly effective in active sports models or for simple daytime models.

From one exciting new collection we've sketched five originally fashioned outfits, a semi-wardrobe of what is needed for a midwinter vacation trek to follow the sun.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

If designers aren't trimming dark frocks with prints these days they're making entire dresses of the brilliant patterns, which is what I've done with my latest pre-spring brainwave. To be perfectly frank, I've become so all-fired dejected looking at my winter's collection of dark things, which seemed so sophisticated and utterly right a couple of months ago, that I went berserk and decided I'd lose my mind if I didn't get a new—and a BRIGHT—dress. Here's the result. I hope it does for you what it did for me. In my opinion it can't miss:

If the holidays have piled up the pounds on your silhouette you'll like this frock immensely because I've designed it with one of the full skirts so becoming to hiplines that have a tendency to be more than ordinarily plump. In fact, this frock is a modified version of the recent "monastic" type. The fulness is gathered in under the wide belt or shirred into the waistline. Both bodice and skirt share in the fulness, which makes for gracefulness.

There are many ways you can style the balance of the dress. I've made mine like the version shown in the large standing figure, with V neckline and short puffed sleeves that are notched at the cuff line. The wide lether belt is the shade of one of the colors in the print. My dress is a gay printed silk, combining blue, green, purple, and red. The belt is purple.

You can give the frock a square neckline if you like, and a bolero with long sleeves and no collar. Or the square neckline may be edged with ruffling or lace to match that used on the puffed sleeves. This latter version of the pattern is very girly-girly and is ideal for anything from informal "dates" to house wear.

Style No. T-8603 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 1¾ yards of binding.

With all the holiday feasting over, a change in diet should be welcome. Fish or shellfish offers a delightful change, whereby simple, but satisfying, meals can be prepared. At this time of the year oysters are particularly good and I wonder if you include them often enough in your menu planning.

Oysters in the shell are not obtainable too far distant from the Atlantic coast, but "loose" oysters, which are known as bulk oysters, are shipped to sections pretty far inland. You can purchase them by measure or count. These bulk oysters are opened right at the source of supply, properly chilled, and little or no time is lost in shipping them to the markets. Of course, oysters are perishable, but proper refrigeration during transit insures real freshness when brought to the consumer.

The other afternoon I stepped into a neighborhood food store and a tub of these bulk oysters caught my eye. They were an appetizing picture—medium sized, plump and white, so I purchased two dozen and had them for dinner that night. We have a favorite way in our household of preparing oysters in this simple fashion that I will tell you about first. They are cooked sauté in a heavy frying pan. Or if you would like to use the chafing dish and do them right at the table, as we frequently do, you will find it the best of fun.

OYSTER SAUTE.

Select medium sized oysters and allow six or eight to each portion. Lay them on a clean towel or napkin and pat until dry. Season with salt, pepper, and a few grains of cayenne and dip lightly in flour. Saute in butter until lightly browned, turning the oysters but once during the cooking. Have ready some freshly made buttered toast cut triangle shape, and when oysters are cooked arrange them in the center of the plate. Put two pieces of toast on each plate, having the long side of the triangle banking the oysters. Squeeze a few drops of lemon juice over the oysters and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Now here is a dandy recipe calling for oysters in the shell. However, if you live in a section where oysters in the shell are not obtainable, here is what you will do. Purchase scallop shells (these are nice to have for many other dishes, notably creamed fish served au gratin) from your local household store. They are not expensive and I know that you will enjoy having them in your kitchen equipment.

OYSTERS CASINO.

Select large oysters for this recipe and have them opened on the deep shell. Allow eight to each portion. Arrange oysters on the deep shell in a shallow baking pan which has been prepared with a layer of rock salt. Imbed the oysters firmly in the rock salt as this will hold them steady while cooking. Season with salt, a speck of cayenne pepper and paprika. To each oyster add a pinch of finely chopped green pepper, a pinch of finely chopped pimiento, and a piece of sliced bacon cut the same size as the oyster. Broil under moderate flame until cooked. Bacon will cook first, so when both sides are broiled remove it to a warm dish while oysters and peppers cook eight or ten minutes longer. Keep oysters moist by adding a bit of butter or oyster liquor while cooking. Serve in the shells and garnish each oyster with the small piece of broiled bacon and a tiny sprig of parsley.

A whole baked fish such as bass, bluefish, cod or whitefish served à la Portuguese would be nice for a change.

BASS, PORTUGUESE.

Have the fish cleaned and prepared for baking, leaving the head on. Select one weighing three pounds or over. Rub fish with olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Place it in a butter greased baking dish, sprinkle a tablespoon of finely chopped onion over the top and add four tablespoons of dry white wine to the pan. Bake in a moderate oven 35 to 40 minutes, basting occasionally with the wine. Then pour two cups of Portuguese sauce over the fish, sprinkle bread crums over the top, dot with small bits of butter and return to oven until crums are browned. Serve with parsley potatoes.

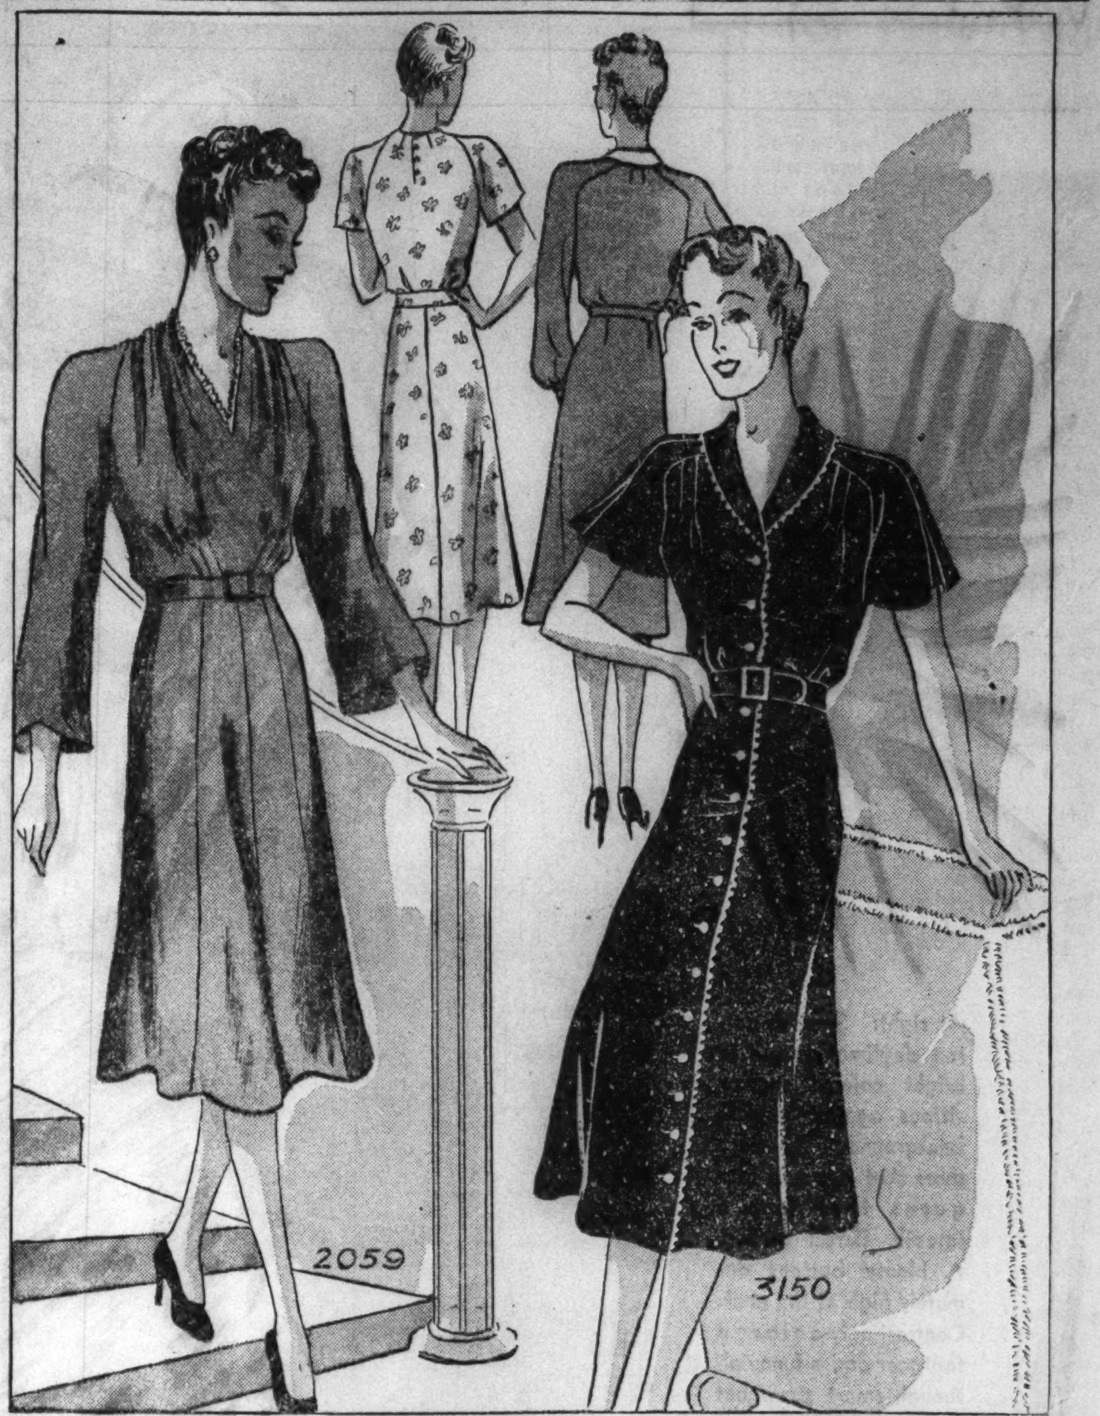
SAUCE PORTUGUESE.

1 green pepper, thinly sliced
1 medium sized onion, thinly sliced
½ cup mushrooms, thinly sliced
2 cups canned tomatoes
12 olives, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper to taste

Cover green pepper, onion, and mushrooms with water and cook until tender or about ten minutes. Then add canned tomatoes, thinly sliced stuffed olives (pimiento stuffed olives) and bring to boiling point. Thicken sauce with butter and flour creamed together, and let boil two minutes longer.

Here is a recipe for which I have had several requests. It is old fashioned, but still popular.

Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Two slender-line models today, both patterns young enough looking for misses to wear, and distinctively styled for matrons. Silks and cottons are the best mediums, and the frocks may be created for "up north" or "down south."

At the left is pattern No. 2059, with softly draped shoulders, raglan sleeves, and gored skirt. The V neck line is trimmed with ruching or lace. The rest of the dress, including the bell sleeves, is left unadorned. It's a fashion axiom that too much trimming draws attention to figure faults. That's why this dress is so utterly simple. The original is fashioned of dull crêpe in a champagne shade, and the ruffling at the neckline is brown.

The other dress is more informal. Its raglan shoulderline gives way to plaited cap sleeves. The V neckline has a rolled collar that is trimmed with rickrack to match that used on the closing, which extends the length of the frock in front, and uses buttons to match the trimming. This is a slim frock ideal in cottons for wear at home or in the south. If you wish to make it for wear in winter climates, use dark printed silks and exchange the rickrack for ruffling, lace, or binding.

Style No. 2059 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3150 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs ten cents.

Kentucky Woman Ventures Only Few Miles from Home

"Aunt" Lucy Ratcliff has spent her sixty-six years within a few miles of her home near Maytown, Ky., because, she says, traveling is expensive and "I feel it's against my duty." She said she once boarded a river boat, but got off after deciding the trip would cost too much.

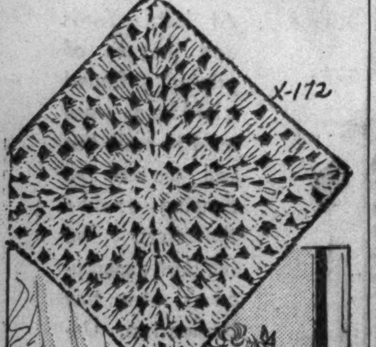
Crochet Design Creates Afghan Light in Weight



By Ellen Bruce.

There are those who like their afghans feather light. This shell pattern lends itself admirably to lightweight wools. The pattern is one of those simple double crochet motifs, and is worked into a shell design. When the square medallions are set together one can discern a myriad of different designs.

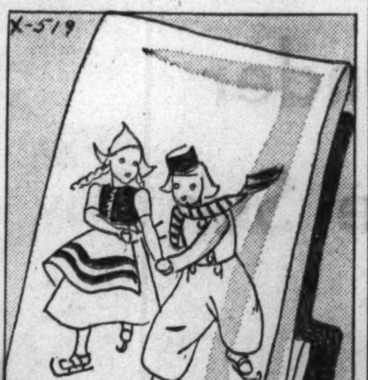
Carefree Looking Dutch Children Are Nice Design



By Nancy Cabot.

From the land of wooden shoes and ice skates come these gay little Dutch figures in a happy, carefree mood. They are hot iron transfer patterns which are suitable for numerous types of needlework for the home or for children. They create cheerful pillows for young and old. They may be used on towels, pot holders, chair backs, or wall pictures. All the vivid hues typifying Holland's spotlessness are used to embroider the figures and their costumes.

For the hot iron transfer of the Dutch boys and girls, No. X-519, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Latest in Neckwear Out to Glorify Simple Frocks

Smart neckpieces, out to glorify your simplest little frock, are now on the market. Jewel studded velvet collars in rich magenta and violet tones give rich color to a black dress. Tricolored velvet collars are nice, too, one of the best being in shades of rust, brown, and turquoise. Then there are small, multi-colored beaded and chenille collars as well as gleaming lames in deep gold and wine. A lame collar in petal formation adds a gleaming note, and for tailored dresses there are sleek gold kid collars. Chantilly type lace and Elizabethan type collars, with jewel tone velvet bands and bows, are immensely flattering.

To Relieve Bad Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll never know how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, until you try this famous recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

With color making a comeback, nosing out the black that has been a favorite for so many years, the woman who would be well dressed must develop her color sense where makeup is concerned. The old "light, medium and dark" red range is outmoded and useless today. Lipsticks must harmonize with or offer a stunning contrast to the color accents of the costume.

Some years ago the people in the beauty field, to say nothing of Mrs. Consumer, were simply staggered when a creator of cosmetics announced that makeup aids should be keyed to costume color. The comments ranged from simple statements that the lady was crazy to low mutters that it was all just a plot to sell more lipsticks.

But look what has happened. The lady was not daffy. And while it did undoubtedly help the sale of lipsticks to have women harmonize their makeups to their gowns and hats, it had a direct beneficial effect, not only on the good looks, but the development of chic of the women who bought.

It is astonishing today to reflect that not so long ago all lipsticks and rouges were light, medium or dark. Three shades of red. No more. The lipstick a woman wore was chosen according to her own vague idea of her own coloring. She was light, medium or dark, and that was that. And we all wore our one lipstick with every conceivable costume color.

Today almost every woman has consciously or unconsciously absorbed some color education. A purplish lipstick with a green dress offends the eye; an orange lipstick with a wine hat cries to high heaven for correction. Most of us are getting better every day at keying cosmetic colors to costume colors. And we have been done a great service.

Not all of us are born with an eye for color harmony, but our own mirror is a good school these days. We can see, with our own eyes, how some lipstick shades clash riotously with some costume shades. We eliminate the offending color, and it's easier and cheaper to eliminate the lipstick than the dress, the hat, the clip, or whatever the costume color accent may be.

If you wear a great deal of color, remember that your makeup wardrobe must be larger than it need be if you stick to black, brown or any one color family. The trial and error method is the most expensive one. The really wise woman avails herself of the makeup ensembles that appear each season when the new colors do. These are not lipstick and rouges alone. The ensembles offered by at least one great house include not only these two important color accents, but foundations, powders, eye shadow and even nail lacker as well.

One of the first questions you must ask yourself, if you want to be well dressed and suavely made up these days, is: "How's my eye for color?" If you fear you haven't a color sense set about to develop it. And do remember that the day when one lipstick would see you through all the rainbow colors of your wardrobe is definitly past.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

For after holiday modernization: A new dye for that cement floor in your basement or sun room, your porch or your playroom. Just in case you wish to dress up the floor and give it a new color, such as deep maroon, tile red, rich green or intriguing brown. This floor dye will sink into the cement and bind; it will eliminate that "dusting." It will also protect the color, and enrich it.

A radically new principle in household vacuum cleaner construction makes it possible for the appliance to remain automatically set at correct working adjustment without any attention by the user. Regardless of the nature of the floor covering, the cleaner nozzle automatically remains in correct relation to the floor, no matter how frequently the appliance is moved from one material to another. This new automatic control feature is obtained by use of four wheels, two of them broad and two narrow, which are intersected. The depths to which the narrow wheels sink into the various kinds of floor coverings serves to keep the nozzle correctly adjusted.

That very innocent but complicated and completely mysterious [to me] bit of mechanism called the telephone plays some strange tricks. It has made itself quite indispensable in business and social life, and has effected great savings in time, money, and energy for those who employ it. We have no complaints to make against the little instrument except as it seems to change the personality of a few who lose all naturalness when speaking over the 'phone.

The effect is not always the same in all cases. And the majority of persons conduct themselves in a perfectly natural way. But there are some who have a fear of the telephone and consequently are self-conscious and confused when conducting the conversation. Some are just the reverse, haughty and superior, with a new sense of power which, in extreme instances, may be rather irritating. Others take on a belligerent attitude at the drop of a hat, and permit themselves to lose their tempers, to be domineering, unaccommodating, harsh, and discourteous.

To lose one's temper and become disagreeable is a state that never is sanctioned by the arbiters of social behavior. But to do so over the telephone is in even worse taste, just as in letter writing, when discourtesy or speaking too bluntly or harshly is certain to be misunderstood and resented.

And still another little change I have noticed is an unnatural tone of voice that is assumed by some. That, of course, isn't very important because it does not offend any one, but it is not a natural voice and it gives the other individual, particularly if he is a stranger, the impression that it is an affectation. That should be avoided, just on the face of it.

In my observation people are not aware of these tricks played upon them and at their expense. That is, the majority of them are not. They are quite unconscious as to what is happening to them. That is one good reason why we bring the subject to their attention, because if the offense is unconsciously committed these persons are possibly unaware of what is happening to them. If they are warned about this little "nigger in the woodpile," they might be able to conduct a little self-analysis and avoid being "taken in" against their will.

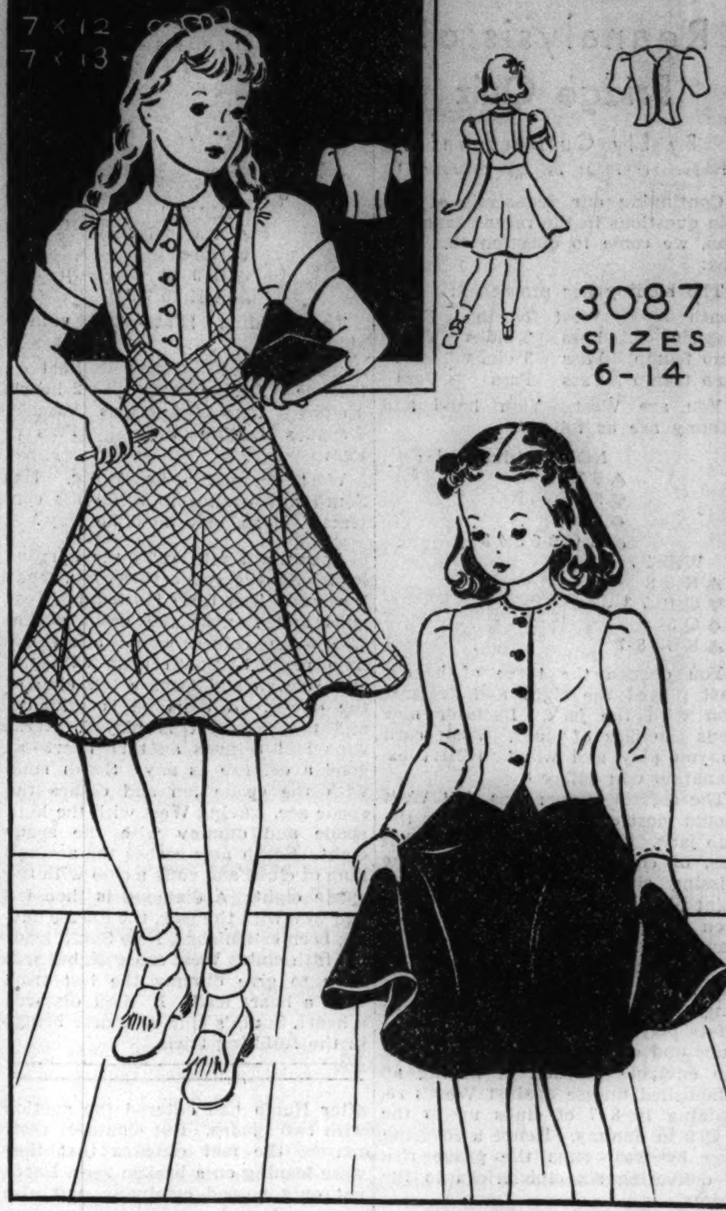
While telephone etiquet is the subject of our discussion, a few other little reminders might be appended before the copy is marked "finis." The telephone voice, for instance, should be pleasant, clear, and easily understood. This does not mean loud. In fact, the mechanism of the telephone is so sensitive that it is possible to speak even lower than the normal conversational tone and be perfectly understood at the other end of the wire if the enunciation is good.

There are rules of etiquet for those who use the public telephone booth, too. Always note if some one is waiting to use the telephone after you, and limit your conversation accordingly. Long, gossipy conversations always are out of order, but particularly so in the public booth.

And my pet peeve is reserved for those persons who put in a call and then, because of interruptions of one kind or another, have one holding the line at irregular although extended intervals.

Clotilde Children's Fashions



Small fry in grade school need so many clothes that mothers often are hard put to it to keep the wardrobe ample enough to meet the constant clamoring for fresh, spic and span attire. Youngsters these days are being made conscious of the value of grooming. Their clothes must be as neat as the proverbial pin at all times, and we think one of the grandest ideas is the jumper dress, since it provides for a variety of blouses that may be laundered. The dress today is a tailored model with wide, comfortable shoulder straps and a flared skirt that, because it has no plaits, is easy to keep in press.

The blouse has puffed sleeves with cuffs. The collar is a rather deep shirtwaist model, and the blouse buttons down the front. The skirt may be made of silk, woolen, or cotton, and the blouse of rather sturdy washable fabric, cottons preferred.

The same pattern fashions a two piece dress on suit lines, with a flared skirt and contrasting jacket that is collarless. The topper has puffed sleeves that are long, and buttons down the front. The waistline is nipped in for snug fit. Two shades of woolen are an ideal scheme for this costume.

Style No. 3087 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, 1½ yards of 39 inch material for the skirt, and 1⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for the jacket.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Clubs Devising Varied Events for New Year

With Christmas and New Year festivities over for another year, clubwomen are now turning their thoughts and energies to devising interesting and worth while programs for their organizations.

Mrs. Ralph T. Winston.

The American Opera society is starting the new year musically by presenting Roy Glahn, tenor and winner of the Tribune Chicagoland Music Festival honor in 1938, in a recital on Jan. 11. The recital will be held at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, 1400 North State Parkway. Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, president of the society, will preside.

Ruth Klauber, pianist, who appeared as soloist with the Chicago symphony and the Berlin symphony, will be the guest artist at a music tea and art salon to be given in the Chicago Woman's Aid clubrooms at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Miss Klauber will play one of her own compositions, "Gavotte and Musette," as well as works by Schumann, Chopin, Scriabin, Prokofieff, and Albeniz.

Sam Greenburg, the exhibiting artist for the month of January, also will be a guest at the art salon to be held in connection with the music tea. Mr. Greenburg has painted and exhibited in various European countries and in Palestine and Egypt. His work is represented in the permanent collection of the Tel Aviv museum in Palestine, and his water colors have been exhibited at the Art institute. At present he is teaching art in the Chicago High schools.

A conference of presidents of women's clubs in the Chicago area, and of art chairmen and chairmen of art groups, will meet at 3 o'clock on Wednesday at the Art institute. There will be a lecture by Lester B. Bridaham, public relations counsel, on the six winter exhibitions at the institute.

The Musicians Club of Women will give its 668th concert in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"GRANDEST GRIDDLE CAKES I EVER ATE!" YOU'LL SAY

Use Spry for ALL baking and frying ... see the difference!

PERHAPS you've always used the most expensive shortening for cake. But try Spry and see the kind of cake you get—feathery light, fine-grained, delicate, delicious. "Why, I'd never want better cake than this!" say millions of women. "I'll keep on using Spry!"

Perhaps you've always used one kind of shortening for pastry. But try Spry next time. Notice the wonderful flakiness of your pie crust, its melting tenderness and fine flavor. You'll keep on using Spry!

Perhaps you've always been a little "afraid" of fried foods. But fry the Spry way. See how crisp, light and free from greasiness foods are. Digestible—why, a child can eat them! And IS Spry creamy! Read below what cooking experts say—change to Spry today!

GRIDDLE CAKES

2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1½ cups milk
¼ cup Spry, melted

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Combine beaten egg, milk and Spry. Turn liquids into dry ingredients and stir gently until blended.

Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle greased with Spry. When cakes puff and bubble, turn once and brown on other side. Turn only once. Serve with maple sirup. Makes 18—but they'll disappear fast! You'll always make Griddle Cakes this way now. But remember, use Spry in this recipe and be sure of best results!

SPRY WAFFLES
See what a hit they make!

3 cups sifted flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ cup Spry
3 egg yolks, well beaten
2 cups milk
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in Spry until mixture is as fine as corn meal. (You'll marvel how quickly Spry mixes!) Combine beaten egg yolks and milk; add to flour and mix until smooth. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron. Serve hot with maple sirup. Makes eight 4-section waffles.

A Wise Parent Takes Middle Way with Child

"Understanding the Adolescent" is a booklet of interest to parents and teachers. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

The mother who expects too much of her child, and I'm not talking of just little boys and girls, nor middling ones, nor even those at the teen-age end of childhood, but of children of all ages, says:

"You promised me last week you wouldn't touch mother's spools of thread again, and now you've broken your promise"—this to a little 3 year old.

"I'm going to punish you for wetting your panties. Why didn't you tell mother in time that you needed to go to the bathroom?" This to an overly excited, overtired small daughter.

"You cannot leave the table till you've eaten every bit of your vegetables and drunk all your milk. No—no—you cannot get down." This to a youngster just learning to use fork and spoon, who gets muscularly tired of wielding the implements, and should be fed toward the last of the meal.

"Well, you should have gone upstairs and done your homework at 5 o'clock even if Aunt Molly and the boys were here. Now, it's bedtime and you'll simply have to be marked at school for not doing it." This to a 9 year old who had lessons assigned for the next day and forgot them in frolicking with his visiting cousins.

"You'll have to wear it just the same. I don't care what the other girls are wearing! You don't have to wear a sweater, skirt, sox and brogues and be like everybody else. And lipstick is out—that's flat. Not one speck of it." This to a high school daughter who's at the age where it's painful to be "different."

"What's the matter with you, James? You used to be so polite and enjoy staying home and reading a book and like going out to places with your father and me. And I don't think it's very nice to go in your room and shut the door"—this to a son of 17 who's having a hard enough time understanding himself, let alone grappling with the blindness of his parents.

The mother who expects too little of her child says:

"Come here, darling—mother will dress you." This each day to her little girl of 5.

"I can't tell you where babies come from; you're too young to understand." This to a little boy of 6.

"No, you can't set the table—you get the things all crooked. No, you can't dry the dishes—you'll drop them! No, you can't make cookies now when I'm doing it; it's just wasting good material and you'll get yourself and the kitchen all in a mess." This first to a small daughter, and then to a small son who are at the "helping mother" stage, and could learn a surprising amount and also be happy doing it with their mother.

"I know he broke it, Henry, after you'd warned him again and again. I know you told him he'd have to pay the glazer this time for putting the pane in, but I paid it. It's so hard for him to save." This about a boy of 12.

"You're too young to have the boys 'date' you. You don't know anything about life yet and how to take care of yourself. Look at the terrible things you read about. See how many girls get into trouble." This [partly spoken and partly unspoken] to a daughter of 16.

"Well, I suppose it is hard for you to get home by 1 when all the others are allowed to stay out as late as they please—and I don't want to embarrass you . . . and even Mrs. Marryat and Mrs. Benson let Janice and Joyce go out with boys who 'park' after the dance? Well . . . I don't like it, but . . ."—this to a son of 17 who's gotten his driver's license and uses the family car.

The mother who expects neither too much nor too little of her child, the one who expects just about enough, always feeling her way, somewhat, watching her child because each is, after all, an individual—the one who makes some mistakes because none of us is perfect, but who learn each time—this mother says, or rather thinks:

"Betty's too little to be expected to remember to keep a promise so I won't let her make one." We're following in order the situations already described. Let's continue:

"Barbara needs more rest and less of this exciting play with Benny and Jean. I'll have to help her a little with the bathroom routine, too, for a while."

"Mealtimes aren't times for discipline. Billy's too young to get all through a meal without a helping hand from Marie or me."

"With all this family visiting going on, I'll have to jack Joey up on his home work."

"Cynthia's just got to do what the other girls in high school do, so I might as well live through it the best I can! And James, poor lad, I'll let him alone all I can, till he's out of these adolescent woods." Not expecting too much is important. But expecting too little is a mistake, too.

So, this mother also knows that little by little "darling" must learn to dress herself, that questions about birth and sex can be answered so a child will understand, and that skills, judgment, and coöperation are the fruit of letting children help and do the things they are eager to try.

This mother knows that Henry should pay for the broken window in this instance; cause and effect are valuable lessons. And she knows that a girl of 16 can, if she's been intelligently treated and not wrapped in cotton wool, associate happily and safely with boys, with wise restrictions, of course.

Expert Continues Reanalysis of Bridge Quiz

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Continuing our reanalysis of certain questions in the recent examination, we come to question 18. This was:

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

You are West. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

NORTH [dummy]
♣ A Q 9 6 5 4 3

WEST
♠ K J 8
♥ Q 10 7 3
♦ Q 5
♣ K 10 8 7

You opened the three of hearts. East played the eight and declarer won with the jack. Declarer now leads the jack of clubs. What card do you play and why? [Short explanation will suffice.]

The correct answer was that West should most certainly NOT cover the club jack. The crux of this question was, of course, the location of the missing club deuce. From West's point of view, there is a better than even chance that that card is in declarer's hand. If it is, and West is so accommodating as to cover, declarer's proper play is to let the club king hold the trick—an ordinary safety play. East would show out of clubs and declarer would then be in the enviable position of having an established finesse against West's remaining 10 8 7 of clubs up to the A Q 9 in dummy. Hence a covering play by west runs the grave risk of delivering six club tricks to the enemy.

Now let us see what a noncovering play does. West plays the club seven on declarer's jack. If the jack is singleton, the best declarer can do, even if he overtakes with the queen, is to run two club tricks. If, however, declarer has that vital deuce back of the jack, West's failure to cover shuts out many tricks in dummy. The jack holds and [as before] East shows out. Now the deuce is led, but declarer can make only the ace and queen—West still has a stopper. With all the honor cards in West's hand in spades, hearts, and diamonds, it looks very doubtful that declarer will be able to make nine tricks if he can take only three club tricks. Hence West, by cutting down the potential club winners from six to three, does yeoman service for his side.

No demerit was assigned for improper play, but readers who made the correct ducking play, with the correct reason, were given 30 points credit.

The next question that gathered in quite a few victims was number 20. It was:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 heart
2 clubs	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
Pass	2 spades	Pass	?

You are South and hold:

♠ K Q 9 ♥ A Q 8 4 3 ♦ K 5 2 ♣ J 7

What call do you make now?

Gratifyingly enough, 16,585 participants made the proper answer which was "pass." Unfortunately, this left 3,500 optimists who insisted on making another bid with South's hand. Perhaps they felt that their spade "fit" waranted a new hope of game after North had entered the auction with two spades. But whatever their reason, the fact remains that they were leaning on a broken reed. North not only passed originally, but also could not find a bid or raise over West's measly two club call. When judged in this light, his two spade bid could not be other than a mild effort to keep the opponents from making a part score in two diamonds. As a matter of fact, North's hand might well look something like this:

♠ J 10 8 6 3 2 ♥ 5 2 ♦ 10 6 ♣ K 8 3

Obviously, if this were North's holding, the partnership would need a little luck to fulfill even a three spade contract, and any game would be out of the question.

It is vital for one partner to recognize the other's intention, i. e., whether he has any game aspirations, whether he is angling for a slam, whether he is battling against a part score—in short, before attempting to evaluate exactly the combined resources of a partnership, the objective of every bid or of a series of bids must be determined. In this case, South should realize that North has not the slightest hope of game, hence should not "boost" him to a part score contract that has a good chance of being defeated.

Question 22 brought roars of protest from a good many participants, and I hereby admit that it was by all odds the "closest" question of the examination. It was:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	?

You are South and hold:

♠ 8 4 2 ♥ 7 5 3 ♦ A 5 ♣ A Q 9 8 5

What call do you make now?

My answer was that South should bid three hearts—that "since partner has bid two suits you must show a preference, and your two and a half honor tricks, doubleton diamond, and three hearts demand more than the MERE preference that two hearts would now show. [Eighteen points demerit for two hearts; 26 points demerit for two no trump; 32 points demerit for any other call, including a pass.]"

Almost all of the objections that reached me were based on the fact that South was "asked to give a jump raise in a suit that had not been rebid, when holding less than adequate trump support." I will not deny that in one sense this is a sound objection, but I am afraid that these indignant parties did not consider the other side of the picture. I call attention to the fact that the best bid in a hand may not be a good bid at all, but that if it is the least of all evils it is, per se, the correct bid. As a matter of fact, this is the only basis upon which experts make their close decisions. In this case, South has two or three conceivable courses other than the three heart bid recommended. He can give a preference for hearts at the two level. He can conceivably bid three clubs. He can bid two no trump. Certainly he should not pass and permit his partner to play two diamonds.

Now let us examine the three courses mentioned and determine the virtues and drawbacks of each. Three clubs, I think, we can dispose of immediately—there is nothing to recommend such a bid. It is misleading in that it would tell North that South had a rebiddable club suit, but [presumably] nothing else worth mentioning. Incidentally, it would inform North that South could afford to play at three clubs with no club support in the North hand and this, of course, would not be true.

Next, let us take up the two no trump bid. This is infinitely better than a three club call, but I still do not like it. If South bids two no trump over two diamonds, he is practically saying that he has a spade stopper and North, with good diamonds and hearts and possibly the club king for a fitting card, will certainly take him at his word and, with two small spades, go to three no trump.

Now for the most popular bid, a mere return to two hearts. The best argument I can offer against this is to set up the following hand for South to hold:

♠ Q 4 ♥ 7 5 3 ♦ 5 2 ♣ K Q 10 6 5 4

With this hand, South would have bid two clubs over one heart, intending to pass to two hearts, to bid three clubs over two no trump or two spades, or to take two diamonds back to two hearts. The difference between this hand and the one actually held, in the light of North's bidding, is enormous and certainly should be expressed. The objection that South is asked to bid three hearts when holding only the 7 5 3 is probably raised because this bid is confused with a direct or delayed raise. Actually it is no such thing. It is a better than preference bid. South does NOT tell North that he holds excellent heart support. That being true, North must take his own precautions. If North has a four card heart suit or a weak five card suit with substantial strength on the side, his proper bid is not woodenly to contract for game in hearts, but to mention three no trump. If North's hand is something like this:

♠ 5 3 ♥ A K 6 4 2 ♦ K Q 10 7 4 ♣ 2

he would be guilty of "pushing" if he were to bid again after a mere two heart preference by South. Yet he would have an excellent play for game. I fully agree that three hearts is not the best bid I have ever heard of, but I remain firm in the conviction that it is a better bid than any other available.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Bridge Problem.

♠ 8 6 5
♥ J 10 9 3
♦ 8 5 4 3
♣ Q 6

WEST
♠ K Q 4
♥ A Q 4 2
♦ A 7
♣ J 9 8 4

EAST
♥ K 8 7 6 5
♦ Q 9 6 2

SOUTH
♠ A J 10 7 3
♥ None
♦ K J 10
♣ A K 10 7 3

The bidding [East-West vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	Pass	2 hearts
3 clubs	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West opens the heart ace. Has South any chance to fulfill his contract? If so, how must he play?

Answer: South ruffs the opening lead with the spade three and leads the spade jack from his hand. West wins and returns the heart queen. [No other return would affect the final result.] South ruffs with the spade seven and leads a low club to the queen. A diamond is returned and the ten spot is played. West wins and returns another heart—as good a defense as any. South ruffs with the spade ten and cashes the spade ace, leaving West with the high spade and dummy with the spade eight. South now cashes the ace and king of clubs and ruffs a club with the spade eight. A diamond is then led and won with the jack, the finesse having been established. Now South leads his fifth club. West can ruff, but will have to give dummy the last trick with a heart lead. If West discards a heart, South's club of course brings in the fulfilling trick.

Canned Foods Indispensable in the Kitchen

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Today's housewife wouldn't know how to plan menus without canned fruits and vegetables. She has found them indispensable to her family's food plan. Not that she doesn't use plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables in season. She does, but she supplements these with a large variety of canned goods to make her meals more interesting and easier to prepare.

Modern commercial canning methods are scientific, sanitary, and dependable. Most commercially canned fruits and vegetables are even more nutritious than those we can at home, because the foods are cooked in air tight cans under carefully controled conditions which are kinder to vitamins than we can possibly be in our home methods.

Buy the right size can for the needs of your family. If there are only two, buy the small can which holds a cup to a cup and a fourth, and you'll have no leftovers to worry about. If your family is unusually large and hungry, the restaurant size, No. 10, may be a practical buy, especially for fruits.

COMMON SIZES OF CANNED FOODS.

No. 1. This small size is used for many soups, fruits, and vegetables. Fruits and vegetables canned in the No. 1 size aren't available everywhere, but are to be found in most metropolitan areas. The capacity by weight is from 9½ ounces to 13 ounces, and the measure is 1¼ cups.

No 3. Tomato juice, pork and beans, and spaghetti are commonly canned in this size. The weight varies with the product, from 13 ounces to a pound and 2 ounces. The measure is 1¾ cups.

No. 2. This is the most common and most popular size. Most fruits and vegetables are found in No. 2 cans. Weight, from 1 pound 2 ounces to 1 pound 8 ounces. The measure is 2½ cups. This is about five average servings of fruit, four of vegetables.

No. 2½. This size can contains a cupful more than the No. 2 can. It is used for many fruits, sauerkraut, pumpkin, tomatoes, beets. Weight varies from 1 pound 10 ounces to 2 pounds 3 ounces, and the measure is 3½ cups.

No. 10. This is the large restaurant size. Most fruits and vegetables may be found in No. 10 cans, although not in a great many markets. The weight ranges between 6 and 8 pounds, and the measure is 13 cups, about twenty-five servings.

Canned vegetables are most frequently heated and served with butter and seasonings. But there are many other good methods of preparation.

CANNED PEAS AU FROMAGE.
[Serves Five.]

1 No. 2 can peas
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
6 tablespoons evaporated milk or light cream
½ cup grated cheese
Paprika

Drain the liquid from the peas. Save it for soup or sauce for another vegetable. Do not throw it away, as it contains valuable food nutrients. Put peas in a shallow baking dish, sprinkle with seasonings, and add milk or cream. Cover with grated cheese. Place under the broiler until hot and cheese has melted. Sprinkle with paprika.

ASPARAGUS BAKED IN TOMATO SAUCE.
[Serves Six.]

1 No. 1 square can asparagus tips
2 hard cooked eggs, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup tomato juice
½ teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup fine bread crums

Drain asparagus, but save liquid for use in soup or for another vegetable. Arrange asparagus in a buttered shallow baking dish. Cover with thinly sliced eggs. Melt 1 tablespoon butter and blend in flour. Add tomato juice, onion and salt, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour over asparagus and eggs. Cover with crums and top with the remaining melted butter. Bake in 400 degree oven until thoroughly hot and lightly browned.

Hundreds of delicious salads and desserts may be made with canned fruits. Plum Fluff is only one of many.

CANNED PLUM FLUFF.
[Serves Six or More.]

1 No. 2½ can plums
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1 cup whipping cream

Drain plums and remove pits. Mash with a fork and add lemon juice. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Whip the cream and fold it into the meringue. Fold in plums. Chill for an hour before serving.

Another canned fruit may be substituted for the plums in such a dessert. Apricots, peaches, and berries are good.

King of Arms in Dublin Handles Geneology Queries

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN The "Ulster King of Arms," who, despite his title, actually lives in Dublin, receives approximately one hundred queries a week, mainly from Irish-Americans who are anxious to trace their geneology and establish their right to a coat-of-arms. He represents the Irish equivalent of the college of Herolds and ranks as the fourth king of arms in Britain; he and his predecessors have occupied quarters for 500 years in a charming old building under the Clock tower of Dublin castle.

If the Irish-American family can show, with the expert assistance of the "Ulster King of Arms" and his staf, that the family has used arms within the last three generations or one hundred years, then it can receive what is called a "confirmation grant" firmly reëstablishing their rights for $80.

But if that cannot be shown, they are "non-armigerous persons" and the question of a new coat-of-arms, especially designed for them, arises. This takes considerable correspondence, but it can be managed for $225.

These are official fees and one-half of them goes to Eire and the other half to the United Kingdom, which pays all the expenses of the office. Ordinary geneological inquiries are charged for very reasonably on the basis of the time and effort involved in the research. The fees for this work go to the member of the staf who does it, and they constitute, in fact, his livelihood, since the official salaries are comically small.

The Stamp Collector

—By Richard McP. Cabeen—

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The first stamped envelopes of the United States were placed on sale on July 1, 1853, following an authorization by congress on Aug. 31, 1852. George F. Nesbitt & Co., stationers and printers of New York, had the first government contract, and their satisfactory work and prices enabled them to continue furnishing envelopes until 1870. The Nesbitt company undertook to get a little free advertising on their product and placed a small seal or crest on the tip of the open flap. This probably was not included in their contract and the practice was officially discontinued on July 7, 1853.

An innovation was made in October, 1859, by the introduction of envelopes with "patent lines," or "self-ruling envelopes" as they have been referred to by the postoffice department. These had heavy black lines printed on the inside of the envelopes in such a position as to guide the user in writing the name and address on the face, for the lines showed faintly through the paper. This aid to neatness was not an unqualified success and the patent line envelopes were soon discontinued.

The first issue by Nesbitt consisted of three values, 3, 6 and 10 cents, each in white and in buff paper. Apparently the buff envelopes were much more common than the white. The design of this issue consisted of an embossed colorless portrait of Washington surrounded by an oval band containing the value in a word at the top, engine turned ornament at the sides and the word "cents" at the bottom. The lettering is colorless and there are no numerals of value. Several varieties occur in the 3 cent value and these have to do with the length of the panel containing the word "three," and the shape of its ends. This value was printed in red corresponding to the color of the 3 cent adhesive stamp. The 6 and 10 cent stamps are in green and show no major variations in design.

The second issue of envelopes came into use in 1857 and included four values, 1, 3, 6, and 10 cents, and a combination value of 4 cents made up by printing both the 1 and 3 cent values side by side upon a single envelope. This was designed to pay carrier charges of 1 cent in addition to the regular first class rate, and is very uncommon. The design is oval and shows a colorless portrait of Franklin in the 1 cent value and of Washington in all other values. Surrounding the portrait oval is a frame made up of colorless inscriptions and lines on a band of solid color. The words of value appear at the top and the inscription "U. S. Postage" below, and there is a single small six pointed star at either side. A variety in the 1 cent value shows a period following the word "Postage."

The 1 cent value is printed in blue, the period variety on orange and buff paper, and the normal variety on buff only. All other values are on both white and buff paper, the 3 cent and 6 cent values being in red and the 10 cent value in green, with the combination envelope in the normal colors for each value.

The second issue of envelopes continued in use until 1861 when it was superseded by a new design. At this time both the first and second issues, as well as all adhesive stamps of the previous issues, were demonitized to prevent their use by the citizens of states in rebellion against the federal government.

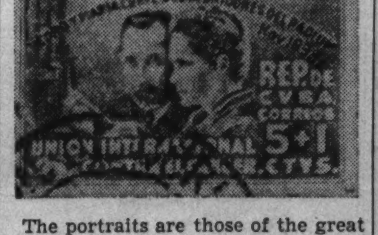
The Cuban stamp here illustrated is shown through the courtesy of G. H. Sims of Indianapolis. It is one of a semi-postal series which was issued to assist in the world battle against cancer. The design is a close copy of a stamp issued for the same purpose on Sept. 1, by France, except for the necessary change in the name of the country and in the value.



The portraits are those of the great French physicists, Pierre and Marie Curie, who discovered radium in November, 1898. A small crab [Latin, cancer] has been introduced in the design in the lower left corner.

Stamp Notes.

The year 1938 marks a new period in stamps, for two living Americans have been shown on foreign postage stamps. Early in the year Guatemala issued a series of stamps in a miniature sheet in compliment to the United States constitution. The four centavos stamp of this set pictures President Roosevelt. Now comes Spain with an issue from Barcelona of three 10 centimos stamps honoring Tom Mooney, Edgar Andre, and Romain Rolland. Edgar Andre was executed as a communist in Germany in 1936. Romain Rolland is a French writer who won the Nobel prize for literature in 1915. Tom Mooney is serving a life sentence on conviction of complicity in the bombing of a Preparedness day parade in San Francisco.

The postoffice department has released a list showing the complete first day sale data on all of the new stamps of 1938. The information includes the date and place of first day sale of each stamp, the number of covers canceled, number of stamps sold and the amount of money involved in first day sales. Some of the information is in error, particularly the number of 20 cent covers canceled, and the list will not be published until corrections have been made. That portion of the data which refers to airmail and commemorative stamps is assumed to be correct and is appended.

Six cent bi-colored airmail, May 14, St. Petersburg, Fla., 95,121 covers; 154,125 stamps, $9,247.50; Dayton, O., 116,443 covers, 185,611 stamps, $11,136.66. Total sales, both cities, $20,384.16.

French Spring Fashions Going Schoolgirlish

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Spring fashions will regiment women of all ages into a worldwide youth-through-dress movement if the designers of our clothes on both sides of the Atlantic have any say about it. It isn't moderately youthful clothes they are making. The fresh crop of spring duds is schoolgirl age and not a day older. Backing this youngest-yet fashion are big shots such as Mainbocher and Alix in Paris, and all of the grade A designers in America are supporting them in a big way.

I can reassure you that what is proposed is not the cloying modesty and archness of any bygone epoch of the schoolgirl dress, but an up to the minute schoolgirl fashion, racy, knowing, and full of daredeviltry.

The first thing I notice about these clothes is the fact that full skirts are served up on all of them, from coats, through suits and daytime dresses, and into evening clothes. Just to make them more girlish than grownup, many of these skirts are gathered onto the waistline. Others are plaited, and those that aren't treated this way are circular or gored. Lots of them in the evening dress section are ruffled. Blouses are either schoolgirl bloused items, or they are fitted little basques that have an under-eighteen look.

Day dresses with girlish white collars and cuffs, and with white starched and ruffled petticoats under their impudently full skirts, are very important in this new youth movement. Coats, too, have an innocent freshness about them, which is done with big white or pastel colored collars, or they come minus collars of any sort, and with high placed revers

Suits keep on coming in two colors, and in combinations of plain and striped, checked, or plaid materials. "Youth movement" in suits often is translated into a lumberjack of plaid or checked wool with a plain skirt, or it is done with a plaited skirt and short, fitted striped jacket. You'll be seeing fresh lingerie blouses paired off with these suits, spotlessly white and with soft young collars or frilly jabots. Shirtwaists of the blousy, innocent looking kind will come in, too, with spring suits

Childish sailor hats, worn back on the head like Little Nell wore 'em, soon will be offered to you women as will guimpes and girlish fichus for adding white touches to your dark dresses. White cotton gloves, of course, come along with the rest. I haven't seen any panty waists yet, and all the hoops are inside evening skirts, but I put nothing past the designing gentry once they get the bit in their teeth.

While these youth styles are charming, and I'd be the last to deny that they are, I shudder to think what will happen if they are adopted by women who look old enough to know better. They're dynamite to the matron, and just as sure to explode any illusion of youth she may have in her looks, as the chemise dress of the 1920's did. For the rest of the world they'll be swell.

One suit shown is in the front row of the new schoolgirl styles. It has a brief blazer jacket of navy and white striped flannel trimmed with curlicued and bias bands of self-material, with an accordion plaited skirt of blue moire.

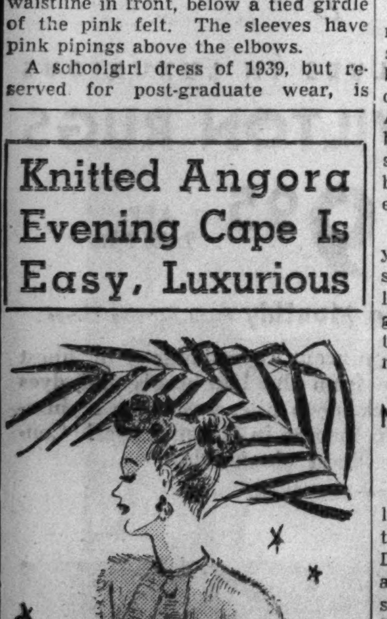
Another model brings you the same style in terms of the spring coat, this one being made of ink black nubby wool, and having a wide childish collar of pink felt, piped with the black. The skirt is gathered at the waistline in front, below a tied girdle of the pink felt. The sleeves have pink pipings above the elbows.

A schoolgirl dress of 1939, but reserved for post-graduate wear, is made of flat crêpe silk, and has a shirred dicky yoke on the blouse, between a pair of sleeves with leg o' mutton fullness at the armholes. A stiff white linen collar ties in a bow under the chin. The circular skirt is topped by a wide shirred belt, and goes over a white embroidered petticoat.

A dirndl dinner dress, a fourth youth-through-dress style, is made of stiff Wedgwood blue satin, with a longish basque waist, and a full skirt gathered onto it. It fastens on crystal drop buttons, and has a square neckline that's news.

Knitted Angora Evening Cape Is Easy, Luxurious

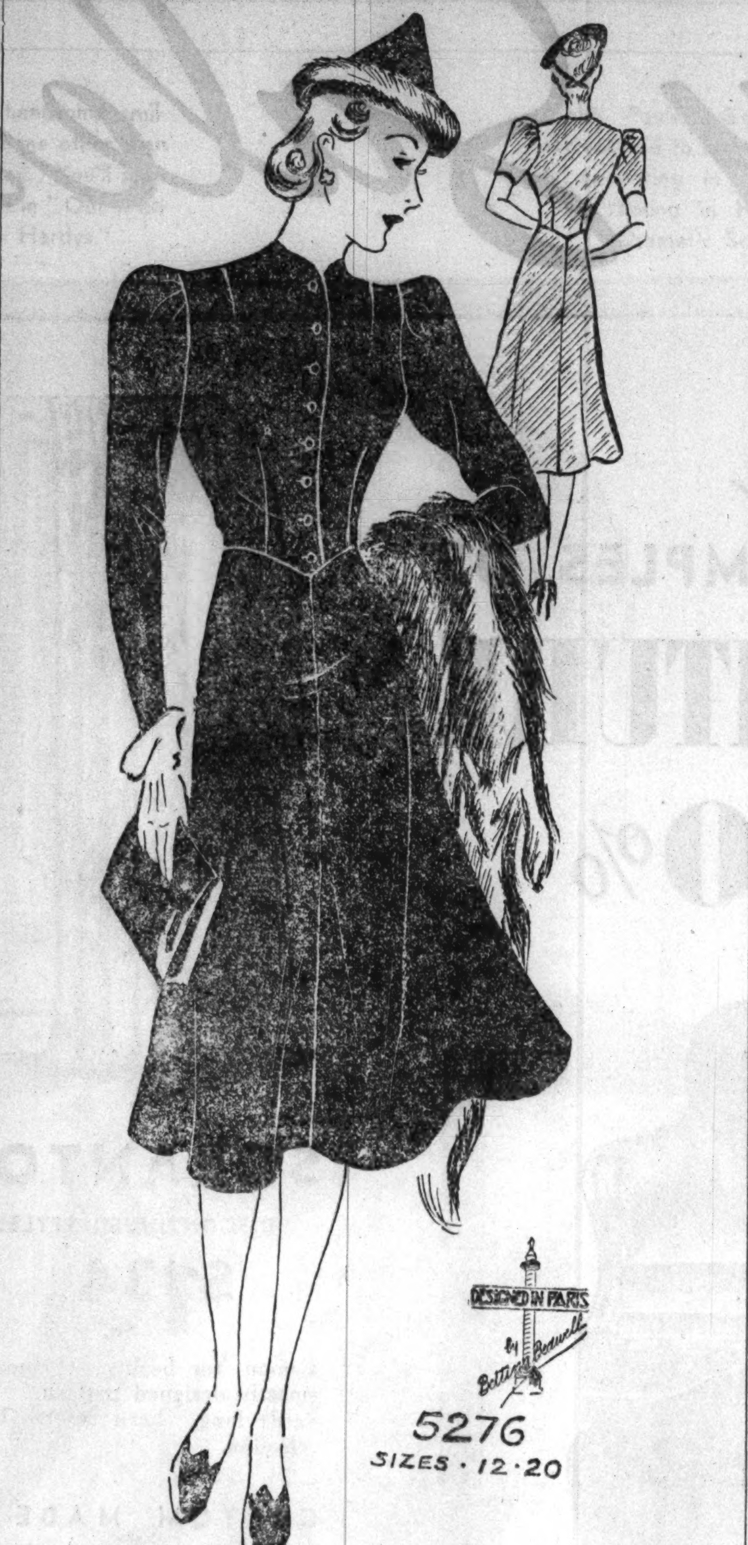


By Jean Macdonald.

Luxury is exemplified in this snowy white angora cape. It is knitted of angora wool on a circular needle and is one simple knitting job which may be accomplished in a week. The length of the cape is 24 inches, but may be shortened to suit individual stature or choice.

For instructions for knitting the angora evening cape, No. X-173, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Paris Pattern Is Adapted from a Molyneux Original



No. 5276—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS—[Special.]—Adapted for you from a Molyneux original, this Paris pattern offers something sophisticated in the way of a skating silhouette. The first model caused a flurry of excitement at the mid-season showings. Like the original, this pattern has a lightheartedness about it that cannot fail to charm.

The dress is a one-piece model with two-piece effect. The top is fitted in basque fashion, snug and following the contours of the body. It has no collar, but the neckline is built up. The shoulders are puffed to create rather extreme squareness that serves further to accentuate the slimness of the waist. Buttons are the only trimming on the bodice.

The skirt, sharing in the slenderness of the waistline, suddenly flares below the hips and swirls with a grace that is equaled only by the skater's motions on the ice.

The original of this dress was in black velvet, the severity of the lines and the lack of trimming serving to show off to best advantage the luxuriousness of the fabric. You can develop this pattern in velvet, velveteen, crêpe, or sheer woolen. Duvetyn is a lovely pile fabric for this dress, too.

You might add a touch of printed silk. Where? Under the hemline. Paris is sponsoring bright prints as touches on dark frocks for spring. Make this dress in the manner suggested and you'll be one step ahead of fashion.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Memorial to Army and Navy Nurses Is Unveiled

A marble figure of a woman recently was unveiled in Arlington National cemetery, near Washington, D. C., in honor of the nurses of the army and navy. The statue was designed and executed by Frances Rich, 20 year old daughter of Irene Rich, actress.

Latin-American women now are voting in eight countries, yet as short a time as ten years ago feminine voters were banned from the polls in all the republics.

WOW! Should I Holler I Just Won A Dollar

Bill Lee Had Bachache
He Had It Bad
He Bet Me a Dollar
Today BILL'S Darn Glad

I'll say he's glad—it's like this—Bill had backache—had it good and plenty—did no work for two days.

So last night I walked over to see Bill—that backache had sure took Bill bad.

"Every time I move," says Bill, "pains shoot all thru my back—sometimes so terrible I think I'm going to pass out."

"Why don't you get a doctor?" says I to Bill.

"Why don't I get one of those 16 cylinder machines" Bill answered—you know darn well I ain't worked 10 weeks in a year—be yourself" says Bill.

"I've worked less" says I "but we've got to do something"—so I started my old bean to work.

Well to cut a long story short—I remembered my Dad had often boasted about a medicine called OMEGA OIL that he claimed would bring ease and comfort to painful, aching back muscles, even bad enough to be called lumbago—so I said to Bill—

"Bet you a dollar I'll have you on the job tomorrow morning—give me 35 cents."

"It's in my pants pocket and the dollar too" says Bill—"Get it and get it quick—I want to work—I want to see another pay envelope."

So I goes to the nearest drugstore—gets my 35 cent bottle of Omega Oil, which the druggist said was good and powerful—penetrating and medicated and hustled back to Bill.

I rolled him over—He yelled murder when I did—but I gave his back a darn good rubbing—and that's how I won my dollar—but I'm giving it back to my old pal Bill tonight—Omega Oil is tops for backache—Bill says so and Bill knows.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Today we devote the column to a number of varied needs brought to our attention.

The first request is rather unusual and because of that very fact we present it to our readers in the hope that it can be filled.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am an adjustment teacher at the X. school. One of my pupils is a little girl, 9 years old, afflicted with asthma. The child is allergic to cotton. Her family is on relief and unable to provide all wool items for her. If you know of any way we can get a pure wool blanket or sleeping suit for her you will earn the undying gratitude of her mother and her teacher."

The address of the family is on the near southwest side of the city and will be given to any reader able to be of assistance.

Has any reader a discarded typewriter which could be given to a woman who is both blind and crippled? She has a diseased hip joint and this, coupled wth her lack of vision, thoroughly handicaps her. Her caseworker made the request and will be glad to call for a machine if one is available.

• • •

Mrs. W. K., on the northwest side of the city, has twin babies not quite 3 months old. The clinic doctor has instructed her to see that the infants have more fresh air, but the parents have no carriage and, since Mr. K. earns only a very small salary, no money with which to purchase one.

Mrs. L., on the north side, needs a baby bed for her 17 months old baby. The child is big for his age and wears a 3 year old size. Her husband earns a small salary and they are unable to purchase a large size bed for the child, and he is much too big for the tiny crib he formerly used.

Another mother who is unable to provide for her baby comes to us for help.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a widow with one child, 6 months old. My husband was killed an an accident and, since his death, I have been living with relatives. I have been unable to find employment and have had a hard time getting things for my baby. He now is at the age where he creeps and pulls himself up on things. He gets into everything and has burned himself several times on the stove.

"I have to hold him most of the time while he is awake to keep him out of things. If some reader has a play yard or a large crib it would be a big help to me. Then I could be sure that he cannot hurt himself while I am busy.—Mrs. S."

Marts to Open Doors for Huge Winter Show

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to furnish this small room so as to make it seem more spacious and attractive. Price 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

Tomorrow sees the opening of the huge winter furniture market at the Merchandise Mart and American Furniture Mart here, and at various showrooms in Grand Rapids, Mich. Thousands of retail dealers and buyers will arrive from cities and towns all over the country to see the new styles in home furnishings being displayed by the manufacturer. The exhibition will last until Jan. 21.

The selections made by buyers at this time will be seen later by their customers in their home towns. They'll lay in new supplies of living room, dining room, and bedroom furniture, as well as summer pieces for the sunroom, porch, and lawn. Gay umbrellas will be spread over rattan tables, chairs, and porch swings. There will be a whole new series of those comfortable rattan long chairs on wheels, and of large, low, round tables for summer beverages.

Style trends in indoor furniture indicate a continued emphasis on simplified, livable, modern [Swedish modern being the chief example], and on natural, light finishes. Buyers will see more of the "harvest," "sun tan," "wheat," and other beige and pale tan tones of walnut and mahogany.

At the other end of the color scale will be the old world mahogany and walnut finishes closely copying the dark, mellow patina of antiques. These, of course, will be seen on furniture of the Chippendale, Heppelwhite, Sheraton, Duncan Phyffe, and French 18th century schools.

The revival of French period furniture, both elaborate and simple, will continue at the January market. Retail dealers have found acceptance of this merchandise by the public, so they will keep on showing it, and will probably increase their supplies at this time.

Early American maple is growing more attractive at each market. Designers are paying more attention than ever before to accurate copying and adapting of genuine antiques. More than one manufacturer offers "documented" furniture, each chair, table, highboy, or lowboy having its own little pedigree.

Maple finishes, too, have greatly improved. The trend is toward the soft, mellow, light amber tones found in antiques rather than toward the heavy, rank, reddish brown finish seen for so many seasons. And emphasis is on slender, graceful, distinguished lines rather than on the peasant, "kitchen" type of maple furniture.

The new maple chairs and tables are made like mahogany and are every bit as aristocratic in appearance.

Again at this market manufacturers will show their furniture in attractive room settings, inspiring the retail store owner to go home and do likewise. One New England firm at the American Furniture Mart is, for example, coming out with nine new rooms of modern pieces. There will be three devoted to living room groupings, three to bedroom and three to dining room, featuring the designs of Leo Jiranek, Alfons Bach, and Sarah Shircliff.

This firm has a whole suite of early American maple rooms, as well, complete in every detail: wall paper, draperies, floor coverings, and accessories. These room settings offer many suggestions to stores, large and small, everywhere.

The Merchandise Mart reports that in color trends in upholstery fabrics pink, recently used only in prestige circles, has left this field to become more widely popular. In the prestige field it has been replaced by a rich, dark emerald. With the exception of pink, a general waning of interest in pastels is noted, with deeper, darker colors replacing them, the report continues.

New chintzes and linens for upholstered furniture reflect the heliotrope, purples, and wines seen this winter in women's wear.

Besides furniture the market will also show floor coverings, draperies, lamps, and accessories, kitchen equipment, and major appliances.

AT THE FURNITURE SHOW

Home Furnishings

Miss Weigle will be glad to answer questions about home furnishings and color schemes. If a personal reply is desired remember to send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your query.

Query: "A friend tells me I should put something on my dining room table instead of leaving it bare when not in use, but I don't know what to place there. Can you suggest anything besides a flower bowl and candle sticks?—Mrs. W. T."

Answer: A round or rectangular mirror glass on which is laid a lovely wax water lily, or one of the large sprays of stunning artificial waxy fruits now to be seen in the stores would solve your problem beautifully. Or a low bowl of decorative porcelain fruits would be attractive.

Query: "If I hang Venetian blinds in the living room must I have them in all the other rooms on the first floor? The living and dining room windows face the street.—G. M."

Answer: It presents a better appearance from the outside if the windows facing the street are uniform. Therefore, it would be best to use the blinds in both living and dining rooms. But you needn't have them in any other first floor room unless you wish.

Sewing Room Can Double as Extra Bedroom

How often you wish you had another room in your home for guests or for the children to play in, or to use for sewing! The difficulty may not be as great as you think, however.

Did you ever stop to consider fitting up one of your present rooms for dual purposes? A sewing room can be transformed easily into a guest room. One ingenious housewife has contrived just that. It would be just as easy to equip the room for children's play space, too.

The sewing room that does double duty for visitors contains, first of all, a double day bed, covered with washable navy blue cotton material. The deep ruffle is bright green. Cushions are covered with strips of the two colors, stitched together and mitered in the center. The window seat is covered in the same way.

Flanking a big window are cupboards with drawers below in which to keep the sewing equipment. Near the window is a table for work and for children's games, housing the sewing machine beneath it. A chair and a stool are covered with a colorfast, shrink-proof cotton material of a deep plum shade. The same material is used for the curtains.

All these fabrics were picked with a view to their washability. Cushion and chair covers are made snug with slide fasteners and come off readily for their periodic trips to the household washer and through the home ironer. It is easy to keep this attractive room looking spic-and-span.

If the design and size of such a room permit, it is possible to keep the ironer in it, used as a table betweentimes, or to store a flat-plate ironer in one of the cabinets. There is no reason for ironing to be done in unattractive quarters.

Color in Ceiling Should Repeat Tone in Scheme

This business of colored ceilings has a lot of women puzzled. Many of them want to avoid a plain white, yet hesitate over the choice of colors. Some decide on light blue although there may not be a single touch of that tone in any of the room's furnishings. Others vote for green, although again it is a color not present anywhere in draperies, rug, or upholsteries.

Tinted ceilings are attractive and are just as popular this season as they have been for some time past. But the color used should repeat some tone already in the room. It should be linked with the color scheme.

If walls, for example, are pale gray and draperies are yellow, then the ceiling can be a delicate yellow. Or if walls are beige and some of the furniture is upholstered in blue the ceiling can be a pale blue.

Another excellent treatment is simply to make the celing a tint of the side wall color, using just enough to relieve a dead white appearance.

WHY, JANE—HOW ON EARTH DID YOU GET YOUR CLOTHES SO MUCH WHITER THIS WEEK? DON'T TELL ME TOM FINALLY GOT YOU THAT NEW WASHER!
NEW WASHER NOTHING! IT'S JUST THAT I'M USING THAT NEW SOAP EVERYONE'S RAVING ABOUT—HIGH-TEST OXYDOL.

See How A Remarkable New Ingredient Also Makes New High-Test Oxydol Give Up to TWICE THE SUDS of Old-Fashioned Soaps—Keeps It Safe As Ever for Washable Colors and Hands

AMAZING NEW "NO-SCRUB" SOAP SETS WHOLE COUNTRY TALKING

NOW—a new triumph of science brings you a new-type "no-scrub" soap that amazes all who try it. For it contains a remarkable new ingredient that enables it to wash white clothes up to 15% whiter than old-fashioned types of soaps tested—yet keeps it SAFE for washable colors, fabrics and hands.

Called High-Test OXYDOL, it combines safety with whiter-washing in a way that's been sought by scientists for years. And, when tested against less efficient bar and package soaps, it does these astonishing things:—(1) Washes white clothes up to 15% whiter, as shown by standard Tintometer readings. (2) Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water—suds that stand up 2 to 3 times longer. Thus ending the need for constantly adding soap because suds "go flat" and "die down."

Washing machine owners are especially enthusiastic about new High-Test Oxydol. For it has the power to soak dirt loose while the washer is running—gives DOUBLE-ACTION wash. No need to waste so much of your time in rubbing out "extra dirty" spots by hand.

In tub washing—new High-Test Oxydol is extremely rapid in action. Soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. As a result, it ends those hours of tedious rubbing with old-fashioned soaps that shorten the life of your clothes.

In addition, new High-Test Oxydol is extremely economical. For a single cup of it goes up to ¼ again as far—does up to 25% more work than the same amount of old-style bar and package soaps.

So no matter what soap you've used in the past, get acquainted with the amazing new High-Test OXYDOL today! Once you try it we believe you'll never go back to less modern soaps again. At all dealers. Procter & Gamble.

Part 7 | Drama Music Education

JANUARY, 8, 1939

Below: This handsome, smiling youth is none other than Mickey Rooney. You'll soon be seeing him in "Out West with the Hardys."

Right: Paulette Goddard, who skyrocketed to fame, is currently appearing in two movies, "The Young in Heart" and "Dramatic School."

'The Sea Gull' with Lunt and Fontanne to Open Tomorrow

Chekhoff Play to Run 2 Weeks in the Erlanger

By Cecil Smith.

Departing from their usual orbit of faintly tainted smartness, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne begin tomorrow night a two week engagement at the Erlanger theater in Chekhoff's "The Sea Gull." The play is the fifth subscription item in the Theater Guild series.

This is neither the first "classic" nor the first Russian drama in which the Lunts have acted. Their single previous venture into dramatic literature from east of the Danube was Dostoevsky's "The Brothers Karamazoff," a Theater Guild production of more than a decade ago. Within the "classic" bracket fall Ben Johnson's "Volpone" and Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew"—and, if you care to stretch the already flexible adjective, three plays by George Bernard Shaw and two by Eugene O'Neill.

Anton Chekhoff's "The Sea Gull," the drama whose production originally made the reputation of the Moscow Art theater, is associated with the Theater Guild in a historic sense. Back in 1916 the Washington Square Players gave it with Helen Westley in Miss Fontanne's present rôle. The Washington Square Players, an outgrowth of the original Provincetown Players, formed the stock company that later grew into the more ambitious Theater Guild.

In the current production Mr. Lunt is to be seen as Boris Trigorin, a neurotic author. Miss Fontanne's rôle is that of Irina, a restless, hard, self-centered actress. From the magnificent cast of "Amphitryon 38" are drawn Richard Whorf, Sydney Greenstreet, Edith King, John Barclay, and several others. Uta Hagen comes on from New York to join the cast. The performance was directed by Robert Milton.

The new translation by Stark Young has won great acclaim, and is about to be published in book form by Scribners. After the New York opening of "The Sea Gull" Brooks Atkinson wrote:

"When Stark Young began to retranslate 'The Sea Gull,' arduously comparing the original Russian text with the translations already familiar here, he concluded that Chekhoff, the master of homely simplicity, had never been properly heard on our stage. Most of the translators, as though trying to protect Chekhoff from vulgarity, have tortured his sentences with circumlocutions and robbed him of a good many of the antiphonal devices a playwright uses for audible emphasis; and none of them produced an actor's version. Mr. Young has produced a version that is clear, brisk, and simple and that leaves an impression of mental alertness in the theater."

The Pabst theater in Milwaukee was a spot of great interest last week, as Richard Aldrich and Richard Myers presented tryout performances of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." This revival of Wilde's "trivial comedy for serious people" is an almost inevitable result of the phenomenal Broadway success of Leslie and Sewell Stokes' new play entitled "Oscar Wilde." Since Lord Alfred Douglas, at one point in the play, refers to "The Importance of Being Earnest" as the greatest comedy since Shakespeare, it was natural that some alert producer would take the cue and restore it to the stage during the present Wilde enthusiasm.

Even the deft offices of Clifton Webb, Estelle Winwood, Hope Williams, and a brace of other experts hardly justify Lord Alfred's tribute in the minds of the present generation. But the comedy does turn into a rollicking romp, once the endless epigrammatic chatter of the first act is put behind. Watson Barratt's stylized Victorian settings are a delight, especially two green backdrops that look like a landscape architect's professionalized rendering of formal gardens. A New York première is slated for Jan. 12. A later Chicago engagement is, as things now stand, the merest possibility off in some dim future. No use looking ahead as far as that in these uncertain times.

Another pre-Broadway tryout promised to Milwaukee and not, as yet, to Chicago is "Angela is Twenty-Two," with the novelist Sinclair Lewis as author and leading man. The Davidson theater will house the play for three days, from Thursday to Saturday of this week.

Lest you think Milwaukee the only center of midwestern theatrical activity, and become justifiably jealous if its ability to attract plays we should like to see here and are not allowed to, I suggest that you turn your attention to the good things right here at home.

Just a week off—next Sunday evening at the Harris theater—is the opening of Clare Boothe's "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." As was reported in this column last week, the newest shafts of the author of "The Women" are aimed at a story paralleling the motion picture moguls' search for a Scarlett O'Hara for "Gone With the Wind." To be sure, Miss Boothe calls her "Velvet O'Toole," but nobody need be fooled by the shift. In addition to Lucia Lull, Brock Pemberton's discovery from Wetumpka, Ala., for the leading rôle, the cast includes Coburn Goodwin, Ruth Abbott, Alan Handley, Roy Roberts, and Houston Richards.

IN CHEKHOFF REVIVAL

In the Lunt and Fontanne revival of "The Sea Gull," Sydney Greenstreet will be the old and regretful Sorin.

Notes of Music and Musicians

On Tuesday night the Woman's Symphony orchestra will play the last of its three major concerts for the season in the Auditorium theater. Izler Solomon returns as guest conductor for the occasion, while the soloist will be Winifred Christie, noted pianist, who uses the Moor double keyboard piano. The program includes the following numbers:

Overture, "Le Baruffe Chiozzotte" .... Sinigaglia
Concerto No. 1, B Flat Minor, for piano and orchestra .... Tschaikowsky Winifred Christie.
Chorale-Prelude, "When We Are in Sore Distress" .... Bach
Enigma Variations .... Elgar
Rumanian Rhapsody, No. 1 .... Enesco

Guila Bustabo, technically a Chicago violinist because her family lives here, will be soloist this afternoon with the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra of New York. John Barbirolli is to conduct. Miss Bustabo will appear with the same organization at next Saturday morning's children's concert under the baton of Ernest Schelling. The young violinist was born in Manitowoc, Wis., but spent much of her childhood in Chicago. For the last several years concert tours have kept her far from home most of the time.

Continuing its varied musical arts concert series, the Adult council brings the Gordon String quartet to Orchestra hall on Saturday night. Headed by a former concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Jacques Gordon, the quartet has played several times in various Coolidge festivals of chamber music, and for these services Mr. Gordon recently was awarded a congressional medal for "highest achievement in chamber music" by Mrs. Coolidge. The other members of the quartet are David Sackson, violinist; William Lincer, violist, and Naoum Benditzky, cellist. A well rounded program lists the following works:

Quartet, F major [Köchel 590] .... Mozart
Quartet, No. 7, B-flat .... Milhaud
Quartet, opus 41, No. 3, A major .... Schumann

The popular star of two Jewish talking pictures, Moishe Oysher, will give a program in person tonight at the Auditorium theater. Florence Weiss, who starred with Mr. Oysher in these two films, "The Cantor's Son" and "The Singing Blacksmith," will also appear, and Harry Sukman, pianist, will contribute two numbers to the program. Most of Mr. Oysher's and Miss Weiss' material includes traditional Jewish songs; however, the former makes two excursions into conventional opera, singing the two famous baritone arias from "The Barber of Seville" and "La Traviata."

Vytautas Finadar Beliajus, a Lithuanian dancer, will offer a program of wide variety at the Woman's Club theater on Monday night. Three groups will be given—one each of Hassidic, Lithuanian, and oriental dances. Mr. Beliajus uses folk music for his compositions, with a smattering of contemporary pieces thrown in.

Harry Zelzer, concert manager, announces that the Nelson Eddy recital will take place on March 4 in the Civic Opera house. Tickets will go on sale on Jan. 23.

Rehersals for the annual Northwestern University May festival will begin on Monday, Jan. 9, at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Hinman and Church streets, Evanston. Application is open to any one and should be made on rehersal nights—Monday and Wednesday. The entire supervision and direction of the chorus will be under Dr. Frederick Stock and Mr. Hans Lange, the conductors of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

In Orchestra hall the Central Church choir's selections this morning will be by Protheroe, Mendelssohn and Huhn. William Hughes directs, with Archer Lambuth, organist, supplying solos by Fletcher, Dubois, and Bach. In the same hall in the evening the Sunday Evening Club choir under Edgar Nelson will sing popular anthems by Martin, Stevenson, Gounod and Philo Otis, a Chicagoan. Stanley Martin supplies a short organ recital prior to the service.

No Outstanding Plays Found in New Year List

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We enter the new year with a varied list of new plays, though none of them, I greatly regret to report, is outstanding. The Christmas week list, in fact, was pretty disappointing, for all there were plays of fine promise among them.

One, for example, was Alan Sundgaard's American allegory called "Everywhere I Roam." Using the Federal WPA theater's living newspaper technique, Mr. Sundgaard has evolved a story of the farm from the days of the settling of the west to the crash of 1929. Marc Connelly has been working with "Everywhere I Roam" for many weeks and has helped with the rewriting of some of it. We had been hoping it would prove, as the advertisments declare, "a cavalcade of American farm life from 1833 to 1929," and exciting.

It does have its exciting moments, as a matter of truth, and moments of striking beauty as well, mostly in dance interludes. But in sum total it is drawn out and tiresome and the message is lightly befogged, as so often happens with allegories.

Mr. Sundgaard, who was the author of a forthright propaganda number called "Spirochete," produced by the Chicago branch of the federal theater, sees, in terms of the farm, the decline and fall of the America that ended a particular phase of its speculative existence in the crash of 1929.

First there was the land and strong young pioneers moved west to inhabit and cultivate it. They were happy then, and busy. They broke into song and into exalted dances to attest their thankfulness for life and the good earth.

Then they were pursued by progress. Jim [who might have been Hill] and Jay [who might have been Gould] and Cyrus [who was undoubtedly McCormick] moved west after them. Cyrus was friendly and helpful, aiding them to reap their grain the easier way so they might have more time to play. But Jim and Jay were schemers who built railroads and sold stock. Soon the people had bought the stock and sold their grain and gone to live in towns, where they acquired expensive habits. They forgot the early days, and their first joy in the land. They forgot old Johnny Appleseed, too, and all the simple things Johnny stood for.

Came the Danes, and the Swedes, and the Norwegians to do the work and the people began to slip spiritually until, finally, on a day in what we suspect was 1929, there was a great banquet at which Jim and Jay gorged and gorged and were to start a selling campaign that might remind you of the Insull boom. An explosion followed this feast. Everything blew up, including Jim and Jay. Which started a return to the farm movement.

Pretty stories may be read into any well outlined allegory. But as entertainment they prove pretty tiresome to me, after the first half hour. "Everywhere I Roam" is blessed with some fine ballets, directed by Felicia Sorel, many fine scenes by Robert Edmond Jones, and several excellent performances. Sturdy pioneers are represented by Dean Jagger and Katherine Emery. Robert Porterfield was the Cyrus, Paul Huber the Jim, Arthur Barnett the Jay, Norman Lloyd the Johnny Appleseed.

There was disappointment, too, following the production of Thornton Wilder's "The Merchant of Yonkers." We had a right to expect something novel and fine from the author of "Our Town," or thought we had. We did get a bit of novelty, but not enough to save the old German farce which is the foundation of Mr. Wilder's "The Merchant."

This one was produced by Max Reinhardt, which leads me to the conviction that Mr. Wilder's association with the play is largely that of a friendly adapter. I venture Mr. Reinhardt brought the property to this country, and turned it over to Mr. Wilder in the hope that the American moralist would add distinction to its text and body to its story.

Consider, for the moment, the situation as we, the people, find it: An old-time farce adapted by the author of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and "Our Town," directed by the master of "The Miracle" and "The Eternal Road," produced by the showman [Herman Shumlin], who made his name with "The Last Mile" and "The Children's Hour," and sponsored by the once high and particular Theater Guild!

If there isn't a series of contrasts I never heard of one. Gentlemen who have made their names and plainly indicated their gifts for the staging of serious and tragic themes toying with the flimsiest of farce and wondering why they miss success with it!

The bright item concerned with "The Merchant of Yonkers" is the presence of Jane Cowl in the leading rôle. The merchant of this title [Percy Waram] is a stingy old early New Yorker living in Yonkers and determined to marry a New York milliner [June Walker]. Jane is the go-between.

When the merchant goes to New York to court the milliner two of his rebellious clerks follow after. They are looking for a spree. Jane goes along as a conspiring bystander. They all meet in a gay restaurant. The merchant is discovered. The employés are exposed. The milliner's eyes are opened and Jane marries the merchant. Miss Cowl is playing in her best comedy form.

After which I may tell you that we had a third disappointment in the production of a piece called "Bright Rebel." This is a biographical drama about Lord Byron, written by Stanley Young, whose poetic "Robin Landing" was a distinguished failure last season.

"Bright Rebel" has been threatened with production many times, but there was some trouble finding a handsome romantic capable of playing and looking the part. John Cromwell finally was chosen. Cromwell is an attractive boy, with an engaging smile and some helpful stage experience. He has understudied Maurice Evans as Romeo [with Katharine Cornell] and John Gielgud as Hamlet. He played a bit successfully in Cornell's "St. Joan." His father, the late Seymour Cromwell, was at one time a president of the New York Stock exchange, and I should not be surprised to learn that some of father's old buddies helped finance "Bright Rebel."

The story reveals a Byron capable of the plastic poses for which the poet was famous, but modest as to his love affairs. Women adore him, but in the play he is concerned with but three—his half-sister, Augusta, the only human who ever sympathetically understood him; Annabelle, whom he married for the adventure and suffered the expected domestic unhappiness, and Lady Caroline Lamb, whom he spurned. Sensitive to the hurt of the scandal that pursued his love of his sister, embittered by his domestic affairs, disgusted by the attitude of his government toward the poor and exploited workers, Byron finally runs away to fight for the Greeks and dies theatrically in camp.

The play is episodical, and the transitions are not convincing. The performances, aside from that of young Cromwell, are only so-so.

Entertain at Tribune Banquet

Stars of the stage and radio displayed their talents in song, dance, and comedy at the annual banquet of THE TRIBUNE's advertising department in the Drake hotel Thursday night.

The master of ceremonies was Bill Dornfield, a show in himself. Music was furnished by Al Trace and his melodic orchestra.

The Eight Jitterbugs, Edna Sedgwick, Jean Mona, and Pat Rooney Sr. were the dancing headliners. The Jitterbugs gave a rhythmic idea of what swing is. Rooney gave one of his inimitable performances. Miss Sedgwick and Miss Mona presented unusual and beautiful interpretations.

Singing in variety came from the three Murtah sisters, Eddie White, Everett West, Lee Bartel, Phil Culkin, Holly Swanson, and Frankie Raymond. White mixed comedy with his songs, as did Swanson and Raymond. More comedy was furnished by Cass Daley, Joan Davis, and Johnnie Burke. Then, too, there were Alene and Evans, balancers; Si Willis, and finally, the veteran master of ceremonies, Joe Lewis.

Wayne King's Music Soothes Drake Diners

The Drake hotel's Gold Coast room has settled down to a restful session of Wayne King's soothing music. King, returning from Hollywood, opened on New Year's eve before a record-breaking crowd of close to 1,100. The waltz king's music is surprising. Diners like it because it doesn't interfere with conversation, yet suddenly they realize that an insistent bit of swing is being played.

The floor show booked for the first week was in direct contrast with King's swing. Two acrobatic numbers—both entertaining—took the show out of the usual Gold Coast room class. Alene and Evans demonstrate a remarkable bit of control acrobatics, and the Reddingtons have a lot of fun on a trampoline. If you ever liked to bounce high off the springs of your bed you get an inkling of the Reddington routine.

Star of the show is Edna Sedgewick, a pert little ballerina who has been crashing the movies of late. Edna's toe numbers are lovely, but her "American Bolero" tap and other fast numbers are what lift her act far above the ordinary.

Fully deserving the rank of co-stars are the Murtah sisters, three of the most surprising singers in the business. Able artists, they suddenly throw their act into comedy gear with clowning and grimacing that is reminiscent of the Ritz brothers. Honors must go to Kate Ellen, tall and low voiced, who climaxes the act by reaching a note low enough to feel at home in Chicago's new subway.

One hardly associates acrobats with the Palmer House, but the current floor show in the Empire room loses none of its Orrin Tucker inspired suavity for the presence of three muscular men called the Titans. The Titans have one of the most dignified and gracious sets of tendons in show business and are so gracefully gigantic that they have literally muscled themselves into popular favor with the Empire room clientèle. The Titans are the newest feature on a bill that continues the charming dance interpretations of Gower and Jean, the solo dancing of Beverly Allen and Gertrude Simmons, and the ensemble numbers of the Merriel Abbott dancers. The show is rounded out by band specialties, tops of which are the singing of the Bailey sisters and of Bonnie Baker.

Ol' Miss' has sent one of her favorite sons to Chicago's north side, and most every one around the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel has fallen hard for the drawling music of Herbie Holmes. Opening New Year's eve, Holmes scored under the usual holiday difficulties, and continues to keep up the pace he set. Nancy Hutson and Billy Reeves are two more from the "you-all" regions, who sing for their suppers and are underpaid if they get less than filet mignon every night. The three Rythm Rebels are right up front in the vocal field, too.

The Marine room floor shows continue on the high level established long ago, featuring Ted and Mary Taft, well known to Chicago dance lovers; Novak and Saye, and Harriet Smith's lovely ladies.

Double features graduate from movie theaters to ballrooms next week-end when Dick Jurgens and his band will welcome the competition of Ina Ray Hutton and her Melodears at the Aragon. The Hutton-Jurgens combination will be on hand Saturday night, Sunday afternoon, and Sunday evening. At the same time Griff Williams and his band continue at the south side Trianon. Both ballrooms will carry on their Sunday matinée schedules this year—the Trianon from 5:30 to 12:30 and the Aragon from 3 until half after midnight.

A lot of night club masters of ceremonies inject themselves into the floor show at every possible moment, but rare is the one who does it without clogging the pace and hurting his own effectiveness. Milton Berle is one of the rarities. The Chez Paree star pours his molten comedy over the whole floor show, filling every little crevice with Berle humor, and the effect is to speed the pace of the show rather than retard it. Berle learned this trick while conducting vaudeville units around the country. Too many times there were gaps that left the audience yawning and Berle formed the habit of filling in. He's an expert yawn stifler.

Today Most Fantastically Crowded Date of Music Season

Grace Moore Performance to Be Climax

By Edward Barry.

Many months ago several of the people who plan music schedules sat down with their calendars and decided that the first Sunday after New Year's would be a good day for a performance. The result is that Jan. 8 is the most fantastically crowded date of the entire local music season.

This afternoon two recitals by top notch soloists compete with three symphony orchestra concerts. In the evening comes a gala Grace Moore performance at the opera. In addition there are other events which are of great interest to special groups and which are treated elsewhere in this section.

The two recitalists are Myra Hess, English pianist, and Beniamino Gigli, Italian tenor. The Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, and the Illinois Symphony orchestra fill the afternoon with symphonic music. The evening opera is "La Bohême."

Miss Hess, one of the most delicate and finished of all living pianists, offers her Studebaker theater audience a program consisting of a Bach Toccata, Sonatas by Schubert and Beethoven, and a Waltz, Nocturne, and Scherzo of Chopin. Her choice from among Beethoven's works is especially interesting, for it is nothing less than the early "Pathetique" sonata, so badly overplayed by students that recitalists have long been in the habit of letting it severely alone. Aside from the dramatic first movement, this sonata is a serenely lovely work, and Miss Hess' skill may well restore it to its original beauty.

One of Myra Hess' competitors this afternoon will be a man who was born the same year [1890] but whose career has been radically different. He is the great Italian tenor, Beniamino Gigli, and he will be dispensing today to a Civic Opera house audience a program drawn from divers sources. There are operatic airs, groups of lyric songs which are predominantly, though not exclusively, Italian, and some Neapolitan folk tunes. The assisting artist is Goodwin Sammel, pianist, whose contributions to the program consist of pieces by Medtner and Liszt. Rainaldo Zamboni will accompany the tenor.

This is Mr. Gigli's last Chicago appearance of the season. He made his operatic debut here last fall in "Martha" and achieved a sensational success. There followed presentations of "Aïda" and "Andrea Chenier" with the celebrated tenor in the principal male rôles. This present American venture is Mr. Gigli's first since 1932. In that year he resigned from the Metropolitan opera of New York after twelve years of service. A much publicized dispute with Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the Metropolitan's director, was the cause.

At the Auditorium theater today the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, under Fabien Sevitzky, will play the "Roman Carnival" overture of Berlioz, Dubensky's Fugue for eighteen violins, excerpts from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," and the Tschaikowsky Fifth symphony.

Organized in 1929 as a partly amateur local group, the Indianapolis orchestra advanced to full professional standing in 1936. Mr. Sevitzky's appearance as guest conductor so excited the city that he was offered the post of permanent conductor. The orchestra which this young Russian directs consists now of eighty-five musicians.

Today's concert of the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra is sponsored by the University college of Northwestern university as a part of its history and enjoyment of music series.

With Frank Bishop, American pianist, playing the solo part of the Rachmaninoff Second concerto, the Civic Orchestra of Chicago offers in Orchestra hall today the first concert of its new season. This organization is a training school for orchestral players and is directed by Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The program promises, in addition to the Rachmaninoff, the overture to Wagner's "Rienzi," Delius' "In a Summer Garden," and Felix Borowski's E minor symphony. Mr. Borowski is a resident composer, critic, and teacher. Every one knows his admirable Chicago Symphony orchestra program notes. Mr. Borowski, by the way, has a difficult feat of bi-location to perform today. As a Northwestern university professor he should certainly be at the Auditorium, where his school is sponsoring the Indianapolis orchestra's concert. As a composer, he should just as certainly be at Orchestra hall.

Daniel Saidenberg, director of the Saidenberg symphonietta and a solo and ensemble cellist of note, comes to the Great Northern theater today to serve as guest conductor of the Illinois Symphony orchestra. His startlingly original program consists of Beethoven's "King Stephen" overture, a "Hunting" symphony by Leopold Mozart [Wolfgang's father], "A Tall Story" by Jerome Moross, the ballet suite "Rebus" of Igor Markevitch, and the A major concerto [piano and orchestra] of Bach. The soloist in the last named work will be Mae Doelling Schmidt, resident pianist whose honors have included an appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Relegated to the end of this story because of her place in the time scheme [evening rather than afternoon], Grace Moore will rank with countless thousands as the most important figure of this crowded January 8. Recently returned from France where she has been working in a filming of the opera "Louise," the beloved American soprano will repeat at the Civic Opera house tonight her successful Mimi of last season. Supporting her in this post-season mounting of Puccini's "La Bohême" are Armand Tokatyan [Rudolfo], George Czaplicki [Marcello], Nino Ruisi [Colline], Reinhold Schmidt [Schaunard], Annunciata Garrotto [Musetta], Vittorio Trevisan [Alcindore and Benoit], Giuseppe Cavadore [Parpignol], and Ben Landsman [the Sergeant]. Roberto Moranzoni will conduct and Giuseppe Cavadore serve as stage director.

The second and last of these post-season Grace Moore performances of the Chicago City Opera company is scheduled for next Sunday evening. The opera on that occasion will be Massenet's "Manon."

IN RECITAL TODAY

Myra Hess gives her annual Chicago recital today at the Studebaker theater. Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, and Chopin are listed on her program.

Scarlett Again

The Crosby Music Company, Ltd., is looking for a song using "Scarlet O'Hara" for the title and subject matter, Miss O'Hara being the tempestuous heroine of the best selling "Gone with the Wind." If a worthy song is found, publication will immediately follow, the writer or writers receiving the standard composer's contract and usual rate of royalty paid on sheet music, record sales, and performance rights. Manuscripts should be sent to the company, Suite 604, 935 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

Symphony Will Offer Mahler's 'Song of Earth'

By Cecil Smith.

Gustav Mahler's "The Song of the Earth" will be performed, apparently for the first time in Chicago, in Orchestra hall this week. At the Chicago Symphony orchestra concerts Tuesday and Friday afternoons and Thursday evening Dr. Frederick Stock will conduct, and the extensive solo parts will be sung by Enid Szantho, contralto, and Charles Kullman, tenor.

Twenty-eight years after his death Mahler still remains one of the principal enigmas of modern music. It cannot be said fairly that his music has yet achieved a fair assessment by the American public, largely because it is seldom played. The ten symphonies—among which "The Song of the Earth" is not numbered, despite its symphonic proportions—constitute, along with the symphonies of Anton Bruckner, the largest bulk of still unassimilated German music. Here in Chicago our resident orchestra has performed only four of the Mahler symphonies in 47 long years.

During the last portion of his relatively short life [he died in 1911, at 51], Mahler achieved no small celebrity on this side of the Atlantic. But is was as conductor, not as composer, that he was chiefly admired. After bringing great glory to the Vienna State Opera during his directorship, he came to New York in 1908 as conductor of the Metropolitan Opera. The following year he was appointed director of the New York Philharmonic society. A remarkable career in this country was barely begun when he was carried off by inflammation of the lungs in the spring of 1911.

His operatic performances in New York are still remembered by old timers, and compared with the later ones of Toscanini. Mahler bore somewhat the same authoritative relation toward the German répertoire as Toscanini toward the Italian.

Today it is an ironic fact that Mahler's music is barred from performance in Germany, the one country in which it has always been wholeheartedly admired. In America it has always seemed almost too locally German, too intimately connected with German folk music on the one hand and the bombastic post-romantic German orchestra on the other, to make a completely cosmopolitan appeal.

Infrequent though they have been, each of the successive performances of Mahler's music in Chicago has revealed new qualities worthy of admiration. Admittedly it is badly organized, on the whole, and overlong. It has a tendency to be diffuse, and sometimes to imply philosophic overtones which we cannot catch. Yet it is full of melodic beauty, of harmonic subtlety, of charming instrumental color, and we are beginning to wonder whether we may not have been wilfully overlooking something genuinely attractive.

"The Song of the Earth" is six movements, none of which are in orthodox symphonic form. In addition to a large orchestra, a contralto and a tenor voice are heard in alternation. The texts of the vocal portions are all drawn from a collection of Chinese lyric poems, "The Chinese Flute" ["Die Chinenische Flöte"], selected from various sources and translated into German by Hans Zethge.

All seven of the poems used by Mahler in "The Song of the Earth" date from the year 800, or earlier. A common theme runs through the cycle—disillusionment with the world and a desire to withdraw from it into a realm of higher happiness. The closing lines of "The Farewell," the last poem of the cycle, give a clew to the philosophic message of the whole symphony [the translation is by Philip H. Goepp]:

"O friend, fate in this world was never kind to me.
Where do I go? I wander to the mountains.
Rest I am seeking for my lonely heart.
I'm going to my home, my own
abode;
Shall never roam again in foreign regions.
Still is my heart and waits its final hour.
The lovely earth blooms everywhere
Afresh with springtime's verdure.
Eternally and all about
The distant skies are shining blue,
Eternally."

Not all the poems are of quite so serious a cast, however. "The Drunkard in Springtime" is in boisterous vein:

"And when no longer I can drink—
Full to the throat am I—
I'll tumble to my bedroom door
And sleep in ecstasy.

. . . .

For what care I for tales of spring?
O! Let me drunken be!"

The vocal movements, in reality extended songs, will be intrusted to Enid Szantho and Charles Kullman in this week's performances. Miss Szantho, former leading contralto of the Vienna State Opera, has never sung in Chicago. Mr. Kullman, absent from this city since his days long ago with the American Opera company, is now a prominent tenor of the Metropolitan Opera association.

In all three programs Dr. Stock will precede the Mahler work with Weber's Overture to "Abu Hassan" and Mozart's Symphony in G minor.

Louisville Host to Educators from Over U. S.

By the Rev. John Evans.

Louisville tomorrow will become the liberal arts college capital of the country when that Kentucky city is the host, at the Brown hotel, to a group of conventions devoted to college interests.

Teachers and students all over the country are vitally concerned in what takes place this week at Louisville because the leaders foregathering there are responsible for the educational welfare of approximately 50 per cent of the entire college youth in America, the rest being taken care of by tax supported higher education.

A Christian education massmeeting tonight will open the program of the 26th annual convention of the National Lutheran Educational conference. There will meet concurrently during the week the National Conference of Church Related Colleges, the Assocation of American Colleges, the Association of Colleges of Congregational and Christian affiliation, and the 28th annual meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education.

Dr. Gould Wickey of Washington, D. C., executive director of the National Council of Church Related Colleges, will be the speaker at tonight's massmeeting. The opening session of the Lutheran group will be held tomorrow morning and the president's address, "Lutheran Ideals of Democracy," will be given by Dr. C. M. Granskow, president of Augustana college, Sioux Falls, S. D. This will be followed by a panel discussion on "How to Achieve Greater Solidarity in Lutheran Higher Education in America," led by Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital university, Columbus, O.

The afternoon session will be presided over by Dr. J. N. Brown, president of Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn., and it will consist of a round table discussion on "The Challenge of the New Social Order to the Christian College," proposed by Dr. R. G. Schulz, president of Carthage college, Carthage, Ill. Next, Dr. M. J. Neuberg, professor of education at Wittenberg college, will present the report of the research committee on problems of personnel work in Lutheran colleges.

"Spiritual Resources and Obligations of Christian Higher Education" is the theme of the 28th meeting of Church Boards of Education. Dr. Henry H. Sweets, general secretary of the executive committee of Christian education and ministerial relief for the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, will preside, and following his address on this topic a series of councils for "Such a Day as This" will be presented. The council on service to pastors and students will be given by Harry T. Stock of the Congregational-Christian church, and that on service to colleges by Charles P. Proudfit of the United Presbyterian church in North America.

"SYMPHONIA DOMESTICA"
by
RICHARD STRAUSS
A new Victor Higher Fidelity Recording by the PHILADELPHIA ORCHESTRA
Eugene Ormandy Conductor

"At Home with the Strauss's" might be the sub-title of the charming music which is January's Victor Musical Masterpiece of the Month. Strauss uses his brilliant mastery of orchestral technique to its fullest to set forth the simple joys and wholesome pleasures of a happy household in this partly lyrical, partly humorous tone poem. The Symphony, dedicated to "my dear wife and our boy," deals tenderly but realistically with a day and night of cheerful home life . . . the affectionate parents; the child at play, at bath and at bedtime; and other domestic events. Mr. Ormandy and the great Philadelphia Orchestra give this work a performance as fresh and vital as its world premiere at Carnegie Hall under the direction of Strauss himself. A serious gap in the recorded work of Strauss is filled by this Album, M-520 (AM-520 for automatic operation) 10 sides. $10.00

Listen to the Victor Red Seal Program "The Music You Want." Broadcast every night but Saturday over Station WENR. From 11:15 to Midnight.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

In this picture the sun shines bright on a pair of old Kentucky homes of seventy-five years ago and the present time, and on a feud which lasts all that time between two fine old families—the Dillons and the Goodwins, both owners and lovers of splendid strings of race horses.

At the beginning of the war it had been the lot of a Dillon, whose sympathies were with the rebels, to confiscate under government order the Goodwin horses—and to kill a Goodwin when he had drawn his gun in an attempt to prevent the horses from being taken. . . .

The war over—the feud continues. . . . And now a Dillon, who is a banker, is forced to refuse a loan to a Goodwin, who dies of shock and whose home and stables are sold at auction. . . . But youth is not so unforgiving as age and the love of a Dillon son and a Goodwin daughter for one another finally succeeds in erasing the bitterness of years.

"Kentucky" is all in lovely technicolor that shows up richly the sleek coats of thoroughbreds, the pleasant countryside, the smiling skies, and the varied hues of costumes and settings. The not remarkable story is delineated by such fine actors in so pleasing a manner that it is consistently interesting and there's a horse race that's a humdinger.

Walter Brennan's portrayal of peppery horsewise Peter Goodwin is the film's outstanding characterization. He does a grand job as the lovable, maddening old fellow who dies—as he would have wished—at the moment of his greatest triumph. Richard Greene, that touted combination of Tyrone Power and Robert Taylor, will win all the ladies' hearts as the gallant young Dillon, while the men will like the Goodwin girl as played by Loretta Young—though they may weary a bit of her too often reiterated "DAH-ling!" Other rôles are in the best of hands.

The tale unfolds to the tune of some suspense and has an all around ingratiating finale.

I think you'll like "Kentucky." Hope so!

See you tomorrow.

Swiss Concerts.

Two orchestras are keeping Switzerland supplied with concerts this season—the Orchestra Romand and the Tonhalle orchestra. The former under Ernest Ansermet, with Fritz Busch, Erich Kleiber, Franz von Hoesslin, and D. E. Enghelbrecht as guest conductors, is giving twelve programs in Geneva and ten at Lausanne. The second, directed by Dr. Volkmar Andreae, is offering ten subscription concerts, six folk symphony concerts and six youth concerts to the populace of Zurich.

IN FRENCH FILM

Jacqueline Delubac plays the feminine lead in the film, "The Story of a Cheat," now unreeling on the screen at the World Playhouse.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE

By Rupert Hughes

No eloquence, no plea could equal that pitifully beautiful prayer of sleep.

CONCLUSION

(Copyright: 1938: By Rupert Hughes.)

THE problem of meals was the chief delirium tormenting the boys. Ned solved it partly by stealing out to a grocery and buying cheese, crackers, chocolates, and various other articles that he could conceal about his clothes and smuggle into the attic, which was now the citadel of the spies.

The theft of bottles of milk caused trouble in the kitchen, but it helped to sustain the strength of the alternate prisoners. They were not master minds and had no power to back up their plans. They were frightened to their marrows lest the adult world should conspire to separate them.

Life was full of ambushes and pitfalls. They understood why people invented theaters and moving pictures and novels, fairy stories, and other devices for improving on fact. The boys had seen many pictures in which the same actor or actress played two parts. They called it "double exposure."

But in real life a double exposure was what Ted and Ned were most afraid of. Ned had seen a play or two of Shakespeare's in which a twin boy and girl deceived everybody by just changing clothes. Rosalind fooled her own lover by putting on tights.

Ned had read stories, too, in which women hoodwinked their own husbands by wearing wigs. A man could disguise himself completely by shaving a beard or growing one. Perhaps Ned and Ted might have done wonders with beards. But theirs had not yet begun to transpire as the first fuzz.

They would have loved to acquire costumes exactly alike so that they could do the fascinating things doubles did in stories and pictures. But they had only one suit of a kind and no money to get another.

Ned knew that Clinton Buell was a very just man, a little too just for comfort. He was ready to put his daughter's husband in the penitentiary in the cause of honesty. What would he do to Ted and to Ted's foster parents, who had bad records and were "wanted" in several states and distinctly not wanted in several others?

Everything had happened too suddenly. Events had fallen on Ned like a snowslide from a roof. He was buried in wonder. Yesterday he had not known he had a brother. Today his brother was dearer to him than all the rest of the world. His brother was a wrong one, but that was all the more reason for Ned's clinging to him.

DAYS and nights passed in a game of hide-and-seek, of strange noises in the attic. Ned would appear where he could not possibly be, yet most positively was. He changed clothes with inconceivable rapidity. His voice, his mannerisms shuttled back and forth between the two halves of his "split personality."

The whole family, servants included, believed that Ned was a little insane but getting better. Also they began to be convinced that the whole family was altogether insane and getting worse; the home should be labeled a madhouse.

Clinton was so busy now that he rarely came home, and then for the briefest dashes. Unable to get at him in the house, Ned decided to go to the office, tell all, and throw himself and Ted on Clinton's mercy.

The office was another madhouse. Ned found a queue of callers outside the door, all the seats in the waiting room were filled, and there was standing room only for office seekers and politicians waiting their turn at the ear of the governor elect.

Determined to end the unendurable suspense and the danger of discovery, Ned squirmed through applicants as through a crowded thicket of trees. While the secretary who guarded his father's peace was trying to pacify the impatient and the indignant, Ned softly opened the sacred door, oozed through, and closed it as softly.

Clinton was standing by the window with Gilbert Easton. Both their backs were turned to Ned and their eyes on the snow-piled roofs of the factory buildings. Ned overheard the last of what must have been a long and earnest conference. Easton was saying:

"In a few words, then, your proposition, as I understand it, is for me to turn over to you all my bonds and properties of every kind, including the deed to the new house. You and your lawyers then dissolve my companies and liquidate their debts. That leaves me a pauper, but you give me a job in the factory and let Edie and me live in your house while you are at the capital. Do I get you?"

"You get me. Do I get you?"

"The alternative is——"

"There is no alternative, unless you call ruin and the penitentiary an alternative. You lose all you've got either way. Your choice is: First, you will live in my house and work in my factory for a modest salary to begin with, and as big a future as you want to make for yourself; or, second, you live in the penitentiary and work for the state for nothing."

Easton had been so shattered by Ben Roat's appearance and by Ned's appearance that he could fight no longer. He said:

"Those are hard words, governor, but—O, hell—I accept your offer."

The men struck hands. Clinton was so happy he embraced his son-in-law. Glancing over the governor's shoulder, Easton saw Ned. It was uncanny. He gasped:

"O, my God!"

"O, my head!" Ned mocked him with Ted's byword.

Clinton did not smile, though he was happy in his victory over the sleek and agile Easton. It meant everything to his daughter Edith and to his grandchild on the way. Margaret would have her marriage. The governor could fight the state's crooked citizens without starting his crusade by crushing one of his own family.

When he saw Ned he was patiently polite, but Ned simply mumbled:

"I'm afraid you're busy."

"I'm afraid I am."

"I'll see you at home."

"I'll be coming in late."

"I'll be up."

But he was not. He and Ted, after a day of brain-beating, had gone to sleep early with the door locked. Waking now and then, Ned would go to the door to listen for Clinton's voice. Not hearing it, he would creep back into his slumbers. The last time he forgot to lock the door.

• • •

WHEN Lucy went in to see if Ned had kicked off his covers she found the lights on full, but—— She staggered and rubbed her eyes.

There in the bed was Ned—but twice! There were two Neds!

On their faces there was all the beauty and innocence of youth that sleeps untroubled and unfretted and content. She smiled. Her heart overflowed with motherhood. The problems that were driving the family rapidly mad were all solved at once—at least, after the fashion of the solution of human problems, they were changed into other and perhaps more and more difficult problems.

A flood of warm laughter gushed up from Lucy's heart, and she had to hurry from the room to free it without waking the slumberers.

Clinton, coming in worn and dreary, found her leaning on the banisters, clinging to them and threatening to laugh herself down the stairs. He ran up to her in alarm. She beckoned him to follow in silence and led him to the open door of Ned's room.

He looked in. She dragged him out before his gasp could wake the boys. He peered in for another long look, then closed the door softly and went with Lucy to their room. The fog of mystery and madness that filled the house had suddenly vanished. The incredible contradictions were explained at a glance. They guessed many things wrong, but enough right to put the case before them.

No eloquence, no plea could equal that pitifully beautiful prayer of sleep.

IN THE morning they told the rest of the family, and at breakfast Ted, who came down alone, was put through a brief torture. He was held prisoner while a long search for Ned was made. They found him in the attic and dragged him down to stand by his brother.

For a moment the twins were left to sweat in dismay. Then laughter ran round the table and their shame was turned to sweet confusion as each of the family hugged and kissed them. Even Easton gave each of them a hand. And Pickens dropped a plate.

Clinton stood between the boys and joined their hands, saying:

"We have two sons now in our home, but we'll have to change your names from Ned and Ted to Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

Ted did not recognize Daniel Webster's words. They did not make sense. But Ned had heard them often in Clinton's oratorical voice. They brought oratory to Ned's lips. Ted seconded him with an awkward silence but speaking eyes.

"You said the very thing that's on our minds," Ned began. "We went to sleep early last night, but we woke up hours ago, and we've been talking, talking, quarreling."

"Quarreling already?" Lucy sighed.

"Yes, but it was a funny kind of quarreling, Muds. I told Ted that I knew you'd offer him a home here with us."

"Of course."

"That you'd never break my heart by turning him out into the snow and all."

"Of course not. We've learned to love him."

Ted broke in: "And I've learned to love you. You've been sweller than swell—but—but——" He smothered on his own emotions. Ned took up the story:

"The other night Mr. Roat crawled in the window and tried to drag Ted away. I scared him off, but not before he told how Mrs. Roat was grieving her heart out for Ted and couldn't face the world without him."

Lucy ached with sympathy, but she said:

"Why don't she and her husband settle here in Hampton where they can see Ted every day?"

Easton winced and flushed, but Ned relieved him.

"I told Ted that, but they can't earn a living here. They—well, they're funny kind of people."

"They're crooks," Ted explained quite simply. But then he exploded: "They're crooks—always on the lam—but they've been swell to me. They've been all the folks I've ever had. I'm all they ever had. They saved me from starving. I'd be a dirty sneak to quit 'em. The worse they are the yellower I'd be to let 'em go back to their hard times whilst I stayed here being happy and safe, and—and—I love 'em. They love me, and——"

HE BEGAN to mumble curses to keep from crying. Ned put his arm around him and went on:

"That's what we quarreled about, though it wasn't really quarreling. Ted wanted me to come and live with them, but I said you'd been as good to me as his people had been to him, and better. And I love you.

"But when I heard about my mother—you know how it is—it—it was like a knife and like her voice calling me, and I went hunting for her. I had to. I had to learn everything. But I couldn't find her. So I came back. And—I found him—Ted—my brother, my other me. Well, I can't let him go. No matter what happens, we've agreed we can't let each other go.

"Mr. Roat, that night, he said: 'You've got along without each other for fourteen years. You ought to manage a while longer.' But we can't. It's because we didn't see or know each other for those fourteen years that we've got to make up for all that lost time.

"So we decided finally—I suppose we're crazy, but we're crazy the same way. We're the same every way. If we're kept apart now we'd—we'd bleed to death like. So we decided that since neither one of us could give up the people who'd been so good to us, we'd both give up our families and go on together.

"We don't know where we'll go or what we'll do, but we'll get along somehow. We won't starve or freeze, but even if we did we'd rather die together than not live together. And so that's what we've decided. I suppose we're crazy, but—but—that's what we've decided."

His flaming cries died out in a sputter of embarrassment and ended in a silence nobody broke for a long while, though Lucy ran to the two boys and clenched them together, and to her breast, and stared above their heads at her husband.

He could not find the right words or thoughts, but he said haltingly:

"You're right, Ned—you boys are crazy—but—so are we all. And so is the world, and such love as yours—and such sacrifice—courage—they're a kind of insanity we could use more of. We all respect you and love you more than ever, and—respect your right to live your own lives as freeborn citizens, but—could you give me a day or two to look about and see if—if there isn't some way to patch up a little happiness for all of us, instead of breaking all our hearts at once? Will you give me a little time?"

They looked out at him from Lucy's bosom and nodded, their four blue eyes like the eyes of little animals, pitiful for their very fierceness and terror.

The problem was so hard to solve that it pushed all the business of his factory and the state out of the mind of the governor elect.

BEN and Nell were prompt at the rendezvous in an obscure hotel. But in place of Ted they found already there not Ted or Ned, but the great and awe-inspiring Clinton Buell. This jarred them out of all their thoughts of commanding Ted to go with them. It gave them a feeling that their own liberty was in jeopardy.

The governor elect stared at them hard enough to confirm their worst fears. His voice was hard. Even when he said, "Sit down," it was something like saying, "Take your place in the electric chair." They perched on the edges of their seats and waited. He began sternly:

"Mrs. Roat—under the name of Mrs. Slater—you sold me counterfeit goods for five hundred dollars. You told me that your adopted son was my adopted son, didn't you?"

"Well, yes, sir, I did, but——"

"You rehersed him and instructed him to impersonate my boy. You drilled him to lie and cheat me as you have trained him to lie to everybody, to cheat and steal and—he was so imbued with your ideas that he was planning new robberies in our own household. He's been to the reformatory. Both of you have bad records—very bad. You are wanted in various places for unpunished crimes. That is true, isn't it?"

There was no need of confirming this. They were in the deep deeps of shame and terror. He went on:

"Your son is liable to punishment on numerous counts, and you have both earned long sentences for various misdeeds."

They were dumb and helpless. But the most of their regret and remorse was that they had dragged their boy down with them. They stared at Clinton like cattle in stanchions, expecting and unable to dodge or resist the ax. Clinton went on:

"But this boy of yours is the brother, the more than brother of that boy of mine. My Ned loves your Ted. Ted loves him with a most unusual love. But Ted also loves you. He feels that he owes you much, that he could not desert you even to accept the life we offer him with his brother.

"This puts me in a bad spot. If I give you and your boy what you have earned under the law I complete the ruin of all three. Also I destroy the happiness of my boy, who had deserved the best.

"You two and I have it in our power to play havoc with the lives of two who are just beginning to live. I can wreck your boy's life and you can wreck my boy's. Only you two could save both. It's up to you.

"IF YOU two go straight from now on I could make an experiment. There's a saying, 'Set a thief to catch a thief.' This state is full of thieves, male and female. If I could send a couple of ferrets down the rat holes after the rats I might cut down the number.

"There's a bill coming before me to legalize horse racing in this state again. Everybody loves a horse race. The horses are honest and beautiful, and multitudes find happiness in seeing them, find their happiness in speed. But the lowest crooks on earth infest the tracks. We're going to try again to keep them out—or down, at least.

"Mr. Roat, Ted tells me you love horses and know the worst of them. If you could use that information and acquaintance as a kind of flea powder and vermin eradicator I could give you a good job working for the good of the people instead of the increase of crime and poverty. Your wife can help you, for evil women are as busy as men in wrong as well as right.

"If you two want to be sworn in as special secret police, and if you will obey the orders of your superiors, I could give you a good livelihood. You could live in this state. You could see your boy often. And he could live with his brother in my house, and let me see if I can't make a good, honest citizen of him.

"I haven't had much reason to cherish illusions about the reformation of hardened criminals. But you might be the exception—at least for a time. If you fail me I can always put you both behind bars, and your boy also; for my first duty is to the public. I feel that I am doing that duty in offering you this choice. Will you take it?"

Both leaped to their feet, fairly chattering vows to be good, so help them God. Clinton said:

"Your oaths are only profanity to me. Your records day by day will be your promises for the next. You will be closely watched. You're on probation, on parole. You'll be paid and encouraged to use your wits for the benefit of the people and the salvation of your boy. Here is a paper for you to sign. It includes a promise not to molest or annoy the lad, to keep quiet about your relationship to him, and to see him only at proper times. Will you sign?"

"Ladies first!"

Nell took no risk of delay for manners. She signed. Ben signed. They gave their right hands to Clinton in turn.

Now Ted was brought in. He ran to Ben and Nell, and they told him what he already knew and hoped. Clinton turned Ben and Nell over to a chief of detectives for further instructions. Ted watched them go with a heart that was growing by suffering. He heard Clinton speak to him. He turned.

"Ted——"

"Yes, sir. Yes, Mr. Buell."

"If you call me father or dad I'll never know whether it's you or Ned. You'd better go find him and see if you two can mind your own business while I pay a little attention to mine."

• • •

NED was waiting for Ted, and they went home like two young colts. Even the snowballs they threw at each other on the way were tokens of affection, and they were as happy as if the snow banks had been sunlit white clouds and they two young angels skylarking in the sky.

When they reached home Lucy could not tell which she loved the better.

The doorbell rang. Pickens announced that Dr. Pitnick was waiting for his pupil.

Pitnick's alternate failures and triumphs with the Buell boy had made him question his own sanity. Each "lesson" was such a strain on him that he took to early-morning liquor. As he stumbled along the street he had noted that the pavement was uneven. It seemed to be rippled by a strong wind that he could not feel.

His eyes had lost the power of superimposing their separate images and he was seeing double again. He observed that most of the trees and lamp-posts he passed were ranged in duplicate. He knew that this was not true, and he warned himself to watch his speech.

He stopped at a drug store and quaffed an antidote to the poison in him, and when he came out he was glad to see that the trees and lamp-posts had absorbed their duplicates and become single again.

But when he went up the steps of the Buell home he warned himself not to betray himself. He was ushered into the drawing room and saw Mrs. Buell, and there was only one of her. But as she welcomed him she waved him toward a most appalling vision. There stood two Ned Buells hand in hand, smiling the same smile. He took himself firmly in hand and turned to Mrs. Buell and said:

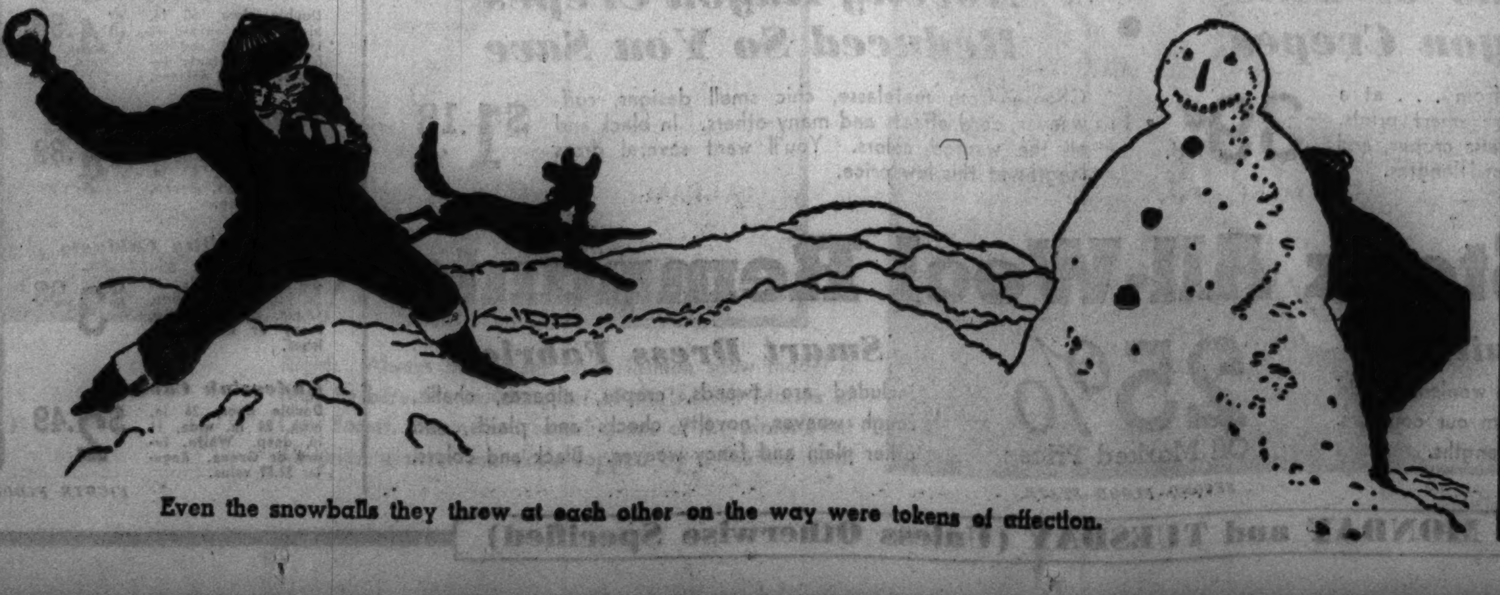
"What a handsome lad your son is! He's really one fine handsome lad."

He was not entirely wrong, at that. When he learned the truth he shivered with joy. He had actually been performing the great experiment with twins he had longed for. Chance had performed it for him. He went at once to work on a new history of the case.

One day he would read his findings at a gathering of scientists. It would be published in the reports of his society and translated into many languages. Great psychologists who knew the big words he used for the bigger mysteries would understand the meaning of those words.

But the experiment would still be going on year after year as time and nature revealed what influence the twins had on each other and on the world, and what influenec the world might have on them.

(THE END.)



Even the snowballs they threw at each other on the way were tokens of affection.

Beginning Next Week

With youth, beauty, friends, and riches—everything except the happiness that comes with the pursuit of a definite goal—Joan Armstrong, the heroine of Faith Baldwin's vital and refreshing new serial, wins a career by proxy, only to become a proxy in a man's heart as well. The Faith Baldwin who spotlighted a modern issue in "Part Time Wives" now presents with originality and justice the problem of a rich girl who needs work. Her heroine is unspoilt by money, generous and unselfish. She is as human as any other office worker who falls in love with her boss. "Career by Proxy" is a gripping novel of human frailties, jealousy, and love. Begin reading this newest Faith Baldwin creation in next week's Sunday Tribune.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

JANUARY 8, 1939.

Part 8 TRAVEL

Below: Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes Jr. will assist at a one day exhibition and sale of reproductions of paintings tomorrow in the ballroom of the Potter Palmer mansion at 1350 Lake Shore drive. The house is being opened from 9 until 7 o'clock especially for the sale, which is sponsored by the Chicago Public School Art society.

Above: Miss Cynthia Cleveland will usher at a fashion show the board of directors of the Woman's Symphony orchestra is giving on Jan. 16 in the Walnut room at Marshall Field's. The benefit will start at 3:30 o'clock; tea will be served.

Mrs. Clayton S. Hexton is a member of the Evanston Infant Welfare Service league, which is sponsoring a series of three book reviews by Ann Birk Kuper on Jan. 17 and 31 and Feb. 21. The programs will be given at the Levere Memorial temple of Sigma Alpha Epsilon in Evanston.

The smart winter hat that Miss Richey Graham wears for formal luncheon parties or informal dinners is a halo of mink. Miss Graham, daughter of the Richey V. Grahams of River Forest, is in her senior year at Northwestern university.

Right: Among the young people who have settled in Lake Forest are Mrs. Chauncey Keep Hutchins and her bridegroom of about a year ago. She is the former Miss Polly Garrit Wardwell of Brookline, Mass. Her black velvet bonnet is another of the season's hat hits.

(TRIBUNE PHOTOS)

Miss Rosamund Purdy, daughter of the Stewart W. Purdys of Glencoe, attends Mount Holyoke college. Miss Harriet Newhall, secretary of the board of admissions of the college, will address Chicago alumnae on Friday at the College club, and next Sunday at the Skokie Country club. The latter party is to be a tea for prospective students.

Finds Greatest Holiday Joy Is an Old Friend

By Cousin Eve.

Now that the smoke has cleared away, the last thank you note written, and the last New Year card sent, we can proceed to enjoy ourselves once more.

There's so much honest drudgery about the holidays that one hardly knows, while they are on, whether the pain of them is not greater than the pleasure.

The great thing is contacts with old friends, who clasp one's hand and wish one joy and seem to really mean it. And not be spoofing. And there are the invitations to beautiful parties. I like the attitude of one of my chic and lovely friends, in the van of all Chicago's fantasies. She marvels that she still is invited, and that hostesses find her presence desirable at balls and dinners, luncheons and teas, and that she and her husband are not yet in the discard. That is a very distinguished state of mind. After all, there is a vast army of the younger generation coming along, and who can gainsay their amusing ways, the marvelous things they do and think?

One sees that, by and large, the people who survive in society are the charming ones, the ones who carry no stinging darts in these troublous times, who do their bit to make the world go merrily round.

Of year-end celebrations, the Ryerson ball at the Blackstone Friday night was the largest formal private dance of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryerson introduced their daughter Mary earlier at a large reception, and this party was for the younger set to the number of five hundred, the sidelines being garnished with parents and close friends. The ballroom was a garden of fir trees, highly fragrant, and niches filled with lilies, and floodlights played intriguingly over the tide of gay young dancers. There was a long receiving line which included the Ryersons and Mary, a darling in white and rose. Also Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, the bud's grandmother, in a frock of gray and silver, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stimson of New York with their debutante child, Mary, another darling, and first cousin of Mary Ryerson, arrayed in gold and blue.

The music was the kind that seems to be in vogue for the moment, croonings and occasional noisy blasts from the horns.

Supper all the night through, enormous lots of champagne, and corresponding quantities of milk. Youngsters cannot dance the long winter night through without food and drink.

The most highly excited party of the holidays was a tea at the Casino, also on Friday, given by Mrs. Walter R. Kirk. The atmosphere fairly sizzled with electricity over the news that had come over the wire three hours earlier, Toscanini was going to bring his orchestra to Chicago on Jan. 31. It was all about a benefit for Passavant hospital that Mrs. Kirk had been dreaming of for three years. Dr. Stock having conducted at the Auditorium for a benefit, and Stokowski and his merry men for Passavant, it seemed that three times and out with Toscanini might be very lucky.

It's a fairly expensive treat bringing Toscanini to Chicago. My word! but the Passavant Woman's board was up in the air at their own hardihood. Mrs. Kirk in vivid red stood in front of the log fire, her board grouped about on the Victorian sofas of the corner salon.

Mesdames Barney Goodspeed and Harry Faurot were keeping vigils at the door and when the former, her eyes sparkling like jewels, whispered to Mrs. Kirk that the first of those 56 boxes at $200 had been sold the president of Passavant Woman's board cried out "Boxey has sold a bob" so great was her elation. Up to date half of the boxes have been taken and many tickets, although tickets themselves are as yet available, and no choice of seats.

It will be another great fashionable night at the Auditorium. Toscanini, they say, is a super-temperamental conductor. Programs have to be made of nice silky paper that doesn't crackle. And the one thing the maestro won't stand is one of those great big coughs that rend the air. At the tea were Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, Mrs. Bryan Reid, Mrs. Howard Fenton, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. Edward Fifield, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, and Mrs. James Offield.

Tuesday was the night for dinners ambassadorial in Chicago. In honor of the American ambassador to Brazil and Mrs. Jefferson Caffery, fourteen guests were invited by Mr. and Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs. Their party was given in their attractive Georgian house, 1336 North State Parkway, built some years ago by the late George Porter.

This has been recently enlarged by a wide library and gay little cocktail bar to the north, on what was a sort of Bridge of Sighs connecting this house and the Isham house next door owned by George Porter's sister, Mrs. George Isham. Ambassador and Mrs. Caffery are both feeling the change from the hot climate of Brazil even in this mild winter. Mrs. Caffery wore a fascinating French dinner dress from Ardanse, black and orange with subtle draperies, and made of a new material of which we know nothing as yet, a sort of clinging weave like the finest silk stocking. Mrs. Charles Little of Evanston, sister and hostess of Ambassador to Germany Hugh Wilson, was also at this party, a lovely figure, in white powdered over with diamonds, definitly one of Chicago's most attractive women. Hugh Wilson had been dated up by William McCormick Blair, an old college pal, and an equally large dinner was going on at the Blairs in Astor street, where were some of "the girls" with their husbands the ambassador had known when he was one of the young gallants about town—Lucy Linn, Marion McCormick, Ellen Carpenter. Mr. Wilson left for Washington Thursday.

The Cafferys think it would be useless to import the Lambeth Walk to Brazil as the Brazilians have their own ideas about dancing, and also about music. The music used during the season is that of the pre-Lenten carnival, coming along now in February. Their principal dance is the Macheeche, a very gay and sprightly affair.

Another visitor of high distinction last week was the Marquis of Lothian, peer of Scotland, staying mostly with the Samuel Rinakers in Lake Forest. Lord Lothian belongs to the "Cliveden set," as Lady Astor's group of active friends is called, and in his younger days was widely known as Philip Kerr, publicist for David Lloyd George, political writer, and what not.

As Marquis of Lothian he has acquired great prestige, wields wide influence in England and around, by a policy of self-effacement but brilliant thinking. He is a warm personal ally of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his stanch supporter, and also numbers various Chicagoans as his friends, among them Mr. and Mrs. James H. Winston and Mrs. William G. Hibbard.

The Arts club is doing great things for its members this season. The next on the list will be a dinner and evening of music on Jan. 15, when Robert Virovai, the phenomenal young Hungarian violinist, will give a program. In the lounge of the Arts club I fancy Virovai's art will be even lovelier than in Orchestra hall. He has a marvelous violin, and is a mere stripling, under 18, with big eyes and a huge mop of red brown hair. For his first concert at Carnegie hall, New York, he rode up on top of a bus, violin case in hand, unconcerned, and possibly thrilled at the sights and sounds of Gotham.

On Tuesday the Arts club had one of its best receptions of the year in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chrysler Jr.

Two rooms were full of the Chrysler Picasso collections and the works of one of these newer lads, Juan Gris. But even more interesting was the personality of Mr. Chrysler's recent wife, a pretty blonde who was Peggy Sykes of New York.

One room held the paintings of the late Honoré Palmer Jr. This is a remarkable collection, fifteen in all, and deserves a visit. Young Palmer was born in Chicago, but lived most of his 30 years in Paris, where he learned to paint. His works are partly portraits, a few nudes, still lifes and Hawaiian sketches, also a striking scene at a bull fight.

Here was an ability to paint quite extraordinary. His figures have life, reality. His subjects exist and almost reveal their secret thoughts, while their characters and moods are tied to them forever. It is not cheerful work, but strong and interesting, and each visitor voiced the same thought, "What a pity he had to go." Members of the Palmer family were receiving in this room. There were Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Miss Pauline Palmer, and Honoré Palmer had come up from Florida for the occasion.

Mrs. Stanley Field came in to see her nephew's work with her girls, Mrs. Clifford Rodman and Mrs. Russell Kelley. Other family friends who came were Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. Stuart Stone, Mrs. William Odell, Mrs. C. Garfield King, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. E. H. Brewer.

Upstairs the tearoom was very animated. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the club's charming president, was rushing the season with a tiny white hat made of downy feathers, and Mrs. Paul Welling, new social chairman, was arranging the turns of a large number of tea pourers. The tea tables were all filled with one of the jolliest crowds ever.

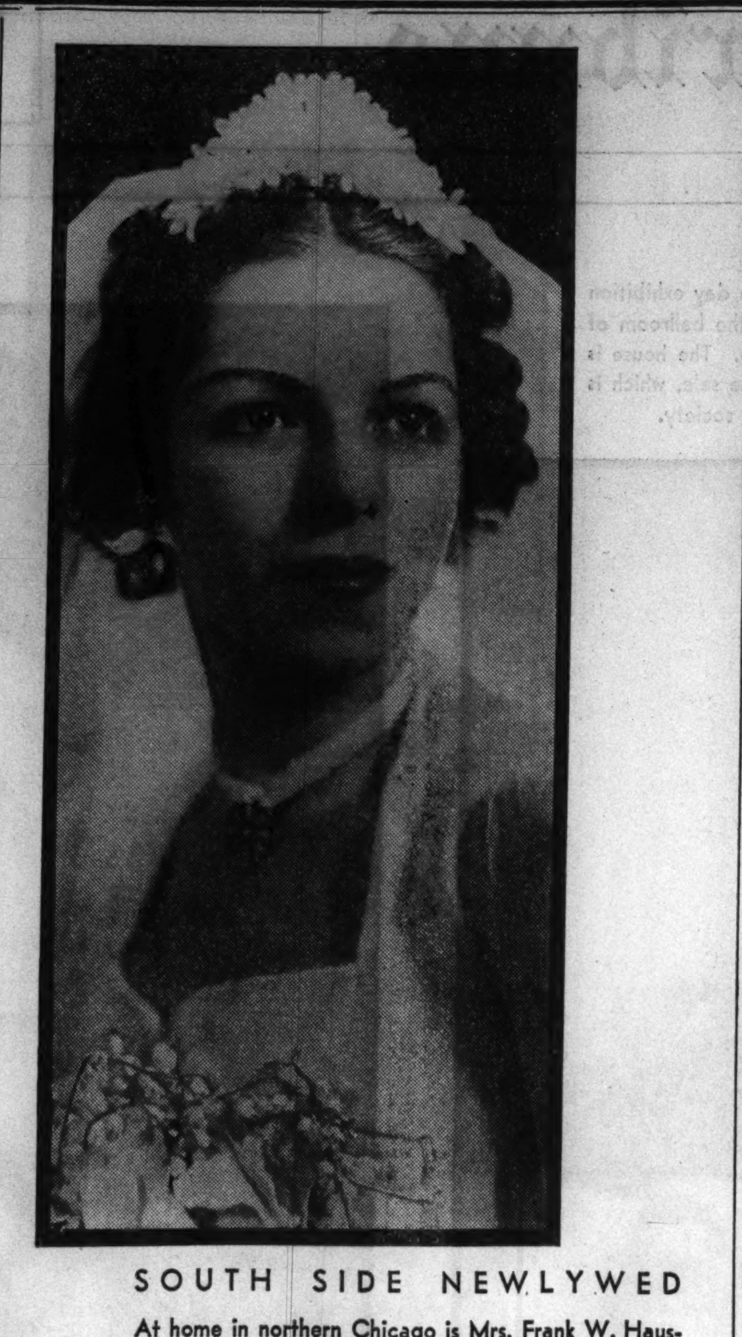
New Year's twin days, Sunday and Monday, taxed Chicago's votaries of good cheer to the uttermost. Louis Sudler, new president of the Saddle and Cycle club, arranged a nice party for New Year's eve and the supper crowd was so great it overflowed to the gayly decked veranda.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yoe Freeman's was the gay, charming celebration for Sunday, in their wide old-fashioned house in Dearborn parkway, where every one adores to go. Large square rooms, log fires, many of the friends one loves to see, make their own atmosphere. Mrs. Freeman was receiving in a fascinating frock of a subdued yellow that made one think of acacia, which even now brightens florists' windows.

The joke at this New Year's party was on quite a few friends of the William Stanton Monroes, who might lead one to believe they belong to the illiterates, not yet knowing how to read. Because the Monroe New Year's card, which is a delightful etching of their wassail bowl, old English refectory table, coffee urn and logs burning, stated in red ink that their party was set for Monday, Jan. 2. However, quite a few guests appeared on Sunday and found a large door sign which said, most hospitably, "Come tomorrow," and come they did. The Monroe party is always perfect. Fir wreaths, little trees, colored lights line the vestibule, and upstairs are the open spaces of rooms full of colors of the orient and very beautiful relics of ancient Chinese culture.

The hostess in trailing robes of crimson topped by a coat of Persian gold made one think of Guinevere so shining was she in medieval splendor. At opposite ends of the long refectory sat Mrs. Barney Goodspeed and Danilova, the lovely Russian ballet star. Guests were many and from various of Chicago's most outstanding groups. A new figure was Mrs. Lucille Swan of Peking, wielding a tiny white fan. Among the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loesch, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Smith, Col. and Mrs. Ralph James, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Robert Hall McCormick, Samuel Harper, Miss Sylvia West, Charles Cameron West, Mrs. William Burry, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. John Holabird, and the John Roots, who received, being family, as did Henry Monroe and Mrs. Polly Collier.

Another holiday party where one saw old friends was Mrs. Grover Winston's at the Seneca for her daughter, Diana. This was a sitdown function where one saw people and talked rationally about this and that. And then there was music and wassail, which is a new and stylish name for mulled claret.



SOUTH SIDE NEWLYWED

At home in northern Chicago is Mrs. Frank W. Hausmann Jr., the former Mary Frances Sullivan. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sullivan of 5856 Forest Glen avenue. Mr. Hausmann's parents are the Frank W. Hausmanns of 4443 North Mozart avenue.

Holiday Season in France Gay and Carefree

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

In the stress of these post-war years, the French seize eagerly on occasions such as reveillon, or the Christmas eve feasting, to forget the unpleasant side of the picture, and to recapture some of the old traditional gayety that gave Paris its nickname. The young people seem determined not to worry, which does not mean that they will not accept all responsibilities that events may thrust on them.

At the present time all who keep step with fashion get out of Paris a few days before Christmas, and do not return until a few days after the New Year begins. They scatter to the many mountain regions of France, in the Vosges, in Savoy, in the Pyrenees, and elsewhere, for winter sports such as skiing and bobsledding. The craze for sports in France is forming a vigorous breed of youth who will give a good account of themselves in many fields. For those who cannot indulge in the strenuous fun of the mountains there remains the revelry in Paris.

The French never have lost their love of the theater, but it seems to have taken on a distinctly new lease of life this season. One reason for it is the number of good offerings, also the fact that the performances are shorter, that entr'actes are less numerous and, if they occur, are brief. The waits between the acts, sometimes as long as 25 minutes, had begun to discourage the habitués, who compared the theater in this respect with the movies, where there are no interruptions.

One of the season's successes is Sacha Guitry's latest "Un Monde Fou"—A Mad World. The story is built around a couple who both consult, unknown to each other, a famous psychoanalyst. On this theme, as on any theme, the author embroiders with his extraordinary wit, and the play is performed by a brilliant troupe which carries it off to perfection. So cleverly is the dialog arranged and spoken that the whole piece seems like an improvisation, and as if the surprises were as fresh to the actors as to the audience. No one dares to laugh as much as he would like for fear of missing some of the swift asides that illuminate the given situation, or life in general.

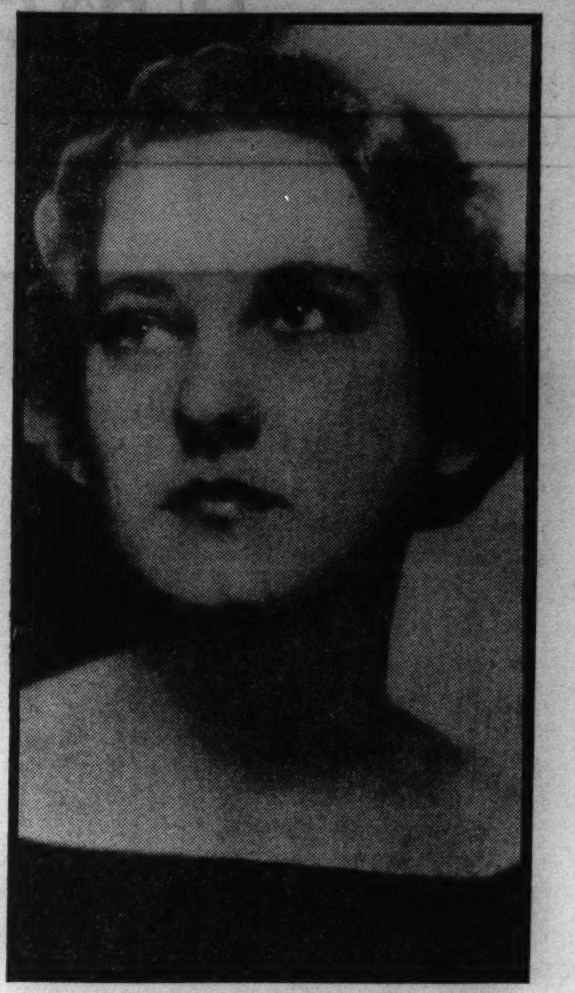
The audience was particularly intrigued the other night by the scene in which Jacqueline Delubac, Sacha Guitry's legal wife, and Sacha hold the stage during a quarter of an hour. Every word they said to each other was particularly fraught with meaning, for they are getting, in real life, a divorce. Whether or not the divorce was contemplated before the play was written also is a curious speculation. Jacqueline, in real life, has accused Sacha of desertion, and it appears that there is no prospect of reconciliation.

French courts bring couples together, some months after the first application for divorce, to see if the threads can be tied up again before they finally are cut clean. Now, in this private situation, where it is likely that Jacqueline and Sacha see each other only during this fifteen minutes on the stage, their words and attitudes take on so much meaning that it is at times almost painful, although everything is carried off with Guitry's amazing lightness of touch.



ENGAGEMENT IS TOLD

Miss Sarah Jane Lewis, whose engagement to Robert Eugene Deniston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Deniston of 6825 Crandon avenue, recently was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adam Lewis of 6728 Ridgeland avenue. Miss Lewis attended the University of Chicago. Mr. Deniston attended the University of Wisconsin.

Missouri Will Open Hospital to Treat Cancer

Missouri has joined the front rank of states aiding in the fight on cancer with the construction of a new state built and state operated cancer hospital at Columbia.

Ground was broken recently for the construction of the new $500,000 hospital building, which will provide facilities for the treatment of indigent cancer patients.

At the corner stone laying ceremonies Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, who sponsored the hospital, said that he considered it "the outstanding accomplishment" of his administration.

The hospital at Columbia is only one unit of the state's new program to control cancer. Other clinics either have been or will be opened in affiliated hospitals in various parts of the state.

At the central hospital beds will be provided for ninety patients, in four bed, two bed, and single rooms. In addition, a clinic will be operated at the hospital to care for "ambulatory" cases that are not confined to the hospital.

The new institution was named the Ellis Fischel hospital, in memory of the late Dr. Ellis Fischel of St. Louis, who was killed in an automobile accident nearly a year ago. Dr. Fischel formerly was head of the state cancer commission and it was largely due to his efforts that the cancer program was adopted by the state.

It originally was proposed that the state should build a large state maintained general hospital for indigent persons at Columbia, but the project was changed when the organized medical groups opposed it on the grounds that it would lead to state medicine.

Hospital Board to Hold 55th Annual Meeting

Fifty-five years ago this spring women of the Presbyterian churches of the Chicago Presbytery became interested in the hospital then in process of erection. After several preliminary meetings they succeeded in organizing a Ladies Aid society with seventy-six members representing seventeen churches. The present Women's board of the Presbyterian hospital is successor to that early society, and tomorrow in the hospital chapel the 55th annual meeting of the organization will be held.

The principal features of the meeting will be reports of the year's work, election of officers, and an address by Leonard Shaw, who recently came to Chicago from Canada to fill the position of assistant secretary of the American Hospital association. Mr. Shaw will talk on "Women's Work for Canadian Hospitals."

[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Edward H. Smith, a member of the executive committee of the hospital woman's board, former president of the Chicago Presbyterian society, and a member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign missions, will present the summary of the reports of committee chairmen for the past year. Mrs. Edward G. Beatie, treasurer, and Mrs. Lawrence Dunlap Smith, secretary, will give their reports. The report of the nominating committee will be made by Mrs. C. Frederick Childs in the absence from the city of Mrs. Charles B. Ford, chairman of the committee. Mrs. Ernest E. Irons is completing her first year as president, but in accordance with a custom of long standing, the annual meeting will be presided over by the president of the men's board, John McKinlay.

Founded in a day when organized women's work was in its infancy and few people were hospital minded, this 55 year old woman's organization has many accomplishments to its credit. The first hospital building, opened to patients in August, 1884, was furnished from operating rooms to kitchen by the Ladies Aid society. Officers and members at that time included Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick Sr., Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. John B. Drake Sr., Mrs. William Armour, Mrs. L. C. Paine Freer, Mrs. Edward Waller, Mrs. H. N. Hibbard, Mrs. Theodore A. Shaw, Mrs. Joseph Presley, and others.

Mrs. D. C. Marquis, first president, was succeeded in 1895 by Mrs. O. S. Newell, mother of Mrs. Childs. Mrs. C. D. Hamill followed Mrs. Newell, serving from 1897 until 1909, when Mrs. David W. Graham, only survivor of the group of women who organized the Ladies Aid society, began her term. Mrs. McCormick Sr. was a vice president for many years and was honorary president from 1911 to 1923.

Another organization that is honoring a founder this coming week is the Zonta club of Chicago. Paul Harris, founder of the first classified service club, will be the special guest at a dinner given by the Zonta club on Tuesday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. Andrew J. Haire, president of the New York Rotary club, will be a guest speaker. He will talk on "Successful Executives I Have Known." The club is inviting all classified service clubs in Chicago to join them at this meeting.

The American Daughters of Sweden will celebrate the 13th anniversary of the founding of the organization on Tuesday at 6:15 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Miss Myrtle Stolt, dramatic soprano, will be the soloist. The Rev. Lloyd Burke, pastor of the Bethany Lutheran church, will be the guest speaker. Short speeches will be given by the president, Mrs. Julia Schott, and the present president, Mrs. Ruth Mannow Olsson.

Mrs. Philip Smolin.

The Chicago Ladies Gmilas Chasodim society is giving a dinner dance and frolic show on Jan. 15 at 6:30 o'clock at the Royal Frolics in celebration of its 36th anniversary. When the society was started in 1903 it had seven members and a capital of ten dollars. Today the society has a membership of over 400. Mrs. Philip Smolin is chairman of the dance.

Prominent club women and religious leaders of the Chicago district, and members of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, will gather tomorrow at 12 o'clock at the Standard club, 320 Plymouth court, to honor Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, pioneer Chicago club woman, civic leader, and founder of the National Council of Jewish women, on the occasion of her 81st birthday.

Mrs. Frank Hixon, legislative chairman of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will be the principal speaker. Her subject will be "Women's Influence in a Changing World."

Mrs. Solomon, vigorous and youthful despite her years, will respond briefly to the tributes paid her. She will describe her early experiences in club work as a charter member of the Chicago Woman's club, and will tell something of the beginnings of the National Council of Jewish Women.

In 1893 Mrs. Solomon was asked by Mrs. Charles Henrotin, a fellow member of the Chicago Woman's club to organize the participation of Jewish women in the Parliament of Religions of the World's Columbian Exposition held in Chicago. Mrs. Solomon realized that no national Jewish women's organization existed and, convinced of the need for it, made permanent the group she organized for the parliament. Now, forty-six years later, the National Council of Jewish Women numbers 65,000 members with sections in all of the principal cities of the United States and Canada. Twenty-three thousand are members of the Chicago section. The Council has a six point program of education, peace, service to foreign born, social legislation, and social service.

Samuel Micon will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Ben and Sarah Gerstein chapter of the Jewish People's Convalescent home, to be held tomorrow night at the Great Northern hotel. Mr. Micon is the newly elected president of the Jewish People's Convalescent home. His appearance as guest speaker will be his introduction to the Gerstein group.

The Chicago Club for Crippled Children, at its last meeting of 1938 elected officers for the year 1939. Mrs. Louis Witt was elected president; Mrs. Herbert Kant, first vice president; Mrs. J. S. Grove, second vice president; Mrs. A. E. Meyers, third vice president. Installation will be held at an open meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the Palmer house.

The Star auxiliary of the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home will hold a meeting on Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock at the Covenant club.

The Service Council for Girls will have its annual luncheon on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the College club, 196 East Delaware place.

Juicy Apple Pies.

To keep the juice in apple pies from boiling over, mix the apples and sugar, let them stand covered for about five minutes, and then drain off the juice from the apple slices. If a juicy pie is desired, pour the juice back into the pie through the hole in the top crust when the pie is baked.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Louise Bromann's engagement to William F. Lewis is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bromann of Oak Park. The formal announcement was made at a tea on Jan. 2. Mr. Lewis' parents are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lewis of 5448 Washington boulevard. Miss Bromann is a graduate of St. Mary's college of Notre Dame, and Mr. Lewis is a graduate of Notre Dame. He also attended Armour "Tech" and M. I. T. No date for the wedding is set.

Committee on Jury Service Drafting Plans

Matilda Fenberg.

The 1939 campaign to remove the last major restriction to full citizenship for the women of Illinois will get actively under way this week when a newly appointed ways and means committee of the Illinois Committee for Women on Juries holds its meeting on Wednesday.

Attorney Matilda Fenberg is chairman of this committee, which is composed of representatives of the various member organizations of the Illinois committee. The committee was appointed by Mrs. Rena Elrod, general chairman of the Illinois Committee for Women on Juries. Mrs. Elrod, while a member of the state legislature from Chicago's northwest side, introduced the woman jury measures which were passed in 1929, but which were held unconstitutional by the state Supreme court because they contained a referendum provision. The Supreme court previously had ruled that women are not eligible to serve on juries in Illinois because they were not voters at the time the state jury laws were passed.

The new bills, which soon will be offered to the legislature now in session, will amend the present laws to meet all the objections raised by the Supreme court. Similar bills were offered in the 1937 session and were passed by the lower house, but were buried in the senate. The committee appeals to the public to join in the campaign to accomplish this forward step.

The Chicago Woman's club committee of the Park Ridge School for Girls will present Mrs. William A. Rowley in a colored movie travelog on Thursday at 2 o'clock in the club auditorium, 72 East 11th street. The receipts from the travelog will go toward the club's work at the school, the immediate needs being a stoker and hot water heater for the Chicago Woman's club cottage which the club built in 1910.

The interest of the club antedates the building of the cottage, however, for in 1904 Mrs. Ellen E. L. Woodward, a member of the Chicago Woman's club, who was on the board of the school then known as the Industrial School for Girls at Evanston, enlisted the aid of the club in reorganizing the school and changing its location to Park Ridge. Another member of the club, Mrs. Henry Solomon, was elected president of the school in 1906 and, during her administration, the club contributed $1,000 towards the organization. Mrs. Charles Henrotin, another club member, succeeded Mrs. Solomon, and during her administration, in 1910, the club donated $10,000 for a cottage and $1,000 for its furnishing.

There has been a club committee continuously since that time, and each year it has given aid and support to the school. Mrs. William A. Rowley, the present chairman of the school committee of the club, has planned the benefit.

Miss Agatha Cavallo.

Miss Agatha Cavallo, dean of women at Herzl Junior college, will give two talks this week on the practical values of education. On Thursday afternoon she will address the winter meeting of the 7th congressional district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs at the Kelvyn Park Presbyterian church. Her subject will be "Education for American Citizenship."

On Friday Miss Cavallo will talk at the 2d district junior winter conference of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs at the Plaisance hotel. She will speak on "A Modern Woman's Education."

The Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations will have an all day civic institute on Friday. Among the speakers who will talk on the duties of their respective offices are John Toman, county treasurer; J. M. Mercer, sanitary district, public relations division; Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, county commissioner; Thomas J. Courtney, state's attorney; Mrs. George V. McIntyre, public guardian, Cook county; Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, Cook County court; H. Gordon Bollin, chief administration division, county assessor's office; Mayor Kelly; Frank Sain, warden, county jail; Daniel A. Carey, election division county clerk's office, and Judge Frank Bicek, Juvenile court. The institute will be held in the Republic building, 209 South State street. It will beign at 10:45 o'clock in the morning and luncheon will be served at 12:30.

Tomorrow at 8 o'clock in the Ward Memorial building, Walter K. Urich, chief probation officer of the United States District court in Chicago, will speak under the auspices of the Northwestern university Social Work club on "Federal Probation and Parole." Mr. Urich is a member of the executive committees of the Chicago Academy of Criminology, of the National Council of Character education, of the Social Service board, and the Boys' court committee, of the Chicago Church federation, and he is vice chairman of the section on delinquency of the Council of Social Agencies.

You Can Create a Theater in the Home Basement

Why not a basement theater in your home? These are easy to make and there's no better place to show home movies than below stairs.

Composition board can be used for the walls of the projection booth, and spray your wooden ceiling beams with a dark stain to prevent reflections.

Kerosene is a good cleaner for painted woodwork, especially in sections or communities where soot has a way of collecting on all the inside house surfaces. It should be used sparingly, however, on white woodwork, for it will have a yellowing effect in time, if used too often.

For the new neckwear of white organdy, lace, or piqué, there's no better way of freshening than by whisking it rapidly through billowing soapsuds, rinsing it thoroughly and partially drying it in bath towels before pressing.

Art Academy to Hold Youths' Poster Contest

By Eleanor Jewett.

There is something about prize announcements that never fails to thrill. One of the first of these for 1939 has been issued by the American Academy of Art. A scholarship valued at $130 will be awarded by the American Academy of Art, Kimball building, as the first prize in the Union League club's George Washington poster contest, open to all public high school senior students in Cook county. The second prize of a $100 scholarship will be given by the Union League club.

The poster designs must be commemorative of Washington's career, but a broad interpretation is permissible to allow contestants ample leeway in their choice of design. The contest closes Jan. 14, according to Frank H. Young, academy director, and the winning posters will be exhibited later at the Union League club and at the American Academy of Art.

Far more exciting than this competition, because of the larger field it covers, is the announcement by the American academy in Rome of the competitions for the prizes of Rome. The annual competitions are announced for fellowships in architecture, landscape architecture, painting, sculpture, musical composition, and classical studies.

In architecture the Daniel H. Burnham fellowship is to be awarded; in sculpture the Rinehart fellowship provided by the Peabody institute, Baltimore, Md.; in musical composition the Horatio Parker fellowship, and in classical studies the Jesse Benedict Carter Memorial fellowship.

The compositions are open to unmarried men [in classical studies to men and women] not over 30 years of age who are citizens of the United States. The stipend of each fellowship is $1,250 a year with an allowance of $300 for transportation to and from Rome and $200 to $300 to fellows in the fine arts, for materials and incidental expenses. Residence and studio are provided without charge at the academy and the total estimated value of each fellowship is about $2,000 a year.

The academy reserves the right to withhold an award in any subject in which no candidate is considered to have reached the required standard.

The term of the fellowship in each subject is two years. All fellows have opportunities for extensive travel and for making contacts with leading European artists and scholars. Fellows in musical composition are also enabled to conduct and hear renditions of their own works, and the academy has a fund for publishing some of their compositions.

The Grand Central Art galleries of New York City will present free membership in the galleries to the painter and sculptor who win the Rome prize and fulfill the obligations of the fellowship.

Entries for competitions will be received until Feb. 1. Circulars of information and application blanks may be obtained by addressing Roscoe Guernsey, executive secretary, American academy in Rome, 101 Park avenue, New York. When writing for these documents the applicant should specify the subject in which he desires to compete.

The Chicago Professional School of Art, 100 East Ohio street, announces that Pierre Brissaud, famous French illustrator, will hold an intensive course in illustration at the school during February. The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 o'clock, and Saturday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock. The class will open Tuesday, Jan. 31, and close Saturday, Feb. 25.

The second group of the Kate S. Buckingham memorial lectures will be given in Fullerton hall, Art institute, on Jan. 21 and 28 and Feb. 7, by Charles Fabens Kelly, who will discuss Chinese art. The lectures are fully illustrated with slides, many of them in color. They are free to the public and are very well worth hearing. Mr. Kelly is a brilliant man in his subjects, he is the curator of oriental art at the Art institute. The lectures are given at 3:30 o'clock.

From Bruges in Belgium comes an enticing announcement about summer festivities. There is nothing quite so cheering on a freezing January day as to think of what we may be doing in July. If you are art-minded and travel-minded and plan on Europe next summer you may be interested to know that the Procession of the Precious Blood will take place May 8, this is an unusually beautiful event. An exhibition of the works of Hans Memling has been arranged from June 24 to Sept. 30. The Pageant Play of the Precious Blood [not to be confused with the procession of that name] will be given in the market square on Aug. 5, 6, 12, and 13.

George Buehr, an Art institute alumnus, for the last nine years assistant lecturer and instructor in the classes of Dudley Crafts Watson, is returning from a six months' stay in Europe. He has been in Dalmatia a great deal of the time. He is expected home the middle of January.

Beatrice Levy sends word that the Chicago Society of Artists, of which she is president, will be represented in New York at the Riverside museum from Jan. 11 to Feb. 26 with an exhibit of some 200 paintings, prints, and sculpture.

Charles O. Longabaugh is leaving shortly for another trip to Mexico. His stay there last year resulted in a portfolio full of lovely water colors and stunning drawings and etchings. Here's luck to 1939! May his Mexican harvest be even greater.

The jury for the 43d annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity is announced by the Art institute as comprising Donald J. Bear, director of the Denver Art museum; Clarence H. Carter, artist and professor, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, and Mahonri Young, artist and sculptor of New York City. These three men will pass on the paintings. Mahonri Young and Albin Polasek will jury the sculpture. Prizes amounting to $1,800 will be awarded.

The last day for returning entry cards by those wishing to submit their work for the exhibit is tomorrow. The days for receiving exhibits are from Jan. 9 to Jan. 16. The jury will meet Jan. 26 and 27. The exhibition opens Feb. 8 in the evening to members of the Art institute and accepted artists, and the next day to the public. The exhibit will continue to March 12.

SETTLES IN EDGEWATER

Mrs. Lloyd McDonald, the former Harriette Pollard, is settling an apartment in the Edgewater district. She and Mr. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon McDonald, were married on the wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Pollard of North Wolcott avenue.

"BIRDS OF PARADISE"

This is one of the many stunning paintings in the current members' exhibition at the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue. It is by Karl Plath, a distinguished artist and a great student and lover of birds. Mr. Plath is in charge of the birds at the Brookfield zoo. His decorative bird pictures are among the most enduring art being done in the United States today.

The Winter Garden

By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

A winter garden is I think
A place of rare delight,
Although the coloring is plain—
Green, brown and black and white.

Brown are the stalks that stand erect
Like soldiers on parade,
Black are our elms, green are the firs
Whose needles never fade.

Then you may find a touch of red,
Small berries that hang high,
And white—the snow, a blanket trim—
Under the wintry sky.

Next summer with its crowded flowers
It will be hard to see
Our garden by itself, but now
Each bit belongs to me.

Parties, Teas Fill Calendar at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Palm Beach has launched into the new year with all sail hoisted and billowing in the social breeze. Henceforth the course will be steered from one big party to another. Mrs. Robert Arkell Moffett arrived by plane Tuesday night for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Frank Thomas Quigley, at El Sueno. Mrs. Quigley gave a large tea in her honor yesterday at the Everglades club, and in the meantime she has been enjoying some deep sea fishing.

Miss Alice Wyeth, who spent the holidays in Chicago, has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, here.

Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock entertained during the week with a luncheon for twelve in honor of Mrs. Arthur Glasgow of London, who is the guest of Mrs. John H. Gibbons of Washington, D. C.

Miss Kay Lyon is at the Brazilian court, where she will be joined soon by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon of Winnetka. They expect to open their winter home here shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty Jr. of Chicago have taken a house on Coconut Row for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Benton are occupying a home on Sea Breeze avenue. Mr. Benton is vice president of the University of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller are settled in their new winter home on Australian avenue, where they anticipate a succession of guests later. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strong and their small daughter, Cara, have also arrived for the season.

Lucius Pond Ordway and John Ordway, who spent the holidays here, left during the week for New York. The college set has gone back to school books with memories of gorgeous times in Palm Beach. Mary Frances Janotta returned last Monday to Northwestern university. Jack and Bud Hoops, sons of William Theodore Hoops of Casa Eleda on the Ocean boulevard, also returned to school in Lake Forest early this week.

Mrs. W. H. Miller and her granddaughter, Miss Georgeanne Delong of Chicago, are at the home of the former on Australian avenue. They were preceded here by Mrs. Miller's daughters, Mrs. Ann Miller Delong and Miss Sarah Gene Miller.

Joseph Patrick Kennedy continues to get around in Palm Beach without benefit of the press. Recent guests at the Palm Beach home have been Ambassador William C. Bullitt and his daughter, Anne.

Another celebrity in Palm Beach is Hal Sims, bridge expert who, with Mrs. Sims is at the Palm Beach Biltmore.

The resort is still echoing with the impromptu concert given New Year's eve by Mme. Frances Alda and John Charles Thomas, who sang operatic airs for a group of friends on board the Dobyne yacht Coconut, and others who gathered on the dock at Brazilian avenue. Later, in a night club, they joined in with entertainers to the delight and awe of merrymakers.

• • •

So far as the up and up hair styling is concerned, Palm Beach is not having any, thank you. Younger girls wear their hair shoulder length, and most of the matrons are having their coiffeurs waved back to frame the face. Palm Beach beauty parlors are awaiting their supply of artificial eyelashes. These glamor aids are applied one by one for about $3.50.

Col. and Mrs. Robert K. Morse have arrived at their home on Dunbar avenue.

Polo games have started at Gulf Stream, 18 miles south. Old guard society golfers are out in full force, and backgammon and bridge tournaments have commenced at the Everglades club. The doorman at the Bath and Tennis club, Tom Brewerton, has a perfect background for his job for he used to be coachman for Stuyvesant Fish.

Mrs. Ritchey Farrell Rasmussen, recently of Chicago, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farrell of Nashville.

When Chicago Was Young:

Saratoga Was Favorite Place for Vacationers.

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 20, 1890.

Dear Julia: Well, my dear, here we are in Saratoga, "Paris of America," "Summer Capital of the United States," or whatever you may choose to call this watering-place. Will found he could get away from Chicago for ten days and as Samanthy Allen would say, "we jest girded up our lions and kum to the Land of Beuler."

Mrs. William Gold Hibbard.

Unlike Samanthy, I had no trouble persuading my life pardner to come with me. He was only too pleased to run away from hot weather in Chicago and rest awhile here. Newport is a bit overpowering to Will, with its roster of names such as Vanderbilt, Astor, Paran Stevens, and so on, but he thinks Saratoga, with its horse racing, entertainments, and other diversions, is great fun. As we walk or drive to the springs each day, he always finds friends, from Chicago or some other city, and he is never bored.

Have you been in Saratoga lately? I find it much improved since our last visit. The cottage colony is increasing, about a thousand people now living in houses rather than hotels. The season is a prosperous one for the hotel keepers, and it is claimed that 500,000 people visit the town during the year. Many of these visitors are grandchildren of the men and women who made regular pilgrimages here fifty years ago.

Coaching, riding and driving are favorite pastimes. After 3 o'clock every afternoon, Union avenue, the fashionable drive to Saratoga lake, is thronged with equipages of all styles. There is the aristocratic Victoria, with liveried attendants wearing the much-criticized cockade; the English drag, drawn by prancing thoroughbreds; while the surrey, the T-cart, and other vehicles of unique design all have their votaries. The bright yellow of the coaches and the brilliant shades of the parasols give a rather exciting touch to the scene and over all floats the silver note of the tally-ho coach horn.

This period is also known as the children's hour in Saratoga and the little people, dressed in Lord Fauntleroy suits or Kate Greenaway frocks and bonnets, are seen everywhere as, attended by their nurses, they walk or drive to the parks for an hour of decorous play. It's no wonder that Samanthy Allen exclaims: "Deary me, Josiah! Saratoga don't seem to be nothing but parasols, baby carriages and white capped nurses."

The new book, "Samantha at Saratoga," has a great sale here, and though it is rather forced humor, it is quoted with gusto by visitors who find it funnier when read in sight of the scenes it describes—wasp-waisted ladies, designing fortune-hunters, and the like.

I love to watch the crowds here, for no place in America is so cosmopolitan. A Cuban, swarthy, but comely, is just now passing my chair as I sit on our hotel piazza, while behind him is an aristocratic old New England gentleman, who has just told Will that he has been coming here to drink the waters for fifty years.

It is said there are more fashionables here than usual. Vice President and Mrs. Levi P. Morton are visiting George P. Bliss, the New York and London banker. Of Chicago friends, I have found Mr. and Mrs. William Gold Hibbard and their sons, Frank and William G. Jr., and Mrs. Hibbard's sister, Mrs. O. V. S. Ward.

This afternoon we called on Mr. and Mrs. Edson Keith at their hotel and found Mr. and Mrs. Francis King there. Mrs. J. H. McVicker, wife of the noted actor-manager, is here, too.

And now, with love to you and thanks for your invitation to Newport, which I fear we can't accept this summer, I am,

Your loving,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Marietta Holley, American humorist, widely read in the '70's and '80's, was better known by her pen name, Josiah Allen's Wife. Among her books are: "My Opinions and Betsey Bobbett's," "Samantha at the Centennial," "Samantha at Saratoga," and "My Wayward Pardner." The humor consists largely in misspelled words and is sometimes forced, but her sharp comments on the inconsistency of men who prate about protecting delicate females from the necessity of going to the polls, yet permit these same weak creatures to slave for them at home, helped shape public opinion which led women to demand equal suffrage.

ATTIC TREASURES.

Our Christmas holiday was spent in a house with an attic, and we returned to Chicago with a crayon portrait of a baby relative, and a "banner," the handiwork of another member of our family. "Banners" popular in the late '80's, were usually made [as is the one we now possess] of red plush, embroidered in heavy silk and ribbon. Our family treasure depicts a spray of goldenrod, so lifelike that hay fever sufferers are apt to sneeze involuntarily on pausing before it. Intertwined with the goldenrod are white daisies.

We have asked some of our readers to look in their own attics and report interesting contents. Mrs. Paul Mercer, Wyanet, Ill., sends us the following list:

Tall, narrow jug, a foot high, three inches in diameter, painted with roses and a butterfly; "splasher," worked in red and black wool cross-stitch on cream canvas, with red crocheted edge; "throw," to hang on corner of picture, the throw being of scrim, with drawn-work and fringe on one end, crocheted design and fringe on the other; amber glass slipper; china cup, with "A Present" on side in gold letters; pin cushion, knitted to represent an ear of corn; green plush autograph album.

We shall be glad to have other lists of "Attic Treasures." Send to Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Daughters of Civil War Veterans Will Hold Installation

Phoebe M. Mathews Tent No. 82 of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War will hold installation of officers at 8 o'clock Saturday night in Chase Park fieldhouse, Leland and Ashland avenues. The staf to be inducted is headed by Miss Leota Isbester of 4716 Magnolia avenue.

Others taking office are Mrs. Florence Maxwell, 2336 Monticello avenue, senior vice president; Mrs. Anna King, 2932 Elston avenue, junior vice president; Miss Clara Woodbury, 6129 North Paulina street, treasurer; Mrs. Jessie Whitney, 4522 Wrightwood avenue, chaplain, and, as council members, Mrs. Cassie Espeset of 4016 North Lowell avenue, Mrs. Helen Masulla of 3936 Irving Park road, and Miss Martha Bristle of 810 George street.

Miss Isbester succeeds Mrs. Espeset, her cousin, to the presidency. She receives her eligibility to the organization through her maternal grandfather, Henry H. Stafford, who was a member of Decatur post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Group Will Meet Friday

Northwestern branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold its January quarterly meeting at 10 o'clock Friday in the Washington Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Washington and Austin boulevards, Oak Park. Mrs. H. L. Hoskins, president, will preside.

Dr. Emory Wylie Luccock, minister of First Presbyterian church of Evanston, will address the members on the topic, "Some Important Effects of the War in China on the Christian Enterprise in Japan and China."

Two newly appointed missionaries, Bonita Bloxsom to Malaya and Margaret Shook to Manila, Philippine Islands, will be commissioned at this service.

Whole Pecans.

Pecans may be removed whole from the shell if the entire nut is first covered with boiling water and allowed to stand until cold before it is cracked.

Play Safe in Using Old or New Appliance

Electricity and gas are two of our finest home servants, and while manufacturers are doing more and more each year to make all products and appliances safe, it is so easy to forget or to be a little careless, with results that are painful and too often disastrous.

So, for the new year to come, a resolution to understand your electric and gas appliances better, and to remember—when you should—will be one of the best resolutions you can make. Be sure there are no dangerous drafts blowing around to extinguish an open gas flame. Remember not to leave the house with electrical appliances connected, or reach for a switch with wet hands, or tinker with a toaster, radio, or lamp when the current is on!

And to make 1939 safer in your home, for children and adults alike, keep your medicines marked poison tightly locked up, away from the children! Seven hundred children each year under 14 are victims of accidental poisoning! Use noninflammable liquids for minor cleaning jobs, keep your kerosene in a safe container, and never use it to start a fire, no matter how cold the day is nor how sluggish the fire seems.

THE WOMAN OF TOMORROW

Tomorrow's woman is the Elizabeth Arden woman of today, the far-seeing, alert, intelligent woman who realizes the importance of beauty and health, who times her hours and days to include her Elizabeth Arden schedule for beauty, so that her tomorrows may dawn without fear.

SHE COMES to the Elizabeth Arden Salon for Miss Arden's splendid muscle-strapping face treatments, for her Velva Mask, for her Firmo-Lift and Intracellular Treatments, for her flattering make-ups.

SHE COMES to the Elizabeth Arden Salon for a chic, new coiffure, for Miss Arden's scalp treatments, her permanent waving, her incomparable hair tinting.

SHE COMES to the Elizabeth Arden Salon to learn the Elizabeth Arden way to beauty of the figure, to find the joy and ease of correct posture through rhythmic exercises.

SHE COMES to the Elizabeth Arden Salon for a "body moulding" massage when she is tired, nerve-weary or when her figure needs some special attention.

SHE COMES to the Elizabeth Arden Salon for its many special features, among them the Giant Roller, the Ardena or Foam Baths for losing weight easily.

SHE COMES to Elizabeth Arden for everything to do with Beauty the Elizabeth Arden Way.

New Supper Club Puzzles Miami Guests

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Not since dredgers took Miami Beach from the mosquitoes and coconuts to provide a winter Monte Carlo where superlatives long since have been exhausted has such interest attended erection of any Who's Who building, local or foreign, as has been accorded a new supper club here. It is now rapidly nearing completion within the heretofore sacred precincts of the swanky little town of Surfside and almost within the shadows of both the oustandingly and definitly exclusive Surf and Indian Creek clubs.

Speculation has been rife among founder members of the four Miami Beach "stop 'em at the door" clubs—the Surf, Bath, and Indian Creek clubs, and the Committee of One Hundred — ever since subterranean sources disclosed that the as yet unnamed supper club would he major domoed by Harry McLeod, recently of the Patio Moresque and Montauk Point.

Morning events occupy a new place in Miami's social program. Record crowds attended Monday morning races at Tropical Park, making way for the afternoon colorful Orange Bowl classic when more than 30,000 fans in dazzling tropical colors served as a kaleidoscopic background for eighteen georgeously uniformed bands. Practically every member of the Chicago colony was present.

This morning will witness the most colorful marine pageant of the year as five miles of boats follow out to sea a flotilla of more than 200 fishing boats bearing contestants for $15,000 worth of trophies. Every type of boat in the harbors of the Florida east coast will form five abreast with bands playing and flags aflutter to witness inauguration of Miami's fourth annual ninety-nine day fishing tournament.

Tiny outboard craft will hobnob with stately yachts and gay breakfast parties will enjoy blue skies above and sunlit waters beneath Deisel driven prows as the starting gun sees first baits hit the water. Airplanes participating in the All-American air maneuvers, which closed yesterday, will form a flying escort as the procession heads out to fish the blue depths of the Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. David J. Molloy were among patrons of last night's Aviation ball at the Biltmore Country club.

The Warren Wrights are expected this week from their Kentucky Calumet Farms to occupy their ocean front home.

The Harry Vaughns, who have taken a home on Alton road, entertained Tuesday night for their house guests, Mrs. Edward Meder, the Harry Hansens, and the Charles Masseys of Jacksonville, all formerly of Chicago. The Masseys will leave during the week to visit Commodore Ward at Palm Beach, and the Walter Smiths will arrive from Chicago to visit the Vaughns.

A number arrived by airplane from Chicago to attend the Wednesday morning wedding of Miss Elizabeth Wenger, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Wenger of Minneapolis, to J. Courtney Fitzpatrick, son of the Joseph E. Fitzpatricks of Chicago, at the Coral Gables Church of the Little Flower.

The Rev. Father Francis J. Finnegan of Melbourne officiated. Mrs. D. Cameron Baker, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mr. Baker was best man.

Following a West Indian cruise, the Fitzpatricks will return to live at Chicago's Ambassador hotel.

Recent additions to the Surf club cabana colony include the Peter T. Potts, the Herbert W. Youngs, and George Crandell.

BETROTHAL IS ANNOUNCED

Miss Jean Borchers, whose engagement to be married to Earl V. Pierce has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Borchers of 2484 Estes avenue. Mr. Pierce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Pierce of Kenosha, Wis. Both Miss Borchers and Mr. Pierce were graduated from DePauw university in Greencastle, Ind.

You Can Make Furniture Wax at Small Cost

An inexpensive and excellent furniture polish can be made at home by following this formula:

1 cup of raw linseed oil
1 ounce of white beeswax
2 cups of turpentine

The beeswax should be shaved and dissolved in the linseed oil, which has been warmed in the upper part of a double boiler. Never heat it over a flame in an open pan as it is highly combustible.

A good furniture wax can be made by mixing turpentine and pure white beeswax in the following proportions: One-half pound of beeswax to one cup of turpentine. Again shave the wax into the turpentine and place the mixture over a radiator in some warm, but not hot place. Stir it often until it becomes pasty. Then let it cool and it is ready for use.

Announce Betrothal of Miss Geraldine Starrett

Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Starrett Jr. of Omaha, Neb., formerly of Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Geraldine, to Robert Ackerberg Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ackerberg of Chicago. Miss Starrett is a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. Ackerberg was graduated from Dartmouth college and from the University of Michigan law school.

Pasadena Back to Normal as Fete Is Ended

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

The gold and white banners that waved over Colorado boulevard for the 50th annual Tournament of Roses have been folded away. The Duke and U. S. C. emblems have come down, and Pasadena turns again to normal living after a gala week of preparation for the climax to her golden jubilee year.

Three thousand formally attired guests filled the Civic auditorium a few nights before the tournament actually took place to witness the colorful pageantry attendant upon the rose queen's coronation. More than twice that number danced in her honor later that evening in the adjoining ballroom.

The coronation of Miss Barbara Dougall marked the beginning of her year's reign and formally concluded that of her predecessor, Miss Cheryl Walker, who is a native of Chicago and the daughter of Mrs. Dale Walker. Ex-Queen Cheryl and her sister, Joan, were among the admirers who attended the coronation festivities.

Weather prophets and pessimists to the contrary, Pasadena succeeded in presenting sunshine to the thousands upon thousands who were her guests at the Rose tournament. And the fitful mists that fell upon the Duke-U. S. C. game did not discourage the near 90,000 fans who saw it through to its hair raising 7-3 finish.

The opening of Santa Anita on the 31st added much, of course, to the week-end festivity, and among those seen were the Robert Tinkbines and his father, E. C. Tinkbine, their two daughters and their son-in-law, Miss Helen Tinkbine and the Alex Hixons [Adalaide Tinkbine] of Palo Alto.

The M. Byron McNultys and daughter, Suzanne, and Mrs. McNulty's sister and husband, the Spencer Grants of San Francisco, went out together and that evening were guests at a New Year's eve dinner party given by Mrs. William Dougherty in Bradford street.

Mrs. C. M. Anthony of Peoria attended the race opening with Mrs. C. S. Eaton and that evening gave a small dinner party at the Vista del Arroyo, where she is staying.

The Robert E. Hunters took with them to Santa Anita their house guests, Mrs. G. Parker Toms of Burlingame, always a popular addition to Southland functions. Mrs. Toms was honored that day at luncheon by the Alfred Wrights and at a New Year's night dinner party by the Hunters [Gwendolyn Mitchell of Chicago].

Mr. and Mrs. George Marcy had Mrs. Frederick Rawson as their guest at the Huntington on New Year's eve, and in the Ship room of that hotel the William W. Lakes arranged a spur of the moment dancing party following dinner at their home. Their guests included the Walter Wolfs, George Cliffords, and Hallett Thornes.

Winifred Lewis Wed to Wilson Harwood Dec. 31

The wedding of Miss Winifred Lee Lewis of Evanston to Wilson Franklin Harwood of San Francisco took place on Dec. 31 at the home of Mrs. Leonard Peterson in Winnetka. The bride is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. Lee Lewis of Evanston, and Mr. Harwood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin B. Harwood of San Francisco. Both the bride and Mr. Harwood are graduates of Stanford university. They will make their home in San Francisco.

AT HOME IN AUSTIN

Mrs. August Grandsard and her bridegroom of last fall are at home at 208 North Menard avenue. She is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Purcell, daughter of the John P. Purcells. Mr. Grandsard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Grandsard of Oak Park.

Guard Against Faulty Cords in Home Equipment

During the new year season and all through the winter months that follow parties, presents, and toys introduce dangers into the home which can spell serious accidents, unless safety is the family watchword. A study of accident records in the home show that the chances of this type of trouble is greatest during the four months that follow Christmas.

With lamps and other electrical appliances in great use at this time, cords receive hard treatment, and worn or damaged ones on electrical appliances often lead to serious fires. An investment in safe cords throughout the home, cords which have been passed on by safety engineers of the Underwriters' laboratories, is excellent insurance against needless damage from fire.

Play safe, and not only select safe equipment, but repair and renew all dangerous frayed, worn, or damaged cords in your home. For from now until the end of March the danger season is at its height. More than half of all the fires from all causes last year and more than 30 per cent of all the fatal accidents occurred in homes. And so many of these were "preventable disasters!"

First Commercial Air Line Is 25 Years Old

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 7.—Leading flyers and air officials will gather here Jan. 10 to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the world's first commercial air line. The line began operation Jan. 1, 1914, between St. Petersburg and Tampa. A memorial shaft, erected on the site of the first takeoff, near the entrance to the present Recreation pier, is to be dedicated to the memory of the late Tony Jannus, whose Benoist flying boat made aviation history.

Please give me a brief description of Carlsbad caverns. My husband and I hope to go there this winter.—K. J.

They are the world's largest natural caves. They are situated in the Guadalupe mountains of New Mexico and [if one is traveling by rail] are reached by motor coach from El Paso. Discovered in 1901 by Jim White, cowboy-author, the caverns were set aside as a national monument in 1923 and in 1930 were proclaimed a national park. Since being taken over by the government they have been made easily accessible to the public. They have been lighted by powerful concealed floodlights, and broad footpaths have been built throughout the thirty-two miles of passageways. Also, an elevator has been installed to take passengers down to the 750 foot level. The limestone formations present an eerie picture. They include the "Rock of Ages," a huge stalagmite said to be more than 60 million years old; weird replicas of totem poles, lily pads, frozen waterfalls, giant pinnacles, and countless other fantastic figures. The "Big Room," or largest cavern, is more than three-quarters of a mile long and 1,000 feet wide. Temperature in the caverns remains constant winter and summer.

I have heard of some place in Wales where a belief in witchcraft lingered until early in the nineteenth century. Is this true, and, if so, what information can you give me about it?

—K. D. P.

American visitors to St. Elian's well, not far from Colwyn Bay, have found that the story is true. The ancient well was used to put a curse upon persons against whom the Welsh entertained a grudge. This medieval convenience, unique in the British Isles but not unknown to several places on the continent, was known as a "cursing well." There it was customary to call down the vengeance of St. Elian upon one's enemies. The ceremony was performed by an old woman, who [after she had received a sufficient fee] put the name of the accursed upon a piece of lead and dropped it into the water, meanwhile muttering imprecations and prayers. Sometimes the intended victim heard about the sinister doings and paid the old woman another fee to take the curse off again. This she did by reciting psalms and drinking water from the well. These under cover appeals to witchcraft as a way of settling scores against foes who could not be reached in any other way continued until 1818, when the attendant at the well was jailed for twelve months for receiving money under false pretenses. After that the place lost its attraction for seekers after vengeance.

TRIPS—VACATIONS

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

TOURS—CRUISES

Skiers in Alps Ride to Peaks in Air Ferries

PARIS.—[U. P.]—The most complete system of cableways in Europe, joining many of the famous winter sports resorts in the Mont Blanc district of the French Alps, has been completed.

The system is particularly well developed between the two leading centers, Chamonix and Megeve. Winter sports enthusiasts from these two towns will be able to cross five mountains, with hardly any climbing, in changing from one cableway to the next.

The lines have been arranged in such a way so as to give the skier the largest choice of downhill runs with the minimum of climbing, one of them providing five without a single climb. Each time the skier leaves one cableway, he skis down to a station from which another takes him to the top of a different run. In this system after five successive changes he is taken back to his starting point.

Another line takes the skier to the takeoff of the Olympic run. This line rises to 6,000 feet in eight minutes.

Two of the highest lines go up from Chamonix. They both rise 8,000 feet above sea level, and offer the skier a descent of more than 5,000 feet to the valley.

While reducing the physical efforts connected with winter sports to a minimum, these "air ferries" are violently attacked by many old sports lovers who remember the days when only those seeking the real sport in skiing ever attempted to climb these mountains.

It spoils that intense sense of domination and attainment, they say, a feeling which only those having strived to reach the top can fully enjoy. This effortless means of transportation which carries the skier over what might be five walking hours in only a few minutes can never give him that satisfaction of the "conquered territory" upon reaching the top, they insist.

However, a distance which could hardly be covered in a week is possible now in a day with these modern cableways. For this reason more than 100 hotels collaborate in an interchangeable ticket plan. That is, the visitor staying in Megeve and who is desirous of having lunch in Chamonix and dinner in some third place can, before leaving his hotel in the morning, demand a certain number of tickets, exchangeable for the meals taken outside his own hotel.

Game, Tree, and Phenomenon Go to Make Resort

PINEHURST, N. C.—A game, a tree, and a geographic phenomenon have made this New England appearing village in the south a fall, winter, and spring resort. The game is golf, the tree the long leaf pine, and the phenomenon is the sand hills which provide a salubrious desert air.

The village was founded in 1895 by James W. Tufts, a wealthy Bostonian, who bought a rather desolate tract of 6,000 acres with the idea of making it a large peach growing center where his friends in the north could come to take advantage of the climate. The plan progressed until a blight infected the orchards. Then Mr. Tufts decided to make Pinehurst a winter resort.

Now there are seven golf courses in the region. They are the scenes of professional and amateur tournaments which attract the leading players of the nation.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Many Chicagoans seeking passports are still going to the new postoffice building for them. The passport office was moved back last October to the old postoffice building, now known as the United States courthouse.

Cuba's ability to handle a real tourist rush will receive its severest test next Thursday, with the opening of the winter racing season at Oriental Park. James H. Jarvis, manager of the National hotel in Havana, relates that the advance bookings indicate the island will have a greater season than ever before. Nearly a quarter million dollars has been spent in beautifying the park and the Casino Nacional. Swimming, track, aviation, tennis, and jai alai events will be held throughout January and February.

"Daylighting the Trail of the Padres" is the title of the travelog to be given at the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. The sound film, depicting the California missions, will be shown by the Southern Pacific Lines and introduced by C. D. Darkus.

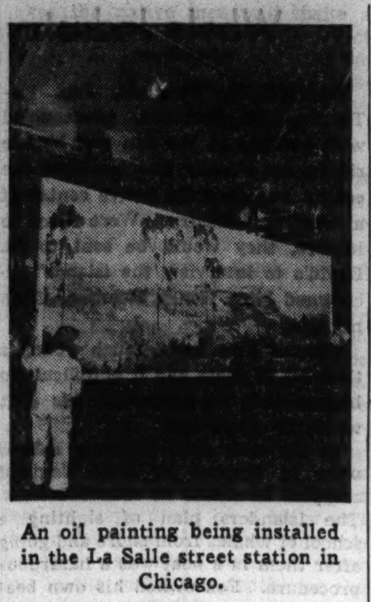
Announcement of an eight day, all expense tour of the deep south, including three days in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras celebration, was made last week by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway. The party will leave Chicago Feb. 17.

Easter in Rome is to be a feature of a spring tour arranged by the American Express Travel service. Sailing on the Italian liner Rex March 25, the travelers will visit Cannes, Genoa, Naples, Florence, Milan, Venice, the Italian lakes, Ragusa, Patras, Palermo, Algiers, Lisbon, and the Azores. Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, and Easter Sunday are to be spent in Rome.

P. A. S. Franklin has retired as chairman of the board of the International Mercantile Marine company and the United States Lines company. He will continue as a director of both.

Next Thursday the United Air Lines expects to fly its 25,000th transcontinental trip over the New York-Chicago-California airway. Pointing out that this is a world record, President W. A. Patterson says the flights are equivalent to 66 million miles of travel. In the last twelve years the flying time has been cut from thirty-three hours to sixteen.

Harold P. Borer, general passenger manager of Cunard-White Star, Ltd., announced last week that his company and its associate, the Donaldson Atlantic Line, carried a total of 176,959 passengers on their trans-Atlantic vessels in 1938. Figures quoted include 17,886 passengers carried on various cruises, among which was a voyage around the world, another to the North cape, and more than a score of special voyages to the West Indies, the Saguenay, Bermuda, and Nassau. The Queen Mary, flagship of the line and fastest merchantman afloat, totaled 52,459 passengers. Mr. Borer said Cunard-White Star has scheduled the new Mauretania to sail from England June 17 on her maiden voyage for New York. The liner, the largest ever built in England, will leave July 1 on her first eastbound crossing. The Queen Elizabeth, world's largest ship, registering 85,000 tons and now being completed on the Clyde, will make her maiden voyage in 1940, celebrating the 100th anniversary of the first trans-Atlantic sailing of a Cunard ship. This was the Britannic, which left Liverpool for America July 4, 1840.



An oil painting being installed in the La Salle street station in Chicago.

An art gallery of eight oil paintings, illustrating travel, hereafter will greet the eyes of those who pass through La Salle street station in Chicago. The paintings, each more than twenty feet long, have been installed by the Rock Island and the New York Central railroads. They surmount the train gates in the concourse and are illuminated by floodlights. Depicting scenes in California, Arizona, Colorado, Yellowstone, and eastern tourist points, they are the work of C. J. Bergstrom.

The Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd has discontinued tourist class on the steamers St. Louis and Berlin and has transferred these quarters to the third class.

Chicagoans wishing to "take the cure" close to home are being taken in large numbers to Whitcomb Sulphur Springs at St. Joseph, Mich. The spa, ninety-five miles from this city, is reached by both bus and railroad. The drive by auto requires about two and a half hours.

An ice show called "A Fantasy in Eskimo Land" is to be a part of this year's Michigan Winter carnival. The ten day spectacle is to open at Petoskey Feb. 3.

A cruise to western Europe on the Patria next summer has been announced by the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd. Sailing from New York June 26, the new liner will visit Madeira, Morocco, Portugal, France, England, Belgium, Holland, Scotland, Norway, Denmark, and Germany. The cruise is to last 43 days. The 15,000 ton Patria is hailed as the world's largest Diesel-electric ship.

With the completion of new paved highways between Memphis, Tenn., and New Orleans, it is now possible to reach the Gulf coast by bus twenty-seven hours after leaving Chicago. A seven day, all expense trip, using the new service, has been arranged by Greyhound for winter vacationists. The route traverses the Lincoln country, Little Egypt, western Tennessee, and the land of Evangline.

The annual Chicago National Boat and Sports show at Navy pier has been set for Feb. 26 to March 5, inclusive. As usual, its displays will be designed to appeal to vacationists, yachtsmen, fishermen, and hunters.

Edward Flynn, executive vice president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, announced yesterday that his railroad had completed eleven years without a single passenger death resulting from a train accident. In that time 96,618,121 persons traveled on the Burlington for a total of 5,201,904,457 miles.

Fishing Tourney to Start Today

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—With an aerial armada escort, Miami's fleet of 300 charter fishing boats will move out to the gulf stream tomorrow to start the fourth annual fishing tournament.

Stunt and speed flyers, ending the All-American air maneuvers here, will join with anglers in launching the game fishing event which last season saw 102,000 sportsmen from four nations participating. Contestants will fish for more than 700 specimens of marine life found in the tropical waters.

Winter vacationists will turn out next Wednesday for the Inaugural handicap, starting the forty-six day racing meet at Hialeah park. On the same day another forty-six day meet will begin at Gulfstream park in Hollywood, Fla.

Climate Lures Winter-Weary Souls to Gulf

By Dorothy Schmidt.

Last winter, seeking health and a new outlook on life, we embarked on a great adventure. Where did we go? To the Gulf coast.

We'd always known that life in the south is a delightful blend of enterprise and leisurely existence, but not that the "deep" south could so completely transform one and inspire a happily permanent adjustment to living. We came back from the Gulf country with a relaxed state of mind. We attribute this change to the soothing therapy of the climate, the most perfect in America, to our way of thinking. Its languor helps to budget energy sensibly. One does what he wishes, but doesn't dissipate strength in "nerves."

In record time we were in Pass Christian, Miss., which we made our headquarters, branching out from this more or less centrally located seaside resort for our pleasant trips into New Orleans, La., and Gulfport and Biloxi, Miss. We saved a visit to Corpus Christi, Tex., for our circuitous return trip to Chicago.

The "inn" which we made our home is famous for its beauty, appointments, food, and service. It carefully avoids any suggestion of hotel atmosphere. The architecture is Spanish, and within the low and rambling walls there is hospitality in the finest southern tradition. The inn is outside the town limits of Pass Christian, colloquially known as "the Pass." This neat little city was named for Christian l'Adner, an explorer who traversed the pass in 1699.

Since its founding Pass Christian has preserved its natural beauty. What "improvements" have been made in the name of modernism have not trespassed on the native loveliness of unmarred shoreline and dense groups of live oaks hung with moss. A sea wall along which it is a great pleasure to walk extends from Gulfport to the Pass. The beaches are superb, a bright white sand and temperate sea water. Pass Christian is situated on Bay St. Louis, a bend in Mississippi sound, a part of the Gulf of Mexico. Swimming, sailing, and fishing are sports all can enjoy on the waters. Summer and winter, fishing is a great sport around Pass Christian. In winter there is hunting in the marshes. Golf is a popular pastime on the gulf, and the Pass is no exception. Many excellent courses are in the vicinity.

A trip up the bayous near the Pass is an experience not soon forgotten. The quiet waters and the adjoining shores, thick with vegetation, have the air of not ever having been seen by human eyes.

For years Pass Christian has been the summer rendezvous of New Orleanians, since its climate is so temperate. Visitors from the northern states return winter after winter to escape skidding temperatures and snow, and often their projected short visits lengthen into stays of many weeks. Loath to leave the comforts of the gulf coast, visitors linger far into spring, always a problematical season up north.

Like Pass Christian, Gulfport, a few miles to the east along the sea, is a friendly city. It is neat and modern and replete with natural beauties which include a wooded shoreline, magnificent beaches, and scenic sea wall, and riotous color in the well kept gardens. Residents of Gulfport evidently take exceptional pride in their estates. Nowhere have we seen so many magnificent gardens. If there is any one thing by which we could remember Gulfport and its sister cities, it is the vegetation, both "wild" and cultivated. Flowers grow in a blaze of color and a semi-tropical foliage makes possible in trees and lawns an everlasting verdure. Pines, live oaks, magnolias, camphor trees, and palms grow luxuriantly.

We remember being absolutely overwhelmed, in the Middlegate Japanese gardens in Pass Christian, by the scent of the star, or confederate, jasmine. There is no fragrance like it anywhere else in the world, we swear, and if only the perfumers would distill its pungent aroma so that we could dream with it twenty-four hours a day!

[Ragusin Photo.]

Fronting the sea at Gulfport are hotels and homes that testify to the fact that southerners and northerners alike find it a pleasurable retreat in winter and summer, too.

Biloxi is almost a synonym for a southern vacation. With all its historical color and resort features it is a modern city. The "peninsula city" is a fisherman's paradise and a Utopia for golfers. The beauty of Biloxi is traditional. Nature has lavished her colors clear to the water's edge. Some of the south's finest resort hotels are situated in Biloxi. Aside from its benefits to health, the city is a stimulus to the mind, for it is rich in historical significance. There are many landmarks that are reminiscent of the past, recalling dates particularly important to "Dixie," and others that go back deeply into the city's earliest history. Residents say "seven flags have flown over Biloxi"—the French, Spanish, English, confederate states, United States, Mississippi state, and Mississippi Magnolia. Much of the old city still is preserved, and everywhere there is the flavor of the past making richer the modern present.

If you like sea food you will, of course, think of the Gulf coast first, and Biloxi is one of the most important Gulf cities in this respect. It calls itself the "nation's fish basket," and that's no understatement.

Whereas visitors to New Orleans don't always venture along the coast to the Gulf cities we've mentioned, Gulf visitors in general almost always go to New Orleans. The fame of good cooking and the Vieux Carré, or old French quarter, lure them there.

The Vieux Carré is the "heart" of New Orleans. There one finds mingled beauty, history, and romance. The conglomerate Creole architecture, and the narrow streets framed by houses that bear the unobliterated traces of French and Spanish influences, make this section rich in appeal. The Vieux Carré is a phenomenon in itself, famous the world over. If you've never seen it you haven't "been around."

In uptown New Orleans there is what is known as the "garden district," with its lovely antebellum homes. There the spirit of the old south, with its tradition of fine living and gracious hospitality, is preserved. Representative of the present day in New Orleans are its civic improvements, its magnificent harbor, and modern buildings. There really are three eras united in New Orleans: That of early French and Spanish settlement, that of civil war days, and that of streamlined modernism. It's a city of charming contrasts . . . never a dull moment.

And if you are an epicure, or have fond hopes of becoming a gourmet, there's no better place to indulge your desire than New Orleans, where the Creole cooking is like none other anywhere.

Colorful New Orleans is celebrated for an outstanding annual event, the Mardi gras. Visitors to the Mardi gras think of nothing else than returning the following year. It's a pageant without an equal. The exciting and brilliant carnival, a prelude to Lent, is an almost fantastic period of merry-making that reaches its climax on Shrove Tuesday, or Mardi gras day, the day immediately preceding Ash Wednesday, when the city doffs its masks and once more assumes its conventionality.

At Mardi gras ball the king and queen of the carnival are crowned, and Rex, the mighty Mardi gras monarch, is seen greeting his subjects as his gorgeous pageant winds its way through the narrow streets.

This year the festival dates are Feb. 16 to 21 and, as always, historical New Orleans will open its hotels and private homes to all of America.

Whereas fisheries play an important rôle in the commerce of other Gulf cities, Corpus Christi, Tex., to the west, shares its wealth of oil with the world. It also shares its natural beauties and hospitality with sportsmen and vacationists. There is about the city an air of constant growth, the spirit of enterprise for which the west always has been known, but it has the south's love of living, too, with the added zest of love of life.

Residents are inclined to call their city the "Naples of the Gulf." Much as we dislike patent descriptions, we are forced to agree in this case. In Corpus Christi there are the semitropics at their best. Nature isn't fickle there, but she believes in variety. Swimmers, fishermen, golfers, and boating enthusiasts are welcome and happy in Corpus Christi. The change of the seasons has little influence on the city's outdoor life. There is no "rainy" season on the Gulf. A bit of rain for a brief while and then sunshine through the clouds. This is true of Corpus Christi, too.

We haven't, by any means, told you all there is to say about the Gulf coast and its magnificent advantages to the vacationist. We've merely scratched the surface, but hope we've given you more than a hint of what's in store for you along the Gulf of Mexico.

Overseas Highway.

MIAMI, Fla.—Visitors to Miami this winter will be next door to the longest overseas road in the world. Leading from Miami to Key West, the southernmost city in the United States, the $30,000,000 Overseas highway traverses more than fourteen miles of navigable water, with the Atlantic on one side and the Gulf of Mexico on the other. One bridge is seven miles long.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

St. Anne, Ill., Dec. 18.—To the Travel Editor: I was very happy this morning when I saw that you had resumed the space for us shut-ins. No one but an invalid knows what it is to watch for the mailman in the hope that he will bring us news from the outside.

Please ask your readers to help bring happiness to these shut-ins: Miss Kathryn Hodges, Bellevue, Tex.; Miss Gertrude Jean, Darlington, Wis.; Billy Hill, Route 1, Morgantown, W. Va.; Cecil Lee, Route 1, Box 101, Yakima, Wash.; George Yama, Route 1, Box 101, Yakima, Wash.; Elmer Pearson, 115 12th street, McKeesport, Pa.; Miss Carolyn Lauer, Wheat Ridge, Colo.

I received much happiness after my name appeared in this column a year ago. Keep up the good work!

[Miss] Beulah Beaupre.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 26.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please place on your shut-in list the name of my son, who has been ill for the last two years and who gets very lonesome. He will be 26 years old Jan. 13. His name and address: John M. Lockwood, St. John's Sanitarium, Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. Allan Lockwood.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—To the Travel Editor: I should like to thank all the readers who were so kind in sending me cards and letters. They have brightened my otherwise weary hours. I didn't know there were so many splendid people in this world.

[Mrs.] Mildred Kory.

Brookfield, Ill., Dec. 28.—To the Travel Editor: I sincerely thank all those who remembered me with cards and letters at Christmas time. Happy New Year to them and to you!

[Mrs.] Sophia Krueger.

Noblesville, Ind., Dec. 20.—To the Travel Editor: May I, through your department, thank the many, many kind friends—for such I consider them—who have remembered me with cards, letters, books, and other reading material. I deeply appreciate their kindness. It is good to know that, in spite of all we hear of the thoughtlessness and selfishness in the world today, there are still a great number of persons who take time to think of those less fortunate than themselves.

I trust every one who has received greetings and messages through your column is as grateful as I am. I was treated to many hours of happiness during my illness; now I am almost well again. I extend to all who helped me my wishes for similar happiness in the year to come.

[Mrs.] Marie Caylor.

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 26.—To the Travel Editor: Mrs. C. M. Robbins of 510 West John street, Champaign, the mother of three children, has been confined to her bed for three months with subacute incarditis. We were able to provide her with an ordinary Christmas, but could not supply the cheer such as would come from the outside in the form of greetings. We have been living in Champaign only eighteen months, and have few acquaintances. Cards and letters would be gratefully received.

C. M. Robbins.

Paw Paw, Ill., Dec. 24.—To the Travel Editor: Will you kindly put Dorothy Jean Ulrey, Box 45, Paw Paw, on your list? She is 12 years old and suffering from a nervous breakdown, due to a scare some time ago. We find that keeping her mind on different and interesting things is helping her more than one could imagine. Cards or letters to her from your readers would be of great assistance on her road to recovery.

Mrs. Ulrey.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—To the Travel Editor: I was happy to see the return of the shut-in department. I missed it a great deal. I know a girl who, when very young, was stricken with an illness that has crippled her entire body. She sits all day in a chair built especially for her, and, as she lives in a small town, she does not have much contact with the outside world. I would deeply appreciate it if your kind travelers and other readers would drop her a card now and then. Am sure she would be very much surprised, as I am not writing her about this. Her name and address: Miss Ida Tucker, 107 West 7th avenue, Caney, Kas.

Fish Carry Lights.

At night on the north shore of Jamaica you can gaze down into the warm tropic waters and observe myriads of small fishes equipped with their own lights, with which to beguile their still more minute prey.

Bermuda Once Boasted of Its Whale Industry

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 7.—Tourists to Bermuda, preoccupied with basking in the sun and bicycle riding, are usually unaware that the colony was once the active center of a whaling industry. Were they to inquire, they would be sent to St. David's to interview the islands' uncrowned king, Henry Mortimer Tommy Fox.

Tommy Fox looks much younger than his 76 years and it is difficult to believe that he harpooned his first whale 59 years ago.

In the early days Bermuda sailors were in demand by New England skippers in search of crew members. The islanders plan of sighting a school of whales from shore and going after them in a boat was a hazardous procedure. Fox owned his own boat at an early age and was able to retire in 1910 with a modest fortune, chiefly invested in Bermuda real estate.

One of his claims to fame is the fact that he is one of the few Bermuda civilians possessing a firearm. Weapons are not allowed in the colony.

The Bermuda police force, like the London bobbies, carry nothing more deadly than a short night stick or truncheon.

An Indian Superstition.

It is an old superstition in India that if a girl permits her hair to curl in ringlets when she is married, she will, in time, lose her husband. So the young Hindu bride usually cuts any unruly ringlets from her head and plasters her hair down flat, in order to insure for herself a happy married life.

Tahitian's Life a Failure? He Has Everything!

By Anson Brown.

Papeete is the only recognized town on the isle of Tahiti. It encompasses about a mile of settlement along the shoreline of the coral harbor. Its two highest structures are a church, with a thin spire protruding above the palms, and a three story hotel of gray stone and cement. The main street, still known to some as the Broom road, curves with the lagoon in a dusty arc. The natives are wont to walk down its middle, for automobiles are not too numerous, and the inevitable bicyclist has become quite adept in dodging pedestrians.

If a voyaging visitor takes to himself one of these two wheeled vehicles he soons learns from the laughing taunts of the strollers that they, not he, expect the right of way. There are few trafic accidents and the most serious offense is to pump a bicycle through town at night without a flashlight. Most of the bicycles are the girl models without the top crossbar. One soon gets used to them. After all, this is Tahiti.

Three blocks of the main street are lined with two story shops run by Chinese. There is Ah You is his grocery store on a corner. He rubs his hands together and placidly says his baked beans are 30 cents a can. Offer him 14 cents and he wails, but turn to walk out and he trots after you with the beans. The bargain is set and he is still lamenting his fate as you walk away with the purchase. Another oriental shop may carry hardware, anything from harmonicas to magnetos, while farther down the roadway are sold oriental laces and carved camphorwood chests, all going for less than a song.

The Polynesians, as a rule, hate the Chinese. These yellow people are much too industrious. They are not accepted into any of the native social life, and until a few years ago threatened to gain control of all the island's interests. They permitted the simple Tahitians to come to their stores and charge any item they wished. Then, when the account remained unpaid, the case would go into the French court. Thus the Chinese began seizing native property, and the Polynesian, thrown off his land, would have to move in with relatives. Wisely the government awakened to the situation, made it illegal for any oriental in the future to own land, and now the child-like Tahitians have to pay cash on the line, even for a bar of chocolate.

All this commercial life, entering into the native's daily routine, has more or less baffled him. He is still awed by a beautiful cruise ship steaming into the harbor—awed by its luxurious fittings, the soft lounge chairs, the swimming pool, most of all the elevator. When an American recently erected a hot dog stand in Papeete the natives thronged to the opening. Few had any francs in their pockets. They did not come to buy. They came to watch the milkshake machine work! [I trust the gentleman went broke. Hot dogs in Tahiti, indeed. Might as well sell grass skirts on State street.]

[Anson Brown Photo.]

Shoot-the-chutes in Tahiti.

One day I saw a native girl thumbing through an American fashion magazine. For the moment she was deeply interested in the backless dresses, high heeled shoes, rhinestone bracelets. At length she tossed the magazine aside and with a laugh ran down to the warm beach to swim. I like to think that laugh was one of contempt. What need had she of all that? A pareu print wrapped around her from bosom to knee is much more attractive. Rhinestone is artificial; genuine, colorful, lightweight shells washed up by the seas can be strung on coconut fibre for jewelry. High heeled shoes would hurt her feet. If her feet hurt she would not laugh any more. When a Polynesian maiden ceases to laugh she is waiting for death.

The secret of a Tahitian's success in life is in his failure. Failure, yes, as far as the civilized white man's standard goes. When a native father dies he is unable to leave his children a thousand shares of stock, two motor cars, a life membership in the leading clubs. Yet when a South Seas babe is born he immediately inherits things far more valuable, though not precisely tangible—unless one can call a deep blue sky, the rumble of surf, the romantic lure of warmth and peace tangible. This is their heritage. How justly may they be envied!

Beyond the spot where the water touches the shore of Papeete, and far inland behind the town, a rugged, heavily vegetated mountain range stretches up until the tallest peak, 7,000 feet high, loses its top in hazy billows of clouds. Seldom is the peak seen, for the clouds cling to it like a heavy, descending halo. In among the lower hills of this range, sometimes hidden from the sun by circling walls of mountains, lie hidden lakes of mirror-calm, their ebony water surmounted by thin shorelines of palm and banana trees. To these lakes the native men will make a week's excursion to fish and collect mountain oranges and fei, wild bananas. In such waters, and in the lesser pools, the swimming afforded is the most refreshing in the world.

With a companion one day I went in search of some of the nearer pools. Three miles from Papeete are the Pierre Loti falls. There we hid the bicycles in a grove of pandanus and proceeded on foot. The rocky, moss-covered pathway sloped upward. We cut in among the banana plants and the coconut trees. A few small birds and butterflies darted ahead of us. The air was moist and warm. We crossed an ancient bridge and attacked the side of a mountain, pulling ourselves ahead and upward by roots and small trees, until at a thousand feet we stepped out on a ledge and looked down into the abyss. The valley river was only a string of silver lost in the soft green depths. At the end was a waterfall cascading from the side of a mountain, tumbling in white foam 600 feet to the tropical floor.

Proceeding along the narrow ledge and then through some high plateaus, we came to the top of the falls. Here, above it, stair stepped one behind the other, were the pools we had been seeking. Each one was about 20 feet across and ended in a ten foot waterfall into the one below. The boulders supporting the falls were covered with slick, green moss.

Still dressed in shorts and sandals, we dove in the top pool and went shooting down the falls to the next. From here another mossy, natural slide zoomed us down into the middle one. It was wise to stay out of the bottom pool, for from there the 600 foot drop commenced. After a few minutes some of the natives joined us, taught us a game of water baseball with a floating coconut, and laughed at our "discovering" the pools. They had been sliding down these same aquatic shoot-the-shoots all their lives.

The island of Tahiti is a veritable playground, whether it be hunting mountain boars, swimming, or sun bathing on her beaches. If you go down there for a month's vacation you had best first arrange the business at home, for you may stay six months. And don't say I didn't warn you!

Concerts Under Palms.

MIAMI, Fla.—Symphony concerts, with appearances by ranking guest artists, are filling Miami's open air bandshell in Bayfront park this season. They will continue throughout the winter months.

Panama City and Colon Built Long Before the Canal

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Atlantic port of entry to a strip of leased territory across the narrow part of the Republic of Panama, is the gateway to a scene that dates back through the centuries. Panama City and Colon, ancient and colorful, and Cristobal and Balboa, modern and military, are easily available to the Caribbean traveler.

Panama City and Colon are not outgrowths of the accomplishment of the canal. They are cities founded four centuries ago, the terminals of a paved causeway built to carry the unrecorded riches of the conquistadores, with a legend of pirates, buccaneers, and the freebooters of the Spanish Main. A virtual kaleidoscope of nations, they owe their atmosphere to a commerce that dates back to the fifteenth century. The parade of nations began with the Spaniards and Negro slaves, Inca chiefs and native Indians and was carried on by the English buccaneers, the French corsairs, the forty-niners, Hindus, Chinese, and Arabs. Descendants of these early merchants pass through the streets today,

Balboa and Cristobal contrast sharply with Panama City and Colon in all respects except natural tropic beauty. They have modern wharves, custom houses, drydocks, administration buildings, rows of neat houses with clipped green lawns, and a note of military efficiency.

More Ski Runs in the Laurentians

SHAWBRIDGE, Que., Jan. 7.—New contributions to the cause of ski tourism are to be had this year in the Laurentian mountains, north of Montreal, that already boast more than one thousand miles of ski trails.

Ranking in importance is the Maple Leaf trail, an 80-mile highway for skiers, cutting through the mountains from Shawbridge to Mont Tremblant. One of the finest skiroads in the province of Quebec, it links a large number of less important trails.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

In the last few years Europe has been reaping its largest tourist harvests from the expositions at Glasgow, Paris, Rome, and Oslo. . . . Next year the principal crop will be harvested at the Olympic games in Helsingfors. . . . But this year the most fertile field promises to be at Zurich. . . . The Swiss National exposition, to be held there May 6 to Oct. 29, will boast of such attractions as a federal yodeling festival, Alpine and costume fêtes, all manner of folkplay performances, and the usual quota of musical and sporting events.

● But Switzerland is to have plenty of competition. . . . Every other major country overseas will go after our dollars with pageants, plays, and tournaments. . . . Even Spain, which has been mainly occupied with cutting its own throat for the last two and a half years, is trying to get back onto the travel map. . . . All its patron saints' days will be observed in '39, and Holy week promises to reveal once more that the Spaniards are second only to the Italians in putting on religious ceremonies. . . . Moreover, bullfights have been announced for Burgos, Cadiz, Cordova, Granada, Leon, Pamplona, and Seville.

● Americans thinking of a trip to the old world this winter, spring, or summer are advised that these are some of the things awaiting them:

Sweden's Lingiad, opening at Gothenburg April 15. . . . This is a huge physical culture celebration, honoring Peter H. Ling, founder of Swedish gymnastics. . . . It is to be continued at Stockholm, starting July 20, when King Gustav will be present.

Germany's trade fair at Leipzig, along with medieval pageants at Rothenburg and elsewhere. . . . The Wagner festivals at Bayreuth will run from July 25 to Aug. 28. . . . The date of the music festival at Salzburg has not been definitly set, but it probably will be late in July.

Italy's Medici exposition at Florence, from May till October. . . . Throughout the spring Milan will display the art and inventions of Leonardo da Vinci. . . . In April and May Syracuse is to give Greek dramas in its ancient arena.

The Netherlands' "Mendel" tulip show at Sassenheim, opening Jan. 17; the daffodil show at the same place a month later; the flower show at The Hague, beginning March 30, and the blooming of the bulb fields, from early April until the middle of May.

France's frolics along the Riviera, ending with the cremation of King Carnival LXI. Feb. 21. . . . Pardons and benedictions of the sea in Brittany and Normandy, pilgrimages to Lourdes and Lisieux, and horse racing at Longchamp, Auteuil, Vincennes, and Tremblay. . . . The Grand Prix has been set for June 25.

The British Isles' military tournaments at Olympia, Aldershot, and Tidworth. . . . The Grand National, March 24; the Derby, May 23 to 26; the Dublin Horse show, starting Aug. 8. . . . At both London and Birmingham, the British Industries fair, Feb. 20 to March 3. . . . The Wimbledon lawn tennis championships, June 26 to July 8.

Poland's brilliant pilgrimages and processions, from early spring to late summer. . . . The biggest day in that country is to be Aug. 15, when, at shrines such as that at Czestochowa, as many as 50,000 costumed peasants will be seen all at one time.

Accidental Basins.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Miami Beach's yacht basins were created almost by accident. Sufficient bay bottom land was pumped into the low spots to dig several ideal basins.

'Extra' Woman No Longer Is a Lonely Hermit

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

It is probable that Marjorie Hillis, author of "Live Alone and Like It" [Bobbs-Merrill], has done more to buoy up the spirits and cheer up the lives of what are known as "extra women" than any one else to date.

The extra woman is a product of our modern times, of course, but until Miss Hillis issued her classic tome on how to live alone and make life charming, pleasurable, and satisfactory, the single woman considered herself more or less a fifth wheel. By the extra woman is meant the woman without immediate masculine attendance, such as a husband or a suitor, on hand to provide the other half of the traditional twosome. She may be a widow or a divorcée, or she may be, and more often is, the single woman earning her own income with a life of her own to plan and make.

On her countrywide lecture tour Miss Hillis takes the extra woman for one of her topics. Another is the art of gracious living. After a visit in Miss Hillis' apartment, one could never doubt her authority on both subjects. She dispenses the warmth and the charm of the perfect hostess against a background in which good taste is expressed in every detail of furnishing.

When she was in town for a few days between lecture dates, we asked Miss Hillis for a recipe for gracious living. Making do what you have and making it do beautifully and effectively, instead of bemoaning what you haven't, Miss Hillis offers as the important ingredient in gracious living. People, we inferred from Miss Hillis' conversation, waste a great deal of valuable time postponing until that day they can have what some other individual already has. Your establishment never is too simple, your means rarely too limited, to entertain graciously. "A four room apartment," says Miss Hillis, "with a foyer that does double duty as a dining room may be just as chic as an eight room one with a large and handsome dining room. Or, instead of the four room apartment, yours may be but a two room affair. Or it may be a one room and your kitchen a hole in the wall. Whatever it is, you can make it, and you presiding over it, effective, smart and YOU."

After her platform talks, it gratifies Miss Hillis to have one of the so-called extra women approach her with her own story of how she had adopted the modern viewpoint in the possession of her own home, in which she is in full command, her own furnishings, her own taste, and her freedom to enjoy a social life of her own. The lot of the extra woman today is a happy one compared with her prototype of the past, the real spinster dependent upon the bounty and the will of others. Even in the smaller cities where apartments may not be so available, Miss Hillis finds that women of the "extra" classification will persuade the owner of a large house, a widow maybe, to remodel so as to permit an apartment for the single breadwinner.

Having that place of her own has a peculiarly revitalizing effect. As things are today, the extra woman can and does round out her social life in a completely satisfactory manner. True, our authority agrees that there always are certain types who can't fend for themselves, or won't, and all that's to be said for and about them is that it's just too bad. The extra woman can arrange her life happily and well, but she has to "go and get it."

"You've got to decide what kind of a life you want and then make it for yourself," says Miss Hillis.

"Never, never, never let yourself feel that anybody ought to do anything for you. Once you become a duty, you become a nuisance."

Miss Hillis tells of a San Francisco widow who, in spite of her big home, boasting the conventional kitchen, installed a sort of kitchenette at the end of her large living room. She explained the kitchenette with its well stocked shelves: "Men like to cook, and there's more informality to a party when they do it."

Miss Hillis observes this growing interest in cooking by men the country over as well as by women. She herself admits to being more thrilled over a compliment on something she's cooked than on something she's written. And, incidentally, related how one Connecticut maidless country hostess solved the problem of feeding the "just dropped in guests." She set up a salad bar, keeps it stocked with canned shrimp, crabmeat, etc., and vegetable salad makings, and tells guests to go mix their own.

Interest in people is one of Miss Hillis' traits, from which her stimulating philosophy is gleaned, no doubt. Amusedly she tells of a third or fourth cousin's life on a fine big ranch, which represented to Miss Hillis the seemingly perfect existence as compared to the hectic life of a writer-lecturer, city driven individual. On her last tour she met up with said relative to learn from her that she was planning to get away from the ranch to take a rest cure. After enumerating all the duties of a woman overseeing a large ranch, the rest cure need was understandable, also the fact that the green hills far away remain far, far away.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of The Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

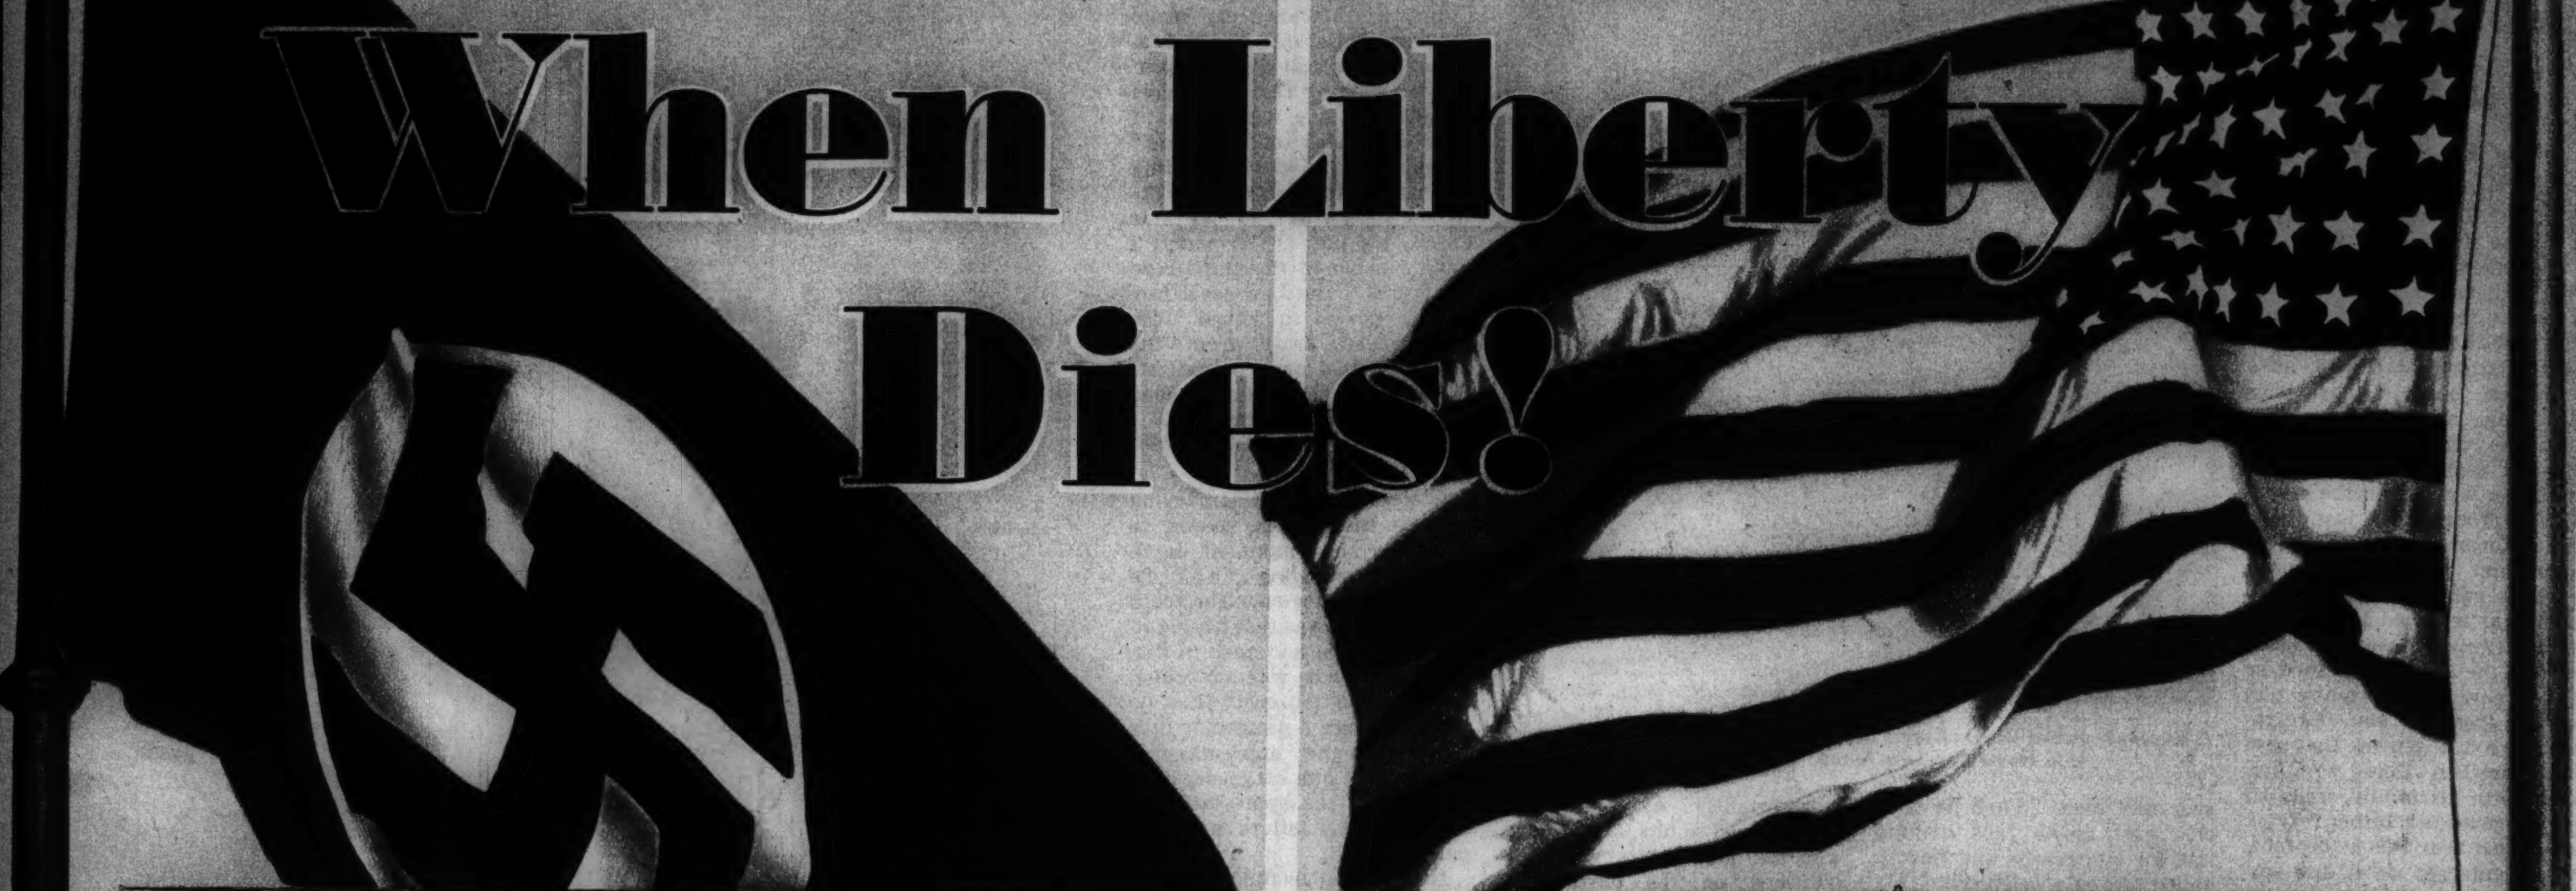
When Liberty Dies!



EQUAL·JUSTICE·UNDER·LAW

A comparison of individual liberties as laid down in the American constitution (at right) with the same individual rights as they are curtailed or nonexistent in Germany today (at left).

I.

Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and the right of assembly have been suspended in Germany. The German government controls the church, collects the church tax, pays the priest and the parson.

II.

Military service is compulsory in Germany. Every male citizen must serve six months in the labor service and at least two years in the regular army.

III.

Civilians must quarter soldiers in time of peace or war, and turn over equipment and goods to the army whenever authorities deem this necessary.

IV.

The Gestapo can make arrests, raid private homes, or seize private property without warants or other legal instruments.

V.

The Gestapo can hold prisoners without trial or public hearings as long as it pleases. Trial by jury is not guaranteed.

VI.

Many trials in Germany are held secretly. According to Nazi ideology, the judge must not consider the rights of the individual, but of the people as a whole. Nazis hold that "what is good for the nation is right." The individual is not important.

VII.

Ruthlessness is considered a powerful weapon in the hands of the government agencies and is approved by the Nazi state.

VIII.

Persons of Jewish blood and those branded officially as dangerous to the state do not enjoy the same rights as "Aryan Germans."

I.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press.

II.

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

III.

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

IV.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated.

V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb.

VI.

In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury.

VII.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

VIII.

The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

The Truth About Nazi Germany

By JOHN DICKSON

Copenhagen.

THE RIGHT of a German citizen to say what he pleases, to meet whom he pleases, to read what he pleases, to live where he pleases, to mate with whom he pleases, to eat what he wants, to earn his money where and when he pleases, to hear what may interest him, to travel where he wants, is strictly curtailed in Germany—or exists only so far as an anonymous body, the Gestapo (G. S. P.), or secret police, is willing to tolerate it.

● The mission of this body is to control and apprehend all elements that could be dangerous to the Nazi state. It is empowered to arrest and detain suspects without trial as long as it deems suitable. It may confiscate property. There is no appeal against a decision of the Gestapo.

● Nazi Germany has officially and openly suspended the rights of free speech, of assembly, of free worship, of trial by jury, of speedy trial, of freedom of the press, of habeas corpus, of property guaranteed to every citizen.

● "It is for the good of the nation," Nazis say. Since Hitler's conquest of Austria and Sudetenland millions believe it more strongly than ever.

● An American well acquainted with Germany realizes daily that the German senses the restrictions of civil liberties infinitely less acutely than the American. For centuries the German has been taught to obey all authorities "for the sake of the fatherland."

● Under the German republic millions got their first taste of democratic privileges (Continued on page three.)

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Lew Ayres—Comeback King

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

LOOKING BACK at 1938, you are impressed with the comeback of Lew Ayres, the Minneapolis youngster. It sounds a trifle absurd to suggest that at his age Ayres would need anything as drastic as a comeback, because most boys at his age haven't arrived the first time. Yet it is a truth that the last year served as a pulmotor for Ayres, and the revivification process came just at the right moment, because he was down and pretty nearly out when he got the part in "Holiday" that returned him to Hollywood favor. If you will think back to the Hepburn picture, or if you saw it (not many did, judging from the box office returns), Ayres played the part of her brother. Bored with life, bored with his family, irritated by his pompous father, Ayres had a part that was actorproof, but he enlarged on it and embroidered it with touches of cinema wisdom that made him overnight one of the most discussed performers of the town.

Ayres didn't see the preview in Hollywood. It meant a great deal to him, and he was a nervous wreck. Early in the evening he started wandering around from one night club to another to make the time pass more quickly, and when I saw him at the Trocadero it was a little after 11 o'clock at night. "You were wonderful, Lew," I told him. "Honestly?" he asked. "Honestly," I assured him. "Thank God for that," he said, and there was so much emotion in the single line that you realized the tension with which he had awaited a verdict. He gulped down a glass of water hastily, picked up a napkin on the table instead of picking up the check which the waiter had brought, hastily realized his error, stuck the napkin in his pocket, forgot to leave a tip, and exited in general confusion.

You can pardon Ayres' happy confusion that night, because ten years were piling up on him. Just about ten years ago Ayres first became the sensation of this town. That was the night that Greta Garbo's "The Kiss" was previewed. Ayres scored a tremendous success. Then a year later, in January of 1930, Ayres again heard the Hollywood drums beating out a tattoo in his honor. That was at the première of "All Quiet on the Western Front," and that night they patted him on the back and assured him that he was the greatest young actor the town ever had seen. When he traveled east movie fans mobbed him for autographs and Europe hailed him as a celebrity.

A bit player named Ginger Rogers giggles at the marriage license bureau with Movie Star Lew Ayres. This was in 1934.

Along the pathway to success Ayres met and married Ginger Rogers, at that time an ambitious youngster who had not won too many good breaks. She was playing bits; he was a great star. Then they separated and it seemed that as his star declined her star rose more and more brightly. Ayres, the star, was reduced to bits, and Ginger, who had played bits, was fully launched on the partnership with Fred Astaire that was to make her one of the top names of her profession.

Say it for Ayres, and say it distinctly, that he never indulged in self-pity. He kept his chin up. As players do when the spotlight has been withdrawn from them, he started a gradual withdrawal from the social life of Hollywood. Perhaps this was a measure of self-protection, because the head waiters in this town can make life very miserable for a has-been. In the full glow of stardom it was: "Yes, Mr. Ayres—right this way, Mr. Ayres: I have a ringside table for you." When a player starts skidding the head waiters check their obsequiousness as an ex-star checks his hat. "I'm sorry; I have a table in the third row, Mr. Ayres." But Lew never protested, never squawked. He just stayed away from the places he had once patronized. It saved money, and it saved heartaches and aggravation.

It was this period of varying fortune that Ayres needed to give him the emotional depth and understanding that he would need later on. The truth of the matter was that his greatest misfortune had been in succeeding when he was too young. Success won too easily has no value, because a performer thus is denied the apprenticeship that teaches him his trade; he is denied, too, the appreciation of success that a failure is able to generate.

His varying fortunes converted a care-free kid into a thinking man. His performance in "Holiday" indicated that he had been buffeted and kicked around. That's why it was a performance that caused the critics to toss their hats in the air and persuaded M-G-M to sign him for the "Young Dr. Kildare" series. Ayres had been graduated from the class of good looking juveniles. He had learned something about the minor notes of life.

A scene from "Holiday"—the picture that started Ayres on his comeback trail. Left to right are Katharine Hepburn, Ayres, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, and Harry Kolker.

As a youngster he knew only the major notes. That was natural enough, because Ayres started out as one of the earliest of American crooners. He had served vocal hitches with Henry Halstead's band, with Phil Harris' band, and with Ray West's outfit at the Coconut Grove. Dad had given him a musical appreciation, as the father had been a cellist with the Minneapolis Symphony. The son turned to the banjo and guitar.

Ayres is not the only Minnesota youngster who has staged a comeback in the last twelvemonth. In a daily column I've already commented on the fine comeback achieved by Ann Sothern, another Minneapolis youngster. She quit the films for a year, preferring to wait for the type of part she wanted instead of playing daffy rôles at RKO. "Trade Winds" put her back in the important money class. Virginia Bruce, Joan Davis, and Walter Abel are a few others from Minnesota who are doing very nicely at this writing. In "There Goes My Heart" Miss Bruce showed a comedy flair that indicated her versatility and cinema growth. Maybe Fredric March is lucky for these Minnesotans; he played opposite Ann Sothern in "Trade Winds" and played opposite Virginia Bruce in her flicker.

Lew Ayres hopes that 1939 will be his biggest year. "I've learned a lot I never knew before," he tells you with a twinkle in his eyes. "This time I'll hold on to success more tightly than I did ten years ago, because now it means something to me."

Back 70 Years with The Tribune!

The Tribune is pleased to print this letter from Louis Wilbur Felt, 703 Junior terrace, Chicago, who was inspired to reminisce about days on The Tribune seventy years ago by the series of articles describing this newspaper.

Monday, Dec. 19, 1938.

IN RECENT issues of The Chicago Sunday Tribune I read with keen interest in the Graphic section the story of the Tribune plant from its early inception, and a most particular interest it had for me, for it carried me back in memory to an early connection, since which time it has been my constant companion. That was seventy years ago—and as I dream I recall:

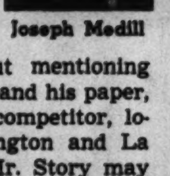
Do you remember 'way back when the river was the dividing line for the north and south street numbers, and The Tribune was located at 153-155 South Clark street, near Randolph street, in a two-story-and-basement building? Joseph Medill, owner and editor, occupied a little cubbyhole of an office partitioned off with upright flooring on the second floor. Rand, McNally & Co. were in an adjoining similar room as a job printing office. Alfred Cowles, part owner of the paper, was secretary; a Mr. Williston, treasurer; Mr. Flynn, cashier; Mr. Beauchamp, in charge of the mailing room, and Mr. Kahler, machinist, taking care of the mechanical part of getting out the paper—presses, folding machines, etc.

Alfred Cowles

At that time all typesetting was done by hand and stereotyped as it is done today. All the paper was cut, each sheet folded once, making four pages about the same size as now. For a long time the papers were folded by hand by two Englishmen, William Burgess and his brother. Then as an improvement four Buckley folding machines were installed, and trouble started and centered on Mr. Kahler, a fine man and a good machinist, but from that day he was a changed man. For a short time the machines worked fine and it was a pleasure to watch them. Then they became temperamental and tried to live up to their name, buckling, bunching, and tearing the paper. Then Mr. Kahler would jump in with hammer and tongs and tear, sweat, and swear—and believe me, he was a master in using up all swear words and inventing new ones, oblivious of the audience gathered around him. This happened many years ago, but I still remember many of the words, but cannot recall the tune. Of course, that could not last, so after all the machines had undergone the same treatment they were sent away without recommendation and peace reigned again.

About this time the four-cylinder press was replaced by an eight-cylinder Hoe press which was the wonder of the century. This was a huge affair and rose through the basement and the next floor and took eight men to feed it.

Mr. Williston left The Tribune and with a partner started the Morning Republican on Washington street near Dearborn, but it was not a success. After many vicissitudes, with a change of name and owners, it passed out as an entity, but I think there is a trace of it in the present Herald and Examiner.



Joseph Medill

This article cannot be concluded without mentioning Wilbur F. Story and his paper, the Times, our competitor, located at Washington and La Salle streets. Mr. Story may be remembered for his aggressive competition, but he fared badly during the Civil war, for his strong sympathies with the south made him a target for window-smashing and abuse.

After we had the paper tagged and wrapped and in bags it was loaded into an ordinary one-horse express wagon and taken to the railroad depots to be picked up at train time and distributed to each town the train passed through. Any slip or delay in this routine would delay the delivery of the paper not less than a day.

As a boy in the mailing room for nearly five years I am proud to say that I was there at 4 a. m. and never missed a day. This may sound unbelievable, but it is absolutely true, and I am sure if the Nobel foundation had known of this I would have stood in line for a reward.

When I asked Mr. Alfred Cowles for a vacation the request was granted, with the understanding that when I should come back the place would be open. That was over seventy years ago—and now I am returning in revery. This reminiscence might be of interest to those of that generation and their descendants. I am a contemporary of The Tribune in age, 1847; a few more years and we can celebrate the centennial!

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: I have just seen two grand pictures. They are "That Certain Age" and "Boys' Town." I compliment Deanna Durbin and Jackie Cooper on their marvelous performance. Deanna's voice is lovely.

SPENCER TRACY
"Wonderful performance" in "Boys' Town."

My heartiest congratulations go to the cast of "Boys' Town." That picture is grand, and I advise every one to see it. I intend to see it again. Spencer Tracy gave a wonderful performance. Mickey Rooney was swell. My hat is off to the whole cast. I think that little Pee Wee stole the show.

I think that such a man as Father Flanagan should get the support of every one. A man like that is—in plain American slang—simply swell.

Best of luck to you. "BEB."

Editor's note: Glad you had such a good time watching "Boys' Town" and "That Certain Age." And the best of luck to YOU.

Dear Miss Tinée: In your review of the picture "Valley of the Giants" you wondered if the expression "okeh" was used back in 1902. I just came across an ad running in a magazine which answers this perfectly, so I thought I'd pass it on to you, because the same question has often occurred to me. To quote: "It was Oct. 6, 1790, when the expression 'O. K.' first was used to signify approval. On that date Andrew Jackson 'proved a bill of sale which was O. K.' in the Court of Records of Sumner county, Tennessee. Probably source of the expression is the Choctaw word okeh, meaning 'It is so and in no other way.'"

And we think we're so modern! Yours very truly, MARION E. LINDSTROM.

Editor's note: Thanks a million for your interesting information. You're certainly okeh to have taken the time and trouble to pass it on to me. When in doubt again I'll think of you.

Dear Miss Tinée: I wonder if you would answer a question for me.

Sonja Henie stands high among my favorite movie stars, of which there are three or four women.

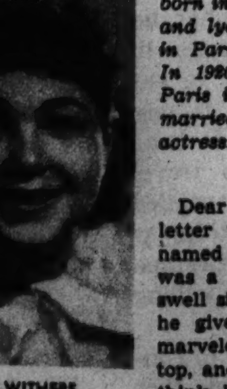
Why does she seem to be disliked by most writers in fan magazines? They certainly don't like her, for she is almost entirely neglected by them. Won't she grant interviews? Or what? They neither praise nor "pan" the little lady. They simply don't mention her at all!

While I am writing let me say a word for "Poison at the Box Office" Katy Hepburn. I think she is marvelous. I have never seen Garbo do a picture that Hepburn couldn't have handled better. Hepburn has glamor. She is convincing, and who else is so versatile? In a picture in which she was a hill-billy girl with a few cards in her pocket and a prayer on her lips, healing the sick, she was wonderful. As Mary of Scotland she left nothing to be desired. In "Holiday" she was great.

Success to you. ARTA LENHART.

Editor's note: Seems to me Sonja gets lots of mention. Miss Hepburn thanks you, I'm sure. So—for that last line—does yours truly.

Dear Miss Tinée: It is with interest that I read your column in The Sunday Tribune every week, for I work in the local theater here in Calvert, Tex. One of the most popular stars on the screen here and in the rest of the state is Jane Withers.



JANE WITHERS
Popular star in the Texas region.

Other people may prefer another star under contract to the same studio, but the patrons of our theater think that this other star is too sweet, while little Jane is very much like their own children. Her latest picture which was shown here was "Always in Trouble," and every one thought that it was her best picture to date.

I wonder if you could tell me the theaters she will appear at on her present personal appearance tour? I believe Chicago will be one of the cities. Please print a picture of her. Thanks.

Sincerely, JAMES STYLES.

Editor's note: Jane has many loyal friends. Sorry, but we don't know her itinerary. Here's her latest photo. Hope you like it.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please print the place Charles Boyer was born, also anything else about him you might know? Thank you. A FAN.

Editor's note: Glad to. Mr. Boyer was born in Figeac, France. Educated schools and lyceum of Figeac, then to Sorbonne in Paris. Hobbies are sport and music. In 1920 he made his dramatic debut in Paris in "Les Jardins de Murcie." He's married to "Pat" Paterson, a movie actress. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am writing this letter to you because I think a fellow named Donald Ragone said Don Ameche was a terrible singer. I think Don is a swell singer and actor. After all, wasn't he given a contract on account of his marvelous voice? Don Ameche is at the top, and he isn't high hat and he doesn't think he can sing just because he's at the top. I would like to see this fellow Donald Ragone and give him a piece of my mind. I am only 14 years old, but old enough to know good singing when I hear it. Yours truly,

ISABELLA CONDON.

Editor's note: Anyhow you know what you like, don't you, Isabella?

Three Stars in Color

JOEL McCREA

● After Joel McCrea was graduated from Pomona college he crashed the movie gate in a Sam Woods production. His first featured rôle was in "The Jazz Age," with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Marceline Day. When "talkies" came Mr. McCrea found he had a fairly good voice, and with his school stage experience convinced Cecil B. De Mille he could handle the juvenile lead in "Dynamite." Joel was born in South Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 5, 1905. He has brown hair and blue eyes, weighs 185 pounds, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He's married to Frances Dee.

FRANCES DEE

● Frances Dee was born in Los Angeles, Nov. 26, 1907. When she was 7 years old her family moved to Chicago. While attending Hyde Park High school she became interested in theatricals and continued her work at the University of Chicago. After finishing school she obtained a position with The Chicago Tribune as a classified ad taker. Then one summer while visiting in California she got a job as an extra at one of the studios. A year later Paramount gave her her first film contract. In real life she's Mrs. Joel McCrea and has two children. She's 5 feet 4½ inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, and has greenish-gray eyes and brown hair.

FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW

● Freddie Bartholomew was born in London, March 28, 1924. When he was 3 years old he went to live with his aunt, Millicent Bartholomew. She started coaching him, and when he was 3½ he appeared at a charity show, where he recited a poem. In 1934 his aunt brought him to Hollywood, where he was signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the name rôle in "David Copperfield." Since then he has played important rôles in "Anna Karenina," "Professional Soldier," "Lloyds of London," "Captains Courageous," "The Devil Is a Sissy," and many others. His favorite sports are horseback riding, tennis, and swimming. He has hazel eyes and brown hair.

The Truth About Nazi Germany!

The Story of the Price of Dictatorship

and responsibilities as we know them. The consequences of a lost war, the inflation, and the world depression hit Germany at the time when democratic laws prevailed and discredited them. Now vast circles accept all government regimentation without a murmur so long as the government is able to present them with dazzling successes.

An undercurrent of grumbling did exist, but it subsided after Hitler compelled England, France, and the whole of Europe to bow to his wishes.

When I asked literally scores of Germans how they felt about the question of individual liberties they admitted they found them desirable. Glowing Nazis, who pride themselves on being "superior to democratic rot," tried to assert:

"We don't feel our personal freedom is restricted by the activities of the G. S. P., because whatever restrictions exist have been imposed for the good of the nation."

Quite a few Nazis did express the wish that they need not always feel that the G. S. P. might be listening to their telephone and other conversations, "because we would never say or do anything dangerous to the state anyhow."

Germans with a liberal, Catholic, nationalistic, socialistic, monarchistic, or possibly even communistic past — and there are millions—who are all liable to extra supervision, declared their main anxiety was the absence of a hard and fast rule to which they can cling, because the average man may not always know exactly what the G. S. P. will consider an act "endangering the state."

Laws, decrees, and regulations have been issued in vast numbers. To start with, the average citizen does not know them all, and if he did that would not help him much. The G. S. P. authorities decide what is to be considered dangerous to the state according to their own interpretation.

The G. S. P. can disregard the decisions of regular courts, as it did in the case of Pastor Martin Niemoeller, who was arrested and thrown into a concentration camp by the Gestapo after a regular court ordered his release. In most cases the relatives are afraid to speak of the arrests of those close to them, being warned that if they speak they, too, will be arrested.

Let us compare the individual liberties as laid down in the American constitution with individual rights as they are curtailed or nonexistent in Germany.

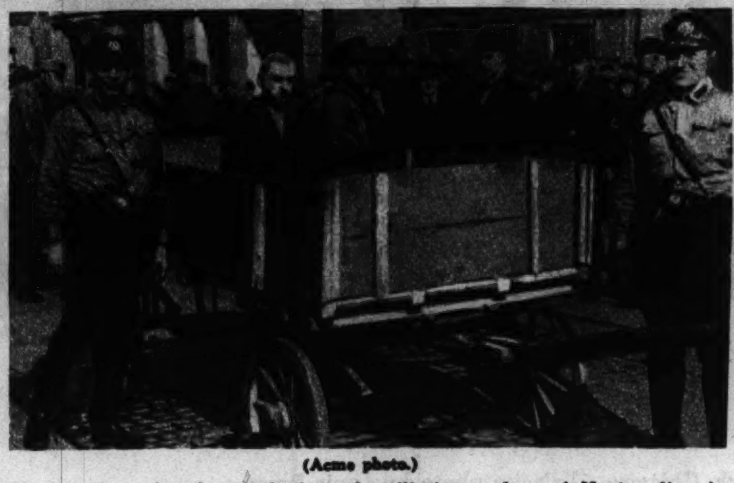
I. Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

As regards the church, the German government controls it, since it collects the church tax and pays priests and persons out of its proceeds. Priests and pastors who criticize the government or meet with the disapproval of the Gestapo or other Nazi bodies may be arrested, tried, suspended, or deprived of their livelihood. The feud between the Confessional church —a Protestant group which rejects state control of its religious teachings—and the Nazi government continues unabated, despite the detention of its leaders in a concentration camp and the official threats hanging over the heads of its sympathizers.

The freedom of speech and of the press and the right of assembly have been suspended officially in Germany. The right to petition the government has not been formally denounced, because it was not listed separately in Germany's old republican constitution. Nevertheless very few Germans dare sign petitions "for a redress of grievances," fearing such action might be "misinterpreted as action against the state" by the Gestapo.

II. A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Military service is compulsory in Germany. Every male citizen must serve his country for six months in the labor service and for at least two years in the regular army. Furthermore, he is compelled to be ready to attend a military training course whenever the government calls upon him. He must serve in the anti-air raid protection organization, and he must be ready to do labor service wherever and whenever called upon.



(Acme photo.)

A Jew who refused to submit to humiliating orders of Nazi police is hauled through a German town in a refuse cart.

III. No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

A special law rules that civilians must quarter soldiers in time of peace or war and turn over equipment and goods for the army whenever authorities deem this necessary.

IV. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

The Gestapo needs no warant to make arrests, raid homes, or seize property.

V. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller

The Gestapo can hold prisoners without trial as long as it pleases. No trial by jury is guaranteed.

VI. In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Many trials in Germany today are held secretly. According to the new Nazi ideology, not the text of the law counts, but its interpretation. The judge must not consider the rights of the individual, but of the people as a whole. Nazis hold "what is good for the nation is right"—whether or not this conflicts with what we consider the fundamental rights of an individual. The individual is of secondary importance; only the people count.

VII. In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise reexamined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

Persons may be tried several times for the same crime or accusation. This was done with "enemies of the Nazi state" years after they had been tried and finished their sentences.

VIII. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Ruthlessness is considered a powerful weapon in the hands of the government agencies and is approved by the Nazi state.

XV., Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. Section 2. The congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Persons of Jewish blood and those branded officially as dangerous to the state do not enjoy the same rights as "Aryan Germans."

The privileges of what we consider free citizens had to be restricted, Nazis say, to make it possible for them to establish their new "philosophy" or weltanschauung and to protect their new state from its enemies. The rights and privileges of the individual must be subordinate to those of the community. Only the government and the Nazi leaders can see what is good for the people as a whole, and therefore the people must obey their instructions and march ahead in the grooves indicated to them by their Nazi leaders.

By allowing the nation to go to the polls once a year and to cast a vote in a plebiscite the government gives the people a chance to express their opinions, and thus the Nazi form of government is truly democratic, Nazis will tell you.

The Nazi government so far has only asked the German people questions to which they were bound to answer with "yes." Unanimity could also be achieved in America if similar questions were asked. Take just one example: The average American would vote "yes" if he were asked whether he approved of the incorporation of a state that he had considered American since his childhood and that was bound to provide economic advantages — as was the case in the last German plebiscite of April 10, when the Germans were asked to approve of the incorporation of Austria.

The vote in a plebiscite is supposed to be free and secret. Foreigners who occasionally doubted this have been properly lambasted. The Catholic bishop of Rottenburg in Württemberg, Ludwig Sproll, was attacked bodily, his home ransacked by Nazis, for his failure to vote for the incorporation of Austria. He was officially expelled from his diocese by Nazi authorities.

Americans visiting in small Bavarian villages were told confidentially that citizens who refused to go to the polls were arrested, and had not returned to their homes three months after their arrest, because some unidentified person in the village had reported their anti-Nazi utterances and they were branded as dangerous to the state. In most cases the vote is secret and free—but the presence of the fear that it might not be cannot be denied.

(Acme photo.)

Four sets of laws, decrees, and regulations enable the Nazi government to control every action of a German citizen. They are political, racial, social, and economic.

The political restrictions were all issued within a few months after Hitler assumed power. They had been worked out by him and his men in 1932 when they organized the skeleton government which was to take over the supreme power in their country at a moment's notice. Similar skeleton governments were organized by the Nazis in Austria and Sudetenland before those countries were taken over by Germany.

In a decree issued on Feb. 6, 1933, entitled "for the protection of the German people," the Hitler government restricted the freedom of the press and of assembly. The press gag law provided that no reasons need be given for suppression of a paper or magazine. Its application has been so rigorous and effective that the anti-Nazi press disappeared within less than a year and the non-Nazi press is nonexistent today. A few newspapers are still labeled as non-Nazi, but only Nazis and their friends are allowed in the German newspaper guilds and business. Those who are not officially Nazi are even more careful than their Nazi colleagues in their effort not to displease the authorities. It is interesting to note that in February, 1933, the German supreme court ruled that the suppression of newspapers was illegal in a number of cases. This supreme court decision failed to prevent the Nazification of the German press.

Today if an average German feels that he would like to read some non-Nazi publications, he can't. None is printed in Germany. Foreign papers and publications can enter the country only if approved by the government. Police officials make the rounds of all news stands daily, armed with a long list of banned publications and seize those considered detrimental to the Nazi state. A number of cases which came up in court revealed that the reading of "subversive literature" can be dangerous for the German citizen or for the foreigner living in Germany. This has led to interesting results. Quite a number of people are actually scared of reading foreign publications. A few weeks ago, when motoring to a small town near Berlin, we took along a few American and English magazines which some of the people we planned to visit used to enjoy. Though we pointed out they had come into Germany quite openly and consequently they could not be contraband, the Germans were afraid that one or the other number might have slipped by the postal censor and that they could get into trouble for reading something the authorities did not want them to read.

If the average German who subscribes to an official Nazi publication finds it uninteresting and wants to cancel his subscription, that is not a simple matter. The subscriber is told his cancelation must be reported to higher offices and they will decide whether or not he can do so.

To strengthen the position of the police Goering on Feb. 19, 1933, issued an order guaranteeing his special protection to any policeman who "makes ruthless use of revolvers," and threatened punishment for those who showed "false restraint." A few days later Goering empowered the Schutzstaffel and storm troopers to act as auxiliary police.

On Feb. 28, 1933, a new decree openly canceled all civilian liberties, abolishing postal, telephonic, and telegraphic secrecy, authorizing raids on homes and confiscations of private property. It suspended paragraphs 114, 115, 117, 118, 123, 124, and 153 of the old Weimar constitution. They guaranteed the inviolability of personal freedom, the inviolability of the home of a German citizen, the secrecy of mails, telegraph, and telephone, freedom of expression of opinion, freedom of assembly, the right to form clubs and religious associations, ownership privileges. These liberties no longer exist in Germany.

In recent months new decrees further restricted a German's rights in his own home and private activities, providing that soldiers may be quartered in his home and that his goods may be seized for the needs of the army.

All political parties have been abolished in Germany for the sake of "national unity." Those who for some reason or other are opposed to National Socialism must remain silent. They don't have the satisfaction of joining the "other party," because no other party is allowed.

Only persons considered "politically reliable" may obtain driving licenses.

Students who have studied two years at a university must prove that they belong to a Nazi organization, otherwise they cannot continue their studies. Thus the state makes sure that only its followers get the benefit of higher education. German universities used to enjoy a great deal of freedom for the sake of science. Today the Nazi minister of education picks and appoints the deans and the professors, naturally giving preference to those imbued with Nazi ideology.

Many means are at the disposal of the government to make sure that its citizens "are not lured into dangerous enterprises by enemies of the Nazi state." The secret police, the state police, the criminal police, the security service, the Schutzstaffel, and to a great extent the storm troops see to it that everybody heeds Nazi orders.

The cell wardens and the block wardens of the labor front supervise what happens in the homes and lend their helping hand to guide their countrymen on a truly Nazi course, while the Werkscharen attend to similar duties in the factory.

In recent weeks the block wardens received new instructions. They were ordered to become more active and to cross-examine those of their countrymen who fail to give the Nazi salute or hoist the Nazi flag voluntarily when a general order to that effect is issued, or who fail to donate adequately to the numerous Nazi collections, winter relief, Nazi Welfare association, roastless Sundays, pound donations. In small shops, customers who complain that they get only a scant six ounces of butter weekly, and that the quality of the butter is bad, are warned by their tradesmen to remain silent, "because those who criticize the government and conditions are liable to arrest."

● NEXT SUNDAY — Mr. Dickson will discuss further the regimentation of the German people, taking up the discrimination against the Jews, the Nazi campaign for an increased birth rate, labor conscription, governmental domination of business and industry, compulsory donations for social welfare, government-supervised vacations, and numerous other abuses under Hitler's rule.

HOW TEETH SPARKLE WHEN BRUSHED THIS NEW LIQUID WAY!

Sensational dentifrice contains patented dental cleansing ingredient that beautifies teeth without use of abrasives

Cannot possibly scratch precious tooth enamel which can never be replaced

EVERY day, more and more people are discarding old-fashioned methods of brushing teeth in favor of Teel—the amazing new liquid dentifrice discovery, "With Beauty In Every Drop." Dentists who have tried it praise its benefits.

Dr. H. B. B. says, "I can truthfully say Teel cleans teeth excellently and leaves the mouth refreshed and sweet-tasting." Dr. R. D. S. writes, "After using Teel I can highly recommend it for others to use."

Teel cleans and brightens teeth with unsurpassed safety to enamel and gums. It is free of chalk, grit, pumice—abrasives of any kind. It is also guaranteed to be free of harmful chemicals. Is not acid; not alkaline. Actually as safe as water on teeth. Teel uses a sensational, new, patented dental cleansing ingredient that changes in a flash into active cleansing foam. Penetrates crevices between teeth. Acts to float away decaying food particles. Leaves mouth feeling wonderfully refreshed. Helps sweeten the breath as it cleans and brightens teeth to dazzling brilliance.

Make this test today. Get TEEL at drug, department or 10¢ stores. Brush your teeth with it. If you aren't thrilled with the "clean feel" of your teeth such as you've never enjoyed from any other dentifrice, we will give you double your money back. Teel is approved by Good Housekeeping. Guaranteed by Procter & Gamble. Is amazingly economical and easy to use. Only a few drops required. Will not roll off the toothbrush. Start brushing your teeth twice a day with Teel. Visit your dentist regularly. With this proper care, see how beautiful your teeth can be.

The Tribune Mechanical Marvels

● This is the third of a series of articles describing the mechanical wonders of The Tribune. An earlier series traced the publication processes.

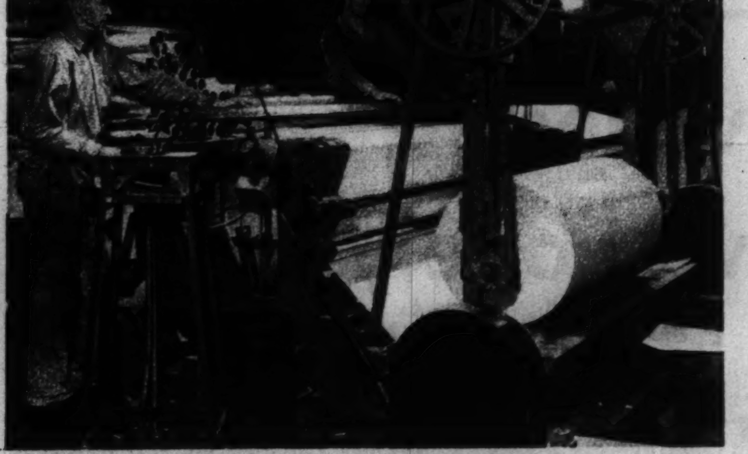
Presenting a program from the stage of the main studio of the W-G-N building, the auditorium of which seats 550 persons.

IT MAY NOT be commonly known, but it is true nevertheless, that The Tribune employs compressed air to perform a number of important tasks. In the first basement below Michigan avenue, which is the press room and the ground floor, is a room containing motor driven air compressors. There are two that provide the compressed air to operate the tube system to and from the Tribune's downtown office and the offices of the Associated Press and the City Press. This tube system comprises two tubes, one for carrier cartridges going south and one for those coming north. These carriers naturally travel beneath the river. They take barely two and a half minutes between Tribune Tower and the downtown office at Dearborn and Madison streets. Within the Tribune plant is another vacuum tube system operating between departments.

Four additional compressors, compressing air to 95 pounds pressure, take care of the needs of the engraving department, the stereotyping department, the composing room, and the press room. Retouchers' air brushes in the art department are operated by air from these compressors, as are the doors of the elevators and the ink distributing apparatus. There are a reserve compressor, two vacuum pumps for operating mailing and stuffing machines, and an oil compressor which creates 1,200 pounds pressure for baling paper. The last named apparatus works automatically.

Gauges in the compressor room show the pressure in the ink tank. Thirty-five pounds of pressure is necessary to force ink to the various presses.

All compressors can be used either for compressing air or for creating a vacuum. The air compressed is exhausted of moisture by a set of tanks or cooling coils that extend outside the building.



One of the two paper rewinders in operation. These are valuable machines that pay for themselves many times over.

Seventy-five horse power and 40 horse power motors are used to run the compressors, the tube system being operated by those of the smaller size.

It already has been pointed out in this series of articles that nine 150 horse power, seventy-six 35 horse power, and ten 25 horse power motors are used in driving presses. Eighty-four of these motors are employed to drive the 94 units of the black presses, some of which, as explained in a previous series, are equipped with color decks; ten to drive the new comic section press of 16 units, and one to drive the old comic section press of 12 units. In addition there are two motors on each paper reel for margin adjustments and for rotating the reel. In connection with each reel is a small motor for tension control.

The presses, already discussed in a previous series of articles, are too complex to be described in full. Since they are operated by electric motors, it might be well here to explain how easily their operation is controled. Readers will recall that it was pointed out that the Tribune pressroom was the first ever to be driven by electricity.

On each of the new, or more modern, line of black presses (there are two lines) are four button or switch boxes, and on each of the units of the older line of black presses is one button box. These button boxes are ingenious contraptions, containing six switch buttons each, and each button of a different color. The top button is the "inch button." It moves the press very slowly in order to allow for adjustments. The second button from the top is the speed button. The third is for slowing down and stopping the press, and the fourth is for stopping it quickly in case of an emergency. The fifth button is the safety button. When this is down the press cannot be turned. The sixth button takes off the safety, allowing the press to be run.

Nineteen double folders take care of the papers coming off the 94 black press units. On the newer units, which constitute 38 of the 94 black press units, the folders are operated by individual separate motors. On the older units the motors that run the presses also operate the folders. There are two double folders on the presses that print the comic sections.

A double folder delivers papers on two sides of the press into two wire paper conveyors, which carry papers to the mailing room floor above or to a mailing room balcony adjacent to the press room. There are thirty-eight of these conveyors, in all. In the continuous stream of papers running through these conveyors each fiftieth paper is automatically kicked slightly out of line to serve as a counter. Folders on the presses that print the comic sections deliver papers onto a short conveyor, where they are gathered up by workers known as "fly boys." Their job is to straighten the papers in stacks, after which they are trucked to the mailing room. The paper conveyors just described represent only one of the several types of conveyors used in Tribune production. There is the streotype plate conveyor, more than 800 feet long, described in a previous article, which carries plates from the stereotype foundry to the presses. Ten motors are required to operate it. Then there are the endless web or belt conveyors that carry the papers from the mailing room bundle tying machines to the trucks waiting outside the building. The longer of these two conveyors carries bundles from the main floor of the plant, at the rear of the tower, to the first basement or lower street level of Michigan avenue. Two men stand at the receiving end of this conveyor and sort the bundles as they come along into eight chutes that carry them to the outside, to the stations before which trucks are waiting. At the St. Clair street end of the plant a similar conveyor delivers bundles of papers direct to six chutes, which carry them to outside stations.

Another type of conveyor is represented by that which lifts rolls of paper from the boiler room floor to the reel room floor. This is of the endless chain type, with arms for cradling the rolls of paper as they are elevated. How these rolls of paper arrive on the boiler room floor shall be explained in a subsequent article.

Elevators rightly may be considered a form of conveyor. There are nine passenger elevators in the tower, each operated by a 52 horse power motor, and one freight elevator. In the plant are two elevators operated by 30 horse power motors each. On the stage of W-G-N's main auditorium is an elevator, and there is a small ledger elevator in the auditing department in the tower that operates between the fifth, sixth, and seventh floors. Between the press room and the reel room are four one-man elevators. Also between these floors are two sliding poles, similar to those used by firemen in an engine house to hasten to their fire apparatus from their sleeping quarters above.

Down in the reel room, from the reels of which paper is fed into the presses on the floor above, are a couple of valuable machines that pay for themselves many times over. They are paper rewinders. From the nearly exhausted rolls that are taken off the reels these machines rewind paper onto new rolls. Each section thus rewound is spliced onto the next by means of patented rubber tissue and a hot iron. A great deal of paper is salvaged from damaged rolls by these machines.

The W-G-N studio building is provided with a number of mechanical devices, including the aforementioned stage elevator which is operated by an 8½ horse power motor. There are ten studios in this building, counting that of the main auditorium which seats 550 persons. Equipment includes two complete motion picture projectors, operated by a 14 horse power motor; an electric organ, operated by a 5 horse power motor; ten spotlights, two flood lights, and a system of colored lights above the stage which provides any shade of color illumination desired. There is an electric automatically operated trap door leading into the projection room, and another in the ceiling of the main auditorium which, when opened, permits the flood lights and spotlights to shine down onto the stage.

Of the 18,000 electric lights in Tribune Square, the smallest are 7½ watts, the largest 2,000 watts.

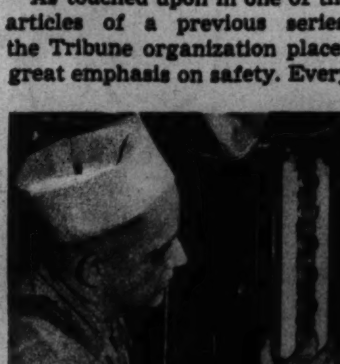
Of all the mechanical devices in Tribune Tower there perhaps is none that is handier than the desk of the cartoonist, Carey Orr. He designed it himself, and it actually is two desks in one, a drawing desk and an office desk. Merely by folding back the two leaves of his drawing board he can convert the drawing desk into one on which to write letters or keep accounts. It has convenient drawers for all tools of his art, ingeniously arranged and almost mysteriously packed into the desk. It also has an electrically operated pencil sharpener and an electric eraser that spins at the business end of a flexible shaft. In the desk are special lights, and a water tray that can do service as an ash receiver when the artist has no need for water in his work. Mr. Orr started out to be an electrical and chemical engineer before he took up cartooning. That is why he knew how to make his marvelous desk.

Desks of the members of the editorial staf in the news room were designed by Tribune men to meet special needs. The larger desks, at which certain editors and their copy readers sit, are not duplicated in all detail in any other newspaper news room.



One of the button boxes by which the operations of the presses are controled.

As touched upon in one of the articles of a previous series, the Tribune organization places great emphasis on safety. Every machine that can be so protected is covered with a shield or shields to prevent accidents. The organization maintains a safety committee, drills its staf in accident prevention, keeps a close tab on accidents by an efficient system of reporting, and, as a result, is holding all accidents down to a minimum. First aid and medical attention naturally are provided for any one injured in line of duty. As a part of The Tribune's health program for its staf are free physical examinations, free dental inspections and teeth cleaning, free blood tests, and, among restricted groups, free cold vaccine tablets.

The safety and health programs fit into the whole Tribune program of progress and economy. By designing and developing many of its own machines and devices to meet its own particular needs, by doing work by machines that previously was done by hand, by making this machine work safe, and by countless other innovations, it not only has provided for faster and greater production, but it actually has provided more jobs for more workers.

Dog Rearing Rates as Industry

(Tribune photo.)

Madcap of Herds, an English champion Sealyham terrier that recently was judged the best of breed in a big show. Madcap was imported by the Croglin kennel of West Orange, N. J.

THE BREEDING, training, showing, owning, and feeding of dogs in America now may be classed as big business.

As we start a new year there are between 12,000,000 and 16,000,000 dogs in America. Close to a quarter of a billion dollars is invested in dogs, kennel buildings, and plants and factories making things for dogs. Dog owners annually contribute approximately $25,000,000 in taxes of some kind. More than 200 companies are now engaged in making dog foods. About $20,000,000 is the value of small animal hospitals. Approximately 200 companies are engaged in producing toiletries and medicines for dogs. The sale of canned dog food last year amounted to approximately $45,000,000, and another $5,000,000 worth of dry foods (biscuits and meals) were sold. More than 1,000,000 people attended dog shows last year.

From these figures, which are accurate enough to provide a general idea of the dog business, it will be seen that dogs in America no longer may be taken in a casual manner. People are appreciating good dogs more and more as the years go by. Dog owners everywhere want to learn how to take care of their dogs in the best way and are willing to buy products that will help them to rear healthy, strong animals.

In looking back over 1938 we find among others the following highlights of the year of more than usual interest:

1. The cocker spaniel finished 1938 as ranking number one dog according to American Kennel club registrations. During the first nine months of 1938 there were 11,948 cockers registered, as against 6,117 Boston terriers and 5,097 Scotties. Final figures for 1938 will maintain this lead. The first ten breeds (cocker, Boston, Scotty, wire, beagle, dachshund, Pekingese, springer, chow, and greyhound) produced 61 per cent of all the registrations. Nine breeds—malamute, Bernese, Eskimo, field spaniel, Italian greyhound, Komondor, Maltese terrier, Mexican hairless, and Welsh springer—didn't get a single A. K. C. registration during the first nine months. Three breeds, the Siberian husky, English foxhound, and the otterhound, placed just one on the A. K. C. books during the first nine months of the year.

An Irish terrier, Linda O'Peblanes, owned by Ruth Hanna Simms of Albuquerque, N. M.

2. Nomination for the most cruel hoax of 1938 in the world of dogs goes to the nitwit who started the story that blind people could get a Seeing Eye guide dog for 10,000 paper match folders. The Seeing Eye denounced the hoax.

3. The strangest dog party that we heard of was the one given for the offspring of the Irish setter champion Dawn of Aragon at the Aragon kennels, Franklin Park, Ill. The pups (and their owners) came from all over to attend this unusual function.

4. America's biggest all-breed dog show was the Morris and Essex event, for which 3,960 dogs were benched. The New York Westminster show was second with 2,654 dogs and Chicago was third with 1,163.

5. The Boy Scouts of America added to their list of merit badges one on dog care. Dog owners everywhere need to give more attention to proper dog care and assume more responsibility toward their pets. Now that the Scout organization has established this merit badge on dog care, boys everywhere will be learning how to feed, groom, and train their pets and thus spread the good word about correct dog care.

DEBUTANTES GO ON FOREVER

By W. E. Hill

"My dear, the steward out at the Hunt Club wants TEN DOLLARS a GALLON for a punch with French Sauterne and French brandy. Imagine! At a simple little dance for those kids! Now, don't you think a five-dollar punch, with a California Sauterne and no brandy, would be better?" (Debutante's mother deciding something "that came up" with a friend.)

Debutantes will do anything to land in the public eye. Some of them will even go to church—so they can come in late and walk down the aisle and be seen right out in the open.

Meet the 1939 cafe society bud. Hopes to be some kind of glamour girl, and would rather be photographed for the newspapers than eat.

In 1929 a debutante had to look as if she'd seen everything and done everything. Showed her legs but never her ears.

"Oh, look! There's Gloria Tenderloin, the debutante!" A glamour girl debutante is news, and rates with picture stars, murder victims and dictators.

Debutantes who are out for the title of glamour girl and need publicity often model for the fashion photos in the swell magazines, with "posed by," etc., underneath. Thus giving the professional models a lot of time at home, which they don't seem to appreciate as they should.

Suburban debs dearly love charity entertainments such as tableaux vivants called, "Brides of Yesteryear." (This one is "Directoire Bride." Cue music, "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet!")

Just twenty years ago, when mother was a deb. She was introduced at a high tea, and it was TEA they drank. She hadn't heard about glamour in those days. Just aimed to be refined.

Light Plane Gains Favor

U. S. Flight Points Its Future

By WAYNE THOMIS

The heavily loaded light plane in which Johnny Jones, actor, made record nonstop transcontinental flight, photographed just after its takeoff at Los Angeles. (Acme photos.)

IN THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 1 there appeared a brief item under a New York date line announcing that an actor-airman named Johnny Jones had completed a transcontinental nonstop flight in an Aeronca airplane—one of the three smallest types of planes now in production in the United States. The story stated that the plane had a 50-horsepower motor and had made the trip in 30 hours 48 minutes.

Since that time the airplane and motor manufacturers who sponsored the flight have been telling all who are interested in aviation that the trip has moved the flivver plane into a new performance class. They imply that any light plane owner could do the same with his ship. They say that the transcontinental trip demonstrates the development of the light airplane.

It was a remarkable flight, an excellent job by the pilot, and a demonstration of sound engineering by all concerned. The effort, however, merely emphasized the outstanding weakness of all standard light planes by showing what it would be possible to accomplish with ships of this type given the most favorable conditions and the utmost in special equipment.

For Jones' flight was made possible by a great deal of special equipment that the average light airplane owner cannot afford and could not operate without special instruction. Furthermore, the flight was made with approximately 100 per cent overload and because of this falls strictly into the stunt class. It was, however, carefully planned from its inception.

The flight was conceived after tests had shown that the new Aeronca planes with 50-horsepower engines had a top speed of approximately 100 miles an hour and would cruise easily at between 85 and 90 miles an hour. This was a jump of approximately twenty miles an hour in the cruising speed over previous models with 37 and 40 horsepower motors. It compared very favorably with the cruising speeds achieved in the twenties with OX and OXX engines of approximately double the horsepower.

The Aeronautical Corporation of America at Cincinnati began studies to see if its ship could carry enough fuel for a coast-to-coast trip nonstop.

The normal 50-horsepower Aeronca weighs 1,130 pounds gross with two passengers and with 12 gallons of fuel and 3 pints of oil in the motor. It has a wing loading of about 8 pounds to the square foot of area and a power loading of 26 pounds per horsepower. Studies indicated the Aeronca could fly nicely with a wing loading of approximately 13 pounds and a power loading as high as 38 pounds per horsepower.

Johnny Jones after his record flight.

With a single passenger aboard this would give about 1,000 pounds for fuel and instruments, since the plane and passenger and extra tanks would weigh about 1,000 pounds. The Continental Motor company at Detroit worked out fuel consumption charts that showed their motor could fly for almost 40 hours on 1,000 pounds of fuel.

The Aeronca factory then took a standard fuselage and installed three tanks in addition to the regular fuel tank of 12 gallons. One was a 28-gallon tank and the other two were 57-gallon tanks. These occupied what normally was the passenger's seat and extended across the back of the cockpit. The fuel load was thus 146 gallons. A two-gallon oil tank also was fitted, and special trim tabs on the elevators to give better control with the heavy load.

• • •

For instruments the plane was fitted with a complete flight group—air speed, turn and bank, Kollsman sensitive altimeter, an aperiodic compass, oil pressure and temperature indicators, the usual switches, throttle, and special choke controls, and finally an exhaust gas analyzer which enabled the pilot to pick the most economical and perfect mixture of fuel and air for his engine at any given altitude.

A special radio receiver also was mounted. On the receiver was attached a slide rule where it could be operated with one hand. There also was a flow meter installed by the engine company so that the pilot could keep accurate track of fuel consumption.

Jones, an Aeronca distributor of Los Angeles, left Glendale airport after a wait for good weather conditions, getting into the air after a run of approximately 1,500 feet. He was able to climb to 5,000 feet at once even with his load, and followed American Airlines' route to Fort Worth, receiving special weather information and clearances through that company's ground radio stations en route. At Fort Worth he turned north to swing over Cincinnati, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and thence to New York.

Although Jones flew some 2,700 miles in his roundabout route, he still had 46 gallons of fuel left, or enough for another 650 miles. He also had his full amount of 8 quarts of oil—not having used an appreciable amount of lubricant during the entire trip.

The flight does speak well of light airplanes and the new 50-horsepower motors. It was made at an average speed of 90 miles an hour without tail winds.

Obviously no Aeronca with the normal fuel allowance—12 gallons—could come anywhere close to this performance. The standard plane has a maximum range of 250 miles. In addition to boosting light plane sales the trip undoubtedly will bring out a movement to increase the fuel capacity for the little ships, thus correcting their greatest weakness at this time.

KNOW YOUR HORSES

GREYHOUND
world's champion standard bred trotter owned by E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill.

AMERICAN TROTTER The history of the American standard-bred trotter goes back to a horse named Messenger, a thoroughbred, foaled in England in 1780. Messenger was imported in 1788 and lived to be 28 years old. It was discovered that Messenger's offspring were particularly adept at trotting rather than running—hence the birth of the roadster, as the standard-bred horse is commonly called.

Perhaps the most widely known of standard-bred strains is the Hambletonian—derived from the great-grandson of Messenger and a remarkable producer of fast trotters. Yet in spite of the fame of yesterday's horses the world's speed record for trotters—1:56 on the mile—is held by Greyhound—pictured here—a product of the current decade. The standard-bred strain is not as pure as some others because of infusions made for improvements. These, however, according to trotting horse enthusiasts, have all been absorbed and they say the registered standard-bred is just as clean and blue-blooded as any other.

The trotter today is used mostly for show purposes in the roadster classes and in racing. While harness racing is nowhere near as popular as running races, there is still considerable interest in the sulkies. Much credit for this is due the drivers. Instead of boy jockies, sulkies are occupied by pilots who number among them many old men whose entire lives have been spent with horses. They have developed into romantic characters. In a race some of them vent upon their animals in two minutes a vocabulary equal to that of an Eskimo dog musher in a day's trek. A double roadster class in a big show ring is still a beautiful sight. Naturally the standard-bred trotter was hard hit with the advent of the automobile and the passing of the horse-and-buggy days.

Charm Bankruptcy—Price of Too Much Glorification

A Variety of Interests Needed

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1939: By Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

MRS. PAUL WHITEMAN

THE WOMAN with a single interest is as subject to bankruptcy (of personality and charm) as the man in the fable who put all of his eggs in one basket. It is an unwise and usually a dull girl who limits herself to one preoccupation, and heaven help her if that one is the physical trappings which glorify her person. Even if her physical grooming is so faultless that it raises the collective blood pressure of her audience, she is likely to be dismissed as a "clothes horse" if that is her only claim to distinction.

Our remarks are addressed more to the woman past her first youth, who must bring to her audience more than the mere things of youth if she would be included in our widening group of interesting women. Apropos, Margaret Culkin Banning in a current fiction tale describes a type at which our remarks are aimed: "The plump woman might be any one, married, single, divorced, with not too much money to spend and aware of only one way to spend what she had, on dramatization of her failing blondeness." It might be failing brunetteness, failing Titianness. It's the registry of failure that dooms the woman as uninteresting, charmless, and without personality.

You can be impeccably groomed and yet devote only a small part of your time to it. Improved beauty and dressmaking aids, beauty shops, manufactured clothes, tailors, cleaners, and laundries all function to simplify the job for you. The smart woman of today, smart in both meanings of the word, grabs off the time saved to round out her interests, busy herself with activities which not only make her more interesting to others but to herself as well. In such pursuit lie the sources of youthfulness. In stopping dead in your tracks, speaking in terms of mental activity, defeat is written into all hopes that physical effectiveness alone will gain applause. It will not, as per witness the numbers of women who fit the colloquialism "idle rich," who have nothing to offer but a well turned out physical self. They register blah because they suffer too much competition in women who manage the beautifully groomed person along with an interesting personality.

One who represents this latter type is Mrs. Paul Whiteman, the former Margaret Livingston of the screen, who gave up a career to become the wife of the musician and band leader. Although rated as one of the best dressed women in smart New York circles, Mrs. Whiteman's well rounded interests embrace a home, the complete management of her husband's musical organization, two children, a large circle of friends, and indefatigable devotion to the cause of preserving American folk and modern music for posterity. In the interest of this cause she helped to start a museum of modern American music at Williams college.

As a poised, vital, and busy person, a successful wife, mother, business woman, and hostess, Mrs. Whiteman has a routine that necessarily requires that personal upkeep be given a limited place in her scheme of existence. But she depends upon time-saving devices, systematized beauty practices, and simplified clothes to give her the maximum of smartness with the minimum of fuss and bother.

Mrs. Whiteman in another, less formal, mood.

She chooses simple functional clothes of good lines, material, and tailoring, and her wardrobe receives the same efficient inspection as do a storekeeper's shelves to see that those clothes are in order. No heckling sashes, easily mussed fabrics, frilly, unmanageable dress accessories, or cloying details ever make their erring way behind those closet doors. She chooses severely simple suits which can be worn from 9 in the morning through to a dinner engagement in the city without any signs of strain. To relieve any barrenness of interest she depends upon a distinctive piece of jewelry, a trick hat, and the most fashionable handbag she owns.

Working out a coiffure for yourself which withstands actual wear is worth all the time and patience you have to spend on it, she will tell you. Tricky arrangements which tumble down, look mussy, and mar the sleek aspects of your grooming wreck all other features of your smartness, in her opinion. If a stable, suave hairdress takes hours of patient training and grooming with lotions, pressing waves into place, pinning up the ends, and sleeping in hair nets, don't begrudge those initial routines which you have to give to it. It will yield you lasting beauty benefits. Once you have trained your hair to go a certain way, you can forget about it.

Grooming habits, such as brushing the hair to keep it glossy, keeping the skin clean and softened with lubricating creams, preserving the beauty of hands and nails with lotions and cuticle oils, can be reduced to a few minutes every day if systematized.

"Saturated cleansing pads carried in the purse, along with a few cosmetic essentials, provide any woman with sufficient toilet requisites to achieve satisfactory makeup repairs, no matter how long her enforced absence from her dressing table," testifies Mrs. Whiteman.

Rabbits, But No Easter

Liederkranz Is Base of Recipes

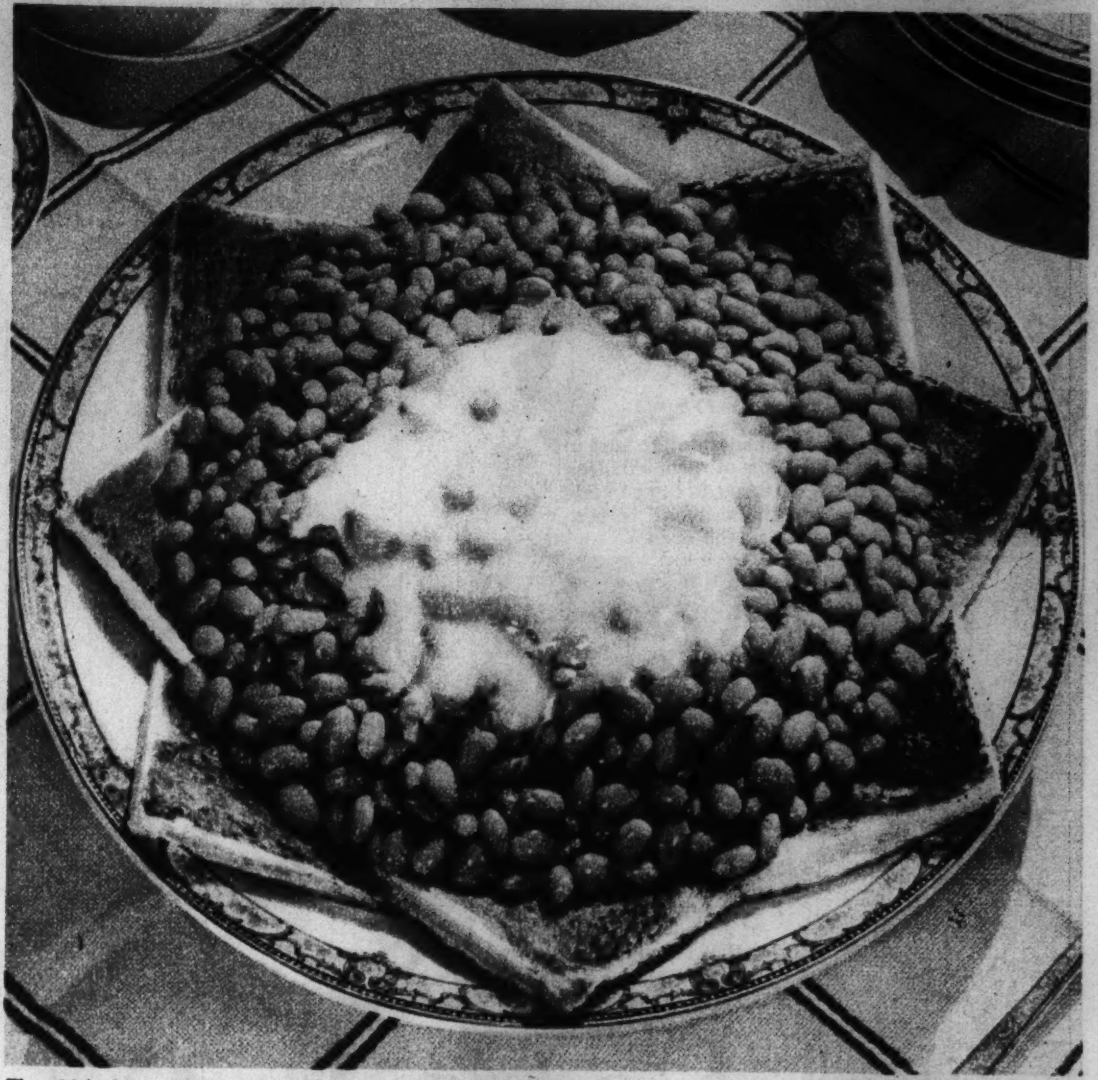
By MARY MEADE

SPEAKING of rabbits (and I don't mean the bunny kind), have you ever tried making one with Liederkranz cheese? If you haven't, or even if you have, you might try it on the next evening party group which meets at your house. If they like cheese they'll love the rabbit.

Pictured are two kinds of rabbit, one with baked beans, the other by itself. If you prefer another cheese than Liederkranz either of these rabbits may be made from American cheese, old English, pimiento, Swiss, or any other cheese which melts readily and blends smoothly.

Rabbits should be served piping hot the minute they are made, or the cheese may thicken and become unruly when you try to pour it over toast. If the rabbit must stand for a while before it is served it is best to make it on a base of thin white sauce. Then it may be kept hot in the top of a double boiler. But the water in the lower compartment must be kept under the boiling point, for the rule, "High heat toughens proteins," applies to cheese as well as to eggs, meats, and fish.

Liederkranz rabbit has just the right tang when the thinner used is tomato puree. Use a canned tomato purée or sieved canned tomatoes.



The old-fashioned kind of baked beans served on toast and topped with a cheese rabbit makes an excellent late party snack. Beans and rabbit should both be very hot, of course.

LIEDERKRANZ RABBIT

(Serves four)

⅔ cup tomato puree
⅓ cup evaporated milk
½ lb. package Liederkranz

Heat purée and evaporated milk in the top of a double boiler. Add cheese cut in pieces and blend thoroughly. As soon as cheese has melted serve rabbit on squares or triangles of toast.

CHEESE RABBIT WITH WHITE SAUCE BASE

(Serves four)

1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon mustard
1 cup milk
½ lb. cheese, cut in pieces

Mix flour and butter, salt and mustard. Add milk and cook until smooth in the top of a double boiler. Add cheese and stir until melted.

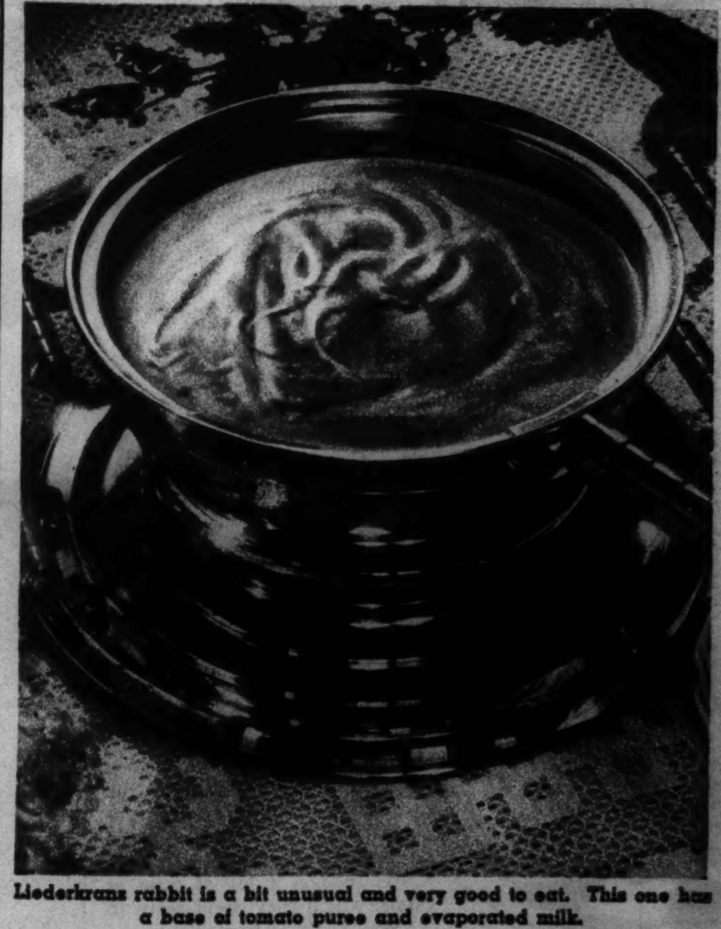
This is a simple recipe for baked beans which may be served with a cheese rabbit topping or by themselves:

OLD-TIME BAKED BEANS

(Serves six)

2 cups beans
½ lb. fat salt pork
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon brown sugar
¼ cup dark molasses
½ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Wash beans and soak them overnight in cold water. Drain, cover with fresh water, and cook gently until the skins break. Turn into bean pot or casserole. Pour boiling water over the salt pork, scrape the rind until white, and score in ½-inch strips. Press into the top of the beans. Mix salt, brown sugar, molasses, mustard, and Worcestershire sauce. Add 1 cup boiling water and pour over the beans. Cover and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees or slightly under that, for six to eight hours, adding more water if necessary. Uncover beans during last half hour to brown. An onion may be pressed into the beans along with the salt pork before baking.



Liederkranz rabbit is a bit unusual and very good to eat. This one has a base of tomato puree and evaporated milk.

Better way to give him COD LIVER OIL

1. Scott's Emulsion—made from selected cod liver oil—is four times easier to digest than plain cod liver oil . . . because the cod liver oil is broken into tiny, easily digested units by our exclusive process. Children are less apt to regurgitate (spit up) Scott's Emulsion.

2. It is pleasant tasting . . . easy for children to take.

3. It is rich in Vitamins A and D. Babies and children have thrived on it for 60 years.

Do as millions of other mothers have done and as many doctors recommend . . . give your child cod liver oil in this more easily digested form—SCOTT'S EMULSION. Get a bottle at your druggist's today.

YOU'LL THOROUGHLY ENJOY YOUR CROSSING TO EUROPE

South of the "Winter-Line"

THE SUNNY SOUTHERN ROUTE

The weather's kind to travelers on the Southern Route. Even in mid-winter, when New Yorkers shiver in near-zero temperatures, passengers on Italian liners in mid-ocean are sailing mild, blue seas in warm sunshine.

...through mild and sunny ocean areas into the blue Mediterranean —with famous Lido outdoor-life-at-sea all year 'round!

This winter, leave raw winds and blustery weather behind on your Transatlantic crossing. Choose the warm and friendly Southern Route . . . the summery seaway that swings "south of the Winter line" and leads you quickly into glorious Mediterranean waters. Spend healthy, active days out in the sunshine and gala evenings underneath the stars.

Plan to make the most of this fine holiday at sea where the "unknown quantity" of ocean travel —the people you meet on shipboard—will add so much to your pleasure. For, on Italian liners, this "unknown quantity" is of known quality! Your shipmates will be types you'll like instinctively at sight—people you'll be glad to call your friends.

Select the sailing that best suits your plans and enjoy, with congenial fellow travelers, the easy, casual luxury . . . the open-air, beach-club freedom . . . the authentic atmosphere of splendid living that always distinguishes a Lido crossing to Europe "south of the Winter line!"

REGULAR SERVICE to EUROPE

Weekly sailings from New York. Express crossings on the superliners Rex and Conte di Savoia to Gibraltar, Naples, Cannes, Genoa.

NEW SUPER SOAP WINNING MILLIONS!

COMBINES SUPER SPEED WITH SUPER SAFETY

New Concentrated Super Suds in the Blue Box Ends Washday Drudgery for 1,200,000 Housewives!

IT'S SIMPLY AMAZING HOW MUCH MORE SUDS YOU GET! RICH, ACTIVE SUDS THAT WASH YOUR CLOTHES FAR WHITER

CONCENTRATED Super Suds for WASHING CLOTHES

GET THE BLUE BOX!

Here is the last word in granulated soap—a super-cleansing soap that surpasses other less modern package soaps in 5 IMPORTANT WAYS!

This amazing super soap is the new CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS in the blue box. It is TAILOR-MADE to the order of American women!... For 7,000 housewives, testing the most popular brands of granulated soaps in their own homes, told us exactly what they wanted in the perfect laundry soap. Colgate-Palmolive-Peet spent over a million dollars to make and perfect the new Concentrated Super Suds!

Already more than 1,200,000 women are using this new super soap... and what amazing results they are getting! For this new Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box gives you:

1. SUPER ACTION! Twice as much suds as you get from less modern package soaps—richer suds, cup for cup, in hardest water—thicker suds that last three times as long. You don't need to add extra soap to finish the job!

2. SUPER SPEED! Bursts into rich suds in 5 seconds! Soaks dirt free in 10 minutes! Grime and grease dissolved in an instant . . . backbreaking scrubbing banished forever!

3. SUPER WHITENESS! Gets clothes up to 25% whiter than old-fashioned soaps, cup for cup, as shown by Electric Eye photometer tests!

4. SUPER SAFETY! Efficient, yet so mild—so gentle to colors, to fabrics, to your hands! Clothes last 2 to 3 times longer when washed the scrubless Concentrated Super Suds way!

5. SUPER CLEANSING! Not only banishes dirt and grime, but kills or removes most germs . . . gets clothes super clean . . . Hospital-Clean!

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

We are so sure that Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box is the finest laundry soap you ever used, that we make this startling offer:—Get a package and test it against any other soap. If you do not agree that Concentrated Super Suds gives you better results, mail the empty carton to Concentrated Super Suds, Jersey City, N. J., and we'll send you DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

7,000 WOMEN HELPED CREATE IT!

Yes! 7,000 women like yourself, in home laundries like your own—actually tested and re-tested the most popular brands of granulated soaps. They told us where some succeeded . . . where others failed. They told us with utter frankness what they wanted in a soap to make it perfect.

Then the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet research laboratories went to work—test followed test, regardless of expense. At last came the amazing result—the new Concentrated Super Suds . . . made by a special process . . . a really modern, new-day super soap that is revolutionizing home laundering across the nation. Try it today and see for yourself!

NEW SUPER SOAP GIVES TWICE THE SUDS!

The new Concentrated Super Suds—made by a special process developed through years of research—gives twice the suds, cup for cup, than less modern soaps—richer, longer-lasting, more active suds! Yet it's utterly safe for clothes, gentle to your hands!

EXPECT THESE ASTONISHING RESULTS FROM CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS!

1 SUPER ACTION! GIVES TWICE AS MUCH SUDS

2 SUPER SPEED! SOAKS DIRT FREE IN 10 MINUTES

3 SUPER WHITENESS! GETS CLOTHES 25% WHITER

4 SUPER SAFETY! CLOTHES LAST 2 TO 3 TIMES LONGER

5 SUPER CLEANSING! GETS CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN
